

Steppingstones

The Chronicles of Nod:

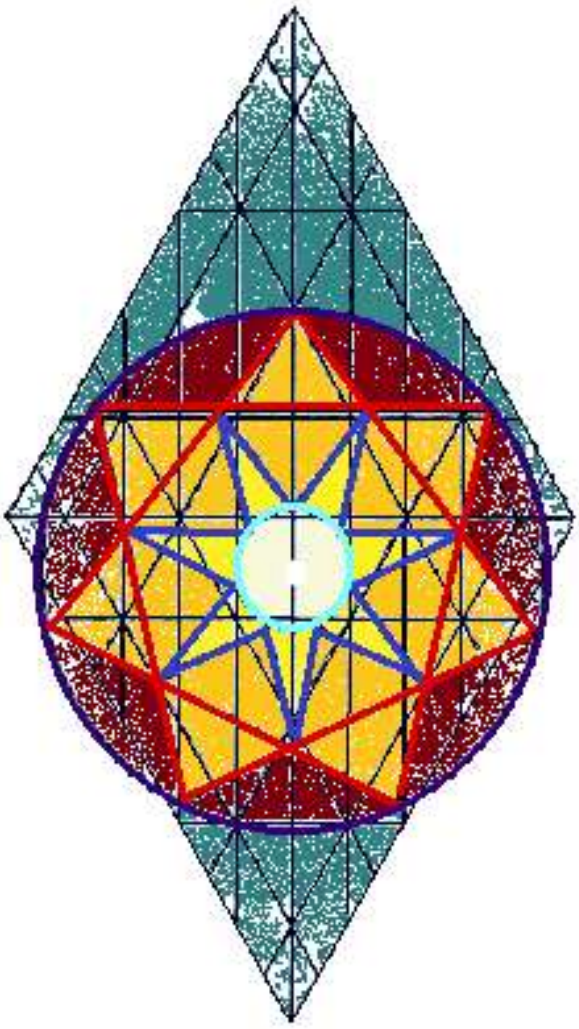

Its People and its Times

Volume One: from Eden to Ararat

bora ben elazar

crowndiamond.org

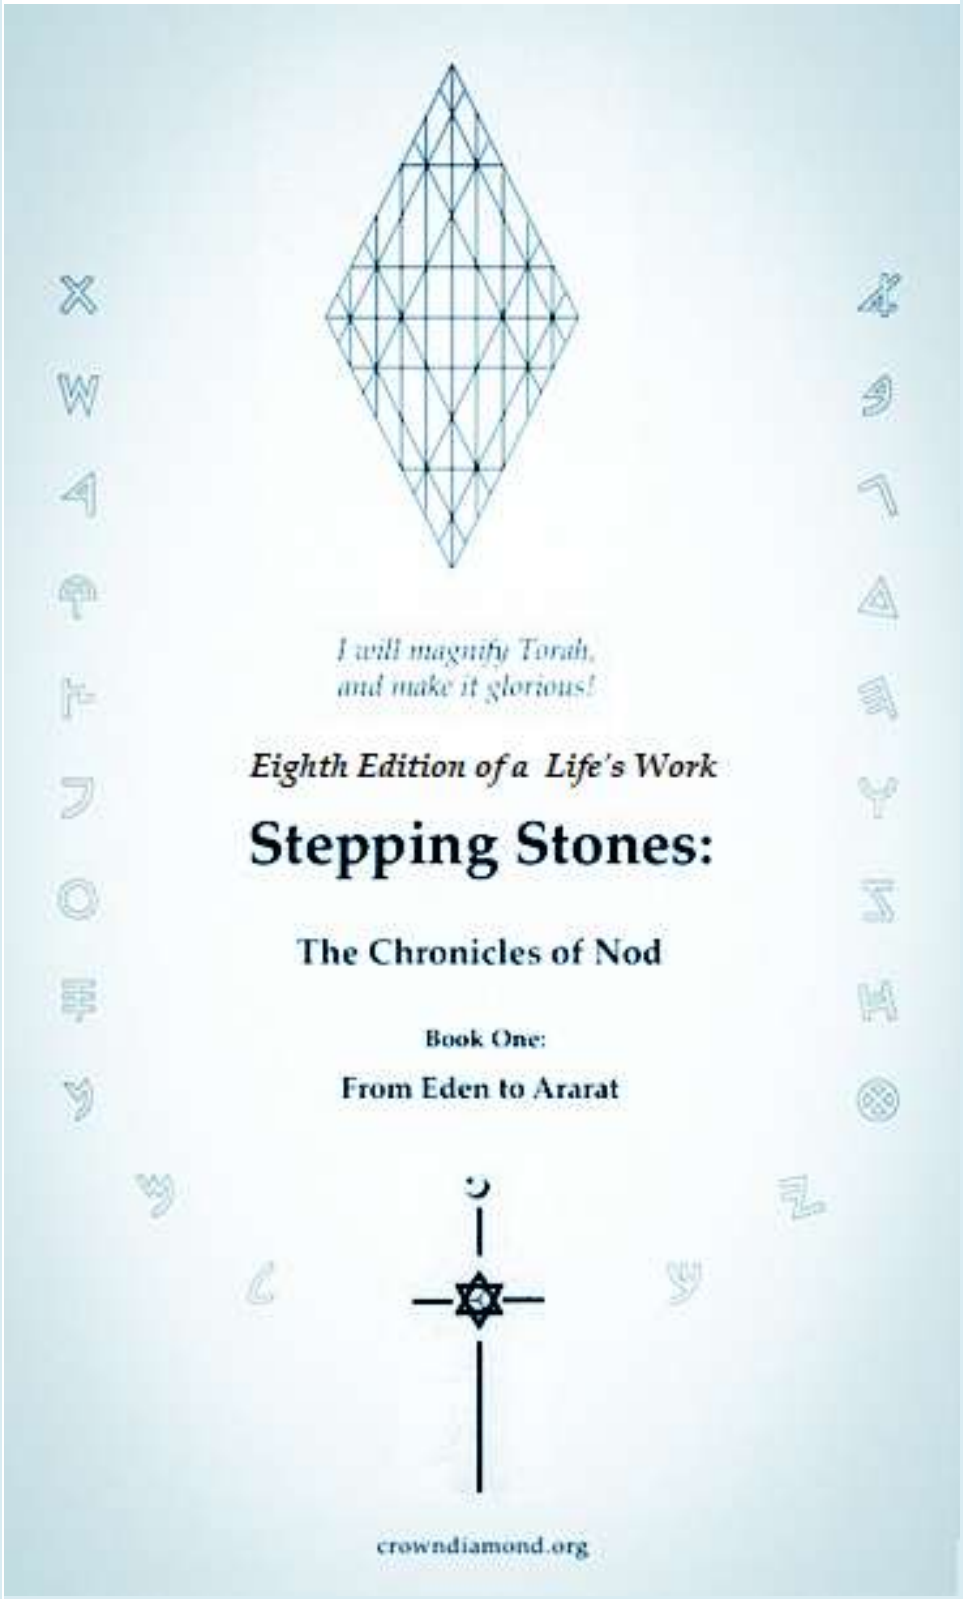

Behold!

The Morning Star

The Medicine Wheel of the Indigenous People of what is now North America.

The system of the vanished peoples of South America was founded on the number twenty-two, the number of emblems in the holy script of Heaven.

I will magnify Torah, and make it glorious!

Eighth Edition of a Life's Work

Stepping Stones:

The Chronicles of Nod

Book One:

From Eden to Ararat

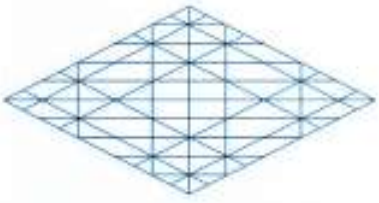

crowndiamond.org

2026, C.E.

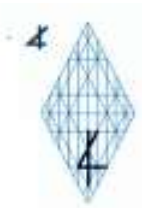

𐤀 — 1, 1,000
𐤁 — 2
𐤂 — 3
𐤃 — 4
𐤄 — 5
𐤅 — 6
𐤆 — 7
𐤇 — 8
𐤈 — 9
𐤉 — 10
𐤊 — 20 — 11 — 2
𐤋 — 30 — 12 — 3
𐤌 — 40 — 13 — 4
𐤍 — 50 — 14 — 5
𐤎 — 60 — 15 — 6
𐤏 — 70, — 16 — 7
𐤐 — 80 — 17 — 8
𐤑 — 90 — 18 — 9
𐤒 — 100 — 19 —10 — 1
𐤓 — 200 — 20 — 2
𐤔 — 300 — 30 — 21 — 3
𐤕 — 400 — 40 — 22 — 4

Father; seed, beginning; Life Force; angel; incarnation; sprout, renewal, growth; outward projection; power; spark; explosion, contraction; to focus; torment; intervention; inspiration; one to conceive, interiorize; to crave; to build, fashion, make, manufacture; to agree; group, family; ear; to hear, listen; to heed, pay attention; to echo; to be receptive; to engage, embrace movement, progress; process; birth; to travel; camel, donkey; chariot; hoe; to weed, cull, eliminate, subvert; hill, incline, neck, throat, voice; the path; bowels, appetites; bitterness, to hurl, span, twirl; disagreement; rage; ire door, entrance; opportunity; obstacle, wall; door, opening; heart, emotions; to see, observe; perception; meditation; thorn, arrow; vagina; love; pyramid; identified, named; altar

rake, winnowing fan; relief, breeze; to cool; evaporation; visibility; light; enlightenment; conscience; comb; to pick, choose; fingers; to burst, embarrass; shame, hate, anger, heat; insubstantial scales, balance; air, just, to adjudicate, adjust; to concur; consent; to argue, dispute, debate; comfort, peace, mercy clasp, girdle; to join, unite; nail, fasten; cradle; beneficial; to support, worship, adore; to sustain; fulcrum, to inject lightning, drive, determination; to dodge, avoid scythe; instruments, tools; wing, flight; objective, goal, expectation; ambition; perfection; to finish, complete, end, realize; to cut, sever; overcoming, deliverance; to separate, finish; to enunciate; language agreement, covenant, bond; appreciation, empathy; friend, brother; window, outlook, perception; ladder; torso, chest; apron, cloak; work, labor; loom; to weave, arrange; to aid, assist integration, harmonization, resolution; differentiation, four directions; to navigate; basket, repository; target; to specify; to imprison, jail, limit, curtail; inertia; trust, truth, veracity hand; to touch, reach, bring; humility; to bow, concede; to come; to apply, supply, provide, exert; to honor; to betray; to stimulate, kindle; implement; to repay, respect; applause comb; to realign, restructure, simplify; antlers; to branch out, boast; pitchfork; to complicate; harvest; fruitfulness; to rejoice; celebration; riot, unrest; doctrine, evidence; tribe; tree of knowledge rod, staff, arm, leg, finger, bone, penis, beard; elder; ancient, wise; to lead, influence; to order,, insist, command; to punish, afflict, to redirect, change; to deflect, goad; to herd, steer, impose, bully water, reflection, mirror; memory; to be free, unrestrained, wild; continuous; spontaneous; to pour, anoint; oil; chosen; people; to accuse; to crawl, exit, flee; wisdom's attributes; to be lost

fish, flexibility; to surprise; sway; undependable ;mistrust, to restrict, reverse; denial, failure; to defeat, to suffer; to investigate; to demonstrate; display, jubilee; the Son of Man symbol; satisfied

Tree of Life; tower, refuge, den, shelter, fortification; to structure; determination; consistency; alert, responsible, supportive; to demand; woven; corridors, halls; season; repetition; burning bush wheel; eye, sight; to understand, comprehend; to look, see, study; to detect, envision; prophecy; to be clear, uncomplicated, to be whole, attentive; well, cistern; cavity, pit; loop; orbit; planet breath, aspiration; voice, elocution, speech; to permit, reuse; to acknowledge; to mock, scorn, imprecate; expression; face; sermon, homily; feast, meal lifted leg; to kick, dance, spin; to repent; transformation; saint; to leap, jump; to pursue, follow; to flee, evade, escape; to interdict; to suppress, challenge, oppose priest cap; heaven; mind; holiness; sanctification; to confer, confirm; to dedicatee, designate; bow and arrow; to propel, drain, siphon; to dim, darken, diminish; to surprise; to climax, contribute head; cc, main; king, sovereignty; ruler, arbiter; mountain, summit, peak, edge; blade; thought, knowledge, intelligence; beauty, nobility

Wisdom; fire, glory; breath, breathing; God, angels, strength; to utilize; to vary, weakness, frailty; to struggle, wrestle; illness, sleep, death; to chew, absorb, assimilate, capitalize to mark; to measure; to sign, endorse; to end, finish; to cancel, obliterate; to disappear, vanish; continuum, continuation; infinity; totality; the universe

. . . in the beginning . . .

Sefer Maaseh Bereshith

:𐤁𐤓𐤀𐤔𐤉𐤕 𐤁𐤓𐤀 𐤀𐤋𐤄𐤉𐤌 𐤀𐤕 𐤄𐤔𐤌𐤉𐤌 𐤅𐤀𐤕 𐤄𐤀𐤓𐤑 [1]

:𐤄𐤀𐤓𐤑 𐤅𐤄𐤉𐤕𐤄 𐤕𐤄𐤅 𐤅𐤁𐤄𐤅 𐤔𐤇𐤈 𐤏𐤋 𐤐𐤍𐤉 𐤕𐤄𐤅𐤌 𐤅𐤓𐤅𐤇 𐤀𐤋𐤄𐤉𐤌 𐤌𐤓𐤇𐤦𐤕 𐤏𐤋 𐤐𐤍𐤉 𐤄𐤌𐤉𐤌 [2]

:𐤅𐤉𐤀𐤌𐤓 𐤀𐤋𐤄𐤉𐤌 𐤉𐤄𐤉 𐤀𐤓 𐤅𐤉𐤄𐤉 [3]

:𐤀𐤋𐤄𐤉𐤌 𐤉𐤇𐤊𐤓 𐤉𐤄𐤉 𐤁𐤉𐤍 𐤄𐤀𐤓 𐤅𐤁𐤉𐤍 𐤄𐤇𐤔𐤊 𐤔𐤐𐤈 𐤁𐤉𐤍 𐤉𐤌 𐤅𐤁𐤉𐤍 𐤉𐤁𐤔 [4]

:𐤉𐤌 𐤅𐤉𐤒𐤓𐤀 𐤀𐤋𐤄𐤉𐤌 𐤋𐤉𐤁𐤔𐤄 𐤀𐤓𐤑 𐤅𐤋𐤌𐤒𐤅𐤄 𐤉𐤒𐤓𐤀 𐤀𐤋𐤄𐤉𐤌 𐤋𐤌𐤒𐤅𐤄 𐤉𐤌 [5]

Beginning, the Eternal One established an interplay between the cubits of concept and principle, as positioned within an ambiance receptive to transformational thought. Implications of the vision were without form or substance; for the gap between the infinite and the finite had yet to be determined.

And the Breath of Elohim fanned this vision; and its whisperings grew into a shout. The Breath's only exclamation could be expressed in our speech as, "Let the vision I hold in my thoughts be projected," and it materialized. In Wisdom, Elohim saw that the projected vision was good.

And Elohim designated a stable haven for the vision within a finite cubit, to safeguard its unfolding operations from the infinite, with its latent pools of inertia and subsequent chaos.

And the bright clarity of the vision, Elohim called Day: it would be the engine of growth, providing nourishment for all aspects of life as the man he would create began to wander within the wildernesses of Earth.

And that chaotic skirt of darkness that was clinging to the vision, he called Night; for he saw in its dynamics a taskmaster that, while providing rest, would school even the least of men; for all mankind would, one day, share in the vision.

And his understanding of the power to leverage the processes of formation, so that they would build congruence with the vision, was day one. It was very good.

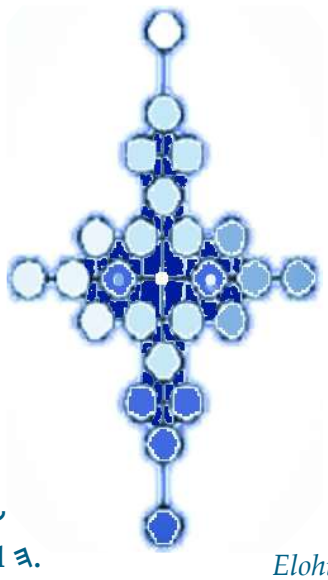

. . . Elohim . . .

𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄

יהוה

YHWH

𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄 gives 𐤆 life 𐤀 and sustains 𐤄
the living 𐤀: 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄 intervenes 𐤆 to relieve 𐤀 and judges 𐤄
in order to heal 𐤀.

𐤀𐤋𐤄𐤉𐤌

אלהים

Elohim

the Emanation 𐤊 from antiquity 𐤂:
whose Life 𐤀 is shared 𐤆 freely 𐤌. The master 𐤊 of shepherds 𐤂 provides 𐤆 discernment 𐤀, through th blessing 𐤆 of his counsel 𐤌.

His hand 𐤆 gathers 𐤀 his flocks, whether to their comfort 𐤄 or chastisement 𐤀, so that he might bless 𐤆 all who live 𐤀 with realizations 𐤄 unto their enlightenment 𐤀.

Gematria 26 𐤄𐤌:

In HaShem 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄, every realignment 𐤌 is rooted in graceful mercy 𐤄,

Ordinal 26 𐤄𐤌 > 8 𐤇:

which is evident 𐤌 in the broad range of our peaceful 𐤄 exchanges 𐤇.

Targum: HaShem supplies 𐤆 discernment 𐤀, so that we can fathom 𐤄 his revelations 𐤀.

𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄 has many titles, but one Name: a succinct statement of covenant, the hand 𐤆 that winnows the wheat 𐤀 also preserves 𐤄 the harvest 𐤀.

HaShem YHWH signifies both the Heavenly Father 𐤉𐤆 and the Divine Mother 𐤉𐤄; and, because the principles of male and female are intrinsic to life, it's understood that 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄, our Elohim, is One 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄.

The word rendered in English as Elohim is a collective plural that points to the principles and powers of God 𐤂𐤊—to the faces of the Singularity 𐤊 that directs and controls 𐤂 all permutations of light 𐤀 for the benefit 𐤆 of all creatures within the heavens and upon the Earth 𐤌.

Gematria 86 𐤄𐤃

Elohim are faces:— appearances, expressions, utterances of the Word 𐤃—of the Unity 𐤄:

Ordinal 41 𐤊𐤌 > 14 𐤅𐤆 > 5 𐤀: attributes 𐤌 of the Father 𐤊, they provide access 𐤆 to the portal 𐤅 of Everlasting Life 𐤀.

Among the Titles of 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄:

𐤂𐤊 (AL, God) God the Father; Master 𐤊 of Shepherds 𐤂; the Singularity of which we are instructed.

𐤀𐤂𐤊 (God, Allah) Singularity 𐤊 revered as the Ancient 𐤂 of Days 𐤀.

𐤉𐤄𐤂𐤊 God: the title of Immanuel, a Name that signifies the Godhead as positoned within the creatures of Earth. 𐤉𐤄𐤂𐤊 is the emanation 𐤊 of the Shepherd 𐤂 that watches over and upholds 𐤄 each and every life 𐤀.

	𐤀	𐤁	𐤂	𐤃	𐤄	𐤅	𐤆	𐤇	𐤈
	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Object	seed	house	hoe	door	rake	scales	wing	ladder	basket
Action	activates	interiorizes	facilitates	perceives	discerns	judges	concludes	imagines	resolves
Result	growth	development	maturation	fervor	enlightenment	worship	deliverance	ascension	refuge

Alphanumerics of the Moses Script

Gematria	Interpretation	Ordinal	Interpretation	Numerological
𐤉 (Yod) 10	to give, receive	10	𐤉 = the hand	𐤀 = initiation
𐤊 (Kaf) 20	to branch	11	𐤀𐤉 = the hand initiates	𐤁 = formation
𐤋 (Lamed) 30	to guide	12	𐤁𐤉 = the hand builds	𐤂 = process
𐤌 (Mem) 40	to release	13	𐤂𐤉 = the hand transfers	𐤃 = opportunity
𐤍 (Nun) 50	to display	14	𐤃𐤉 = the hand accesses	𐤄 = comprehension
𐤎 (Samek) 60	to establish	15	𐤄𐤉 = the hand separates	𐤅 = evaluations
𐤏 (Ayin) 70	to comprehend	16	𐤅𐤉 = the hand weighs	𐤆 = conclusions
𐤐 (Pe) 80	to open	17	𐤆𐤉 = the hand lets go	𐤇 = the window
𐤑 (Tsade) 90	spontenaety	18	𐤇𐤉 = the hand claps	𐤈 = resolution
𐤒 (Qof) 100	sanctification	19	𐤈𐤉 = the hand absorbs	𐤀 = concentration
𐤓 (Resh) 200	regulation	20	20 = 𐤊 = a branching out	𐤁 = consciousness
𐤔 (Shin) 300	stimulation	21	21 = 𐤀𐤊 = acknowledged principles	𐤂 = birth process
𐤕 (Taw) 400	renewal	22	22 = 𐤁𐤊 = a joyful soul	𐤃 = opportunity

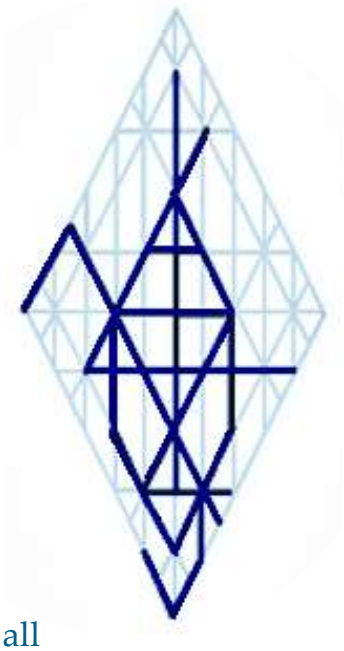

...even the hairs of your head are numbered...

"𐤄𐤅𐤄𐤉 speaks once: yes, twice; and man doesn't comprehend it"

The emblems have verbal content and numerical content. These voices speak simultaneously in oracular Torah.

The third voice draws the thrust of the two-edged sword to its point: the meanings of the numbers add depth to the verbal concepts within what is written in the languages of man.

𐤀𐤁𐤉𐤂𐤁𐤏𐤍 𐤀𐤁𐤉 Abi-Gibon אבי גבעון

My 𐤋 Father 𐤀 is of many hills 𐤀𐤁𐤉𐤂𐤁𐤏𐤍.

The Father 𐤀 of souls 𐤂 furnishes 𐤋 ways 𐤍 for us to build 𐤂 on our understandings 𐤏 as we broaden 𐤉 our horizons 𐤁. Through inspiration, the eyes 𐤀 and the ears 𐤂 function 𐤋 as vehicles that transport 𐤍 our souls 𐤂 to vistas 𐤏 that exceed 𐤉 any expectation 𐤁.

Should adversity 𐤀 or inertia 𐤂 lay snares 𐤋 along pathways 𐤍 of our fellowship 𐤂, our covering 𐤏 shall be our honesty 𐤉; for we are Sons of Man 𐤁: we are of the Father's 𐤀 household 𐤂, and we welcome 𐤋 all contingencies 𐤍 with personal 𐤂 transparency 𐤏 that is applauded 𐤉 from on high 𐤁!

We lift our arms in supplication 𐤉, should we become exhausted 𐤁 by things we see 𐤀 and the rumors we hear 𐤂; for our stamina 𐤋 is an inadequate 𐤍 utensil to ply 𐤂 against suffocating 𐤏 trials 𐤉.

But Sons of Man arise 𐤁! They lift themselves up 𐤀, and they clap 𐤂 their hands 𐤋
as they jump 𐤍 to their feet 𐤂!
Their limitations 𐤏 will vanish 𐤉 as they fill up their lungs 𐤁!

Gematria 144 𐤃𐤑𐤐: We will draw upon 𐤐 the cleansing 𐤑 fire that warms our hearts 𐤃!

Ordinal 54 𐤃𐤅: We will celebrate 𐤅 our passion 𐤃!

Checksum: Resolution of conflict 𐤎 (9 𐤎) is the result 𐤋 of agreement 𐤇 (18 𐤇𐤋). Let us bathe 𐤑 in the light of our days 𐤔 (45 𐤔𐤑), expecting 𐤊 that the Father's principles 𐤀 (81 𐤀𐤊) will drain 𐤐 misery 𐤑 from those suffer agony 𐤃 (144 𐤃𐤑𐤐), relieving the discomfort 𐤁 of those suffer pain 𐤃 (54 𐤃𐤁); for Living Waters 𐤑 will heal us 𐤔 (45 𐤔𐤑) if we choose 𐤋 to bridge 𐤇 (18 𐤇𐤋) our differences 𐤎 (9 𐤎).

The Kingdom of Heaven and the Realm of Names are One Sinaitic Hebrew is the original script of Torah. The pattern was given to Moses because it is not inguistic, but oracular.

Oracular Torah written in the Moses Script is available from several sources. An html version is available at crowndiamond.org.

Each of us has a translation we like better than others. All of them are derivative. Recall the teaching, "I will magnify Torah and make it glorious.

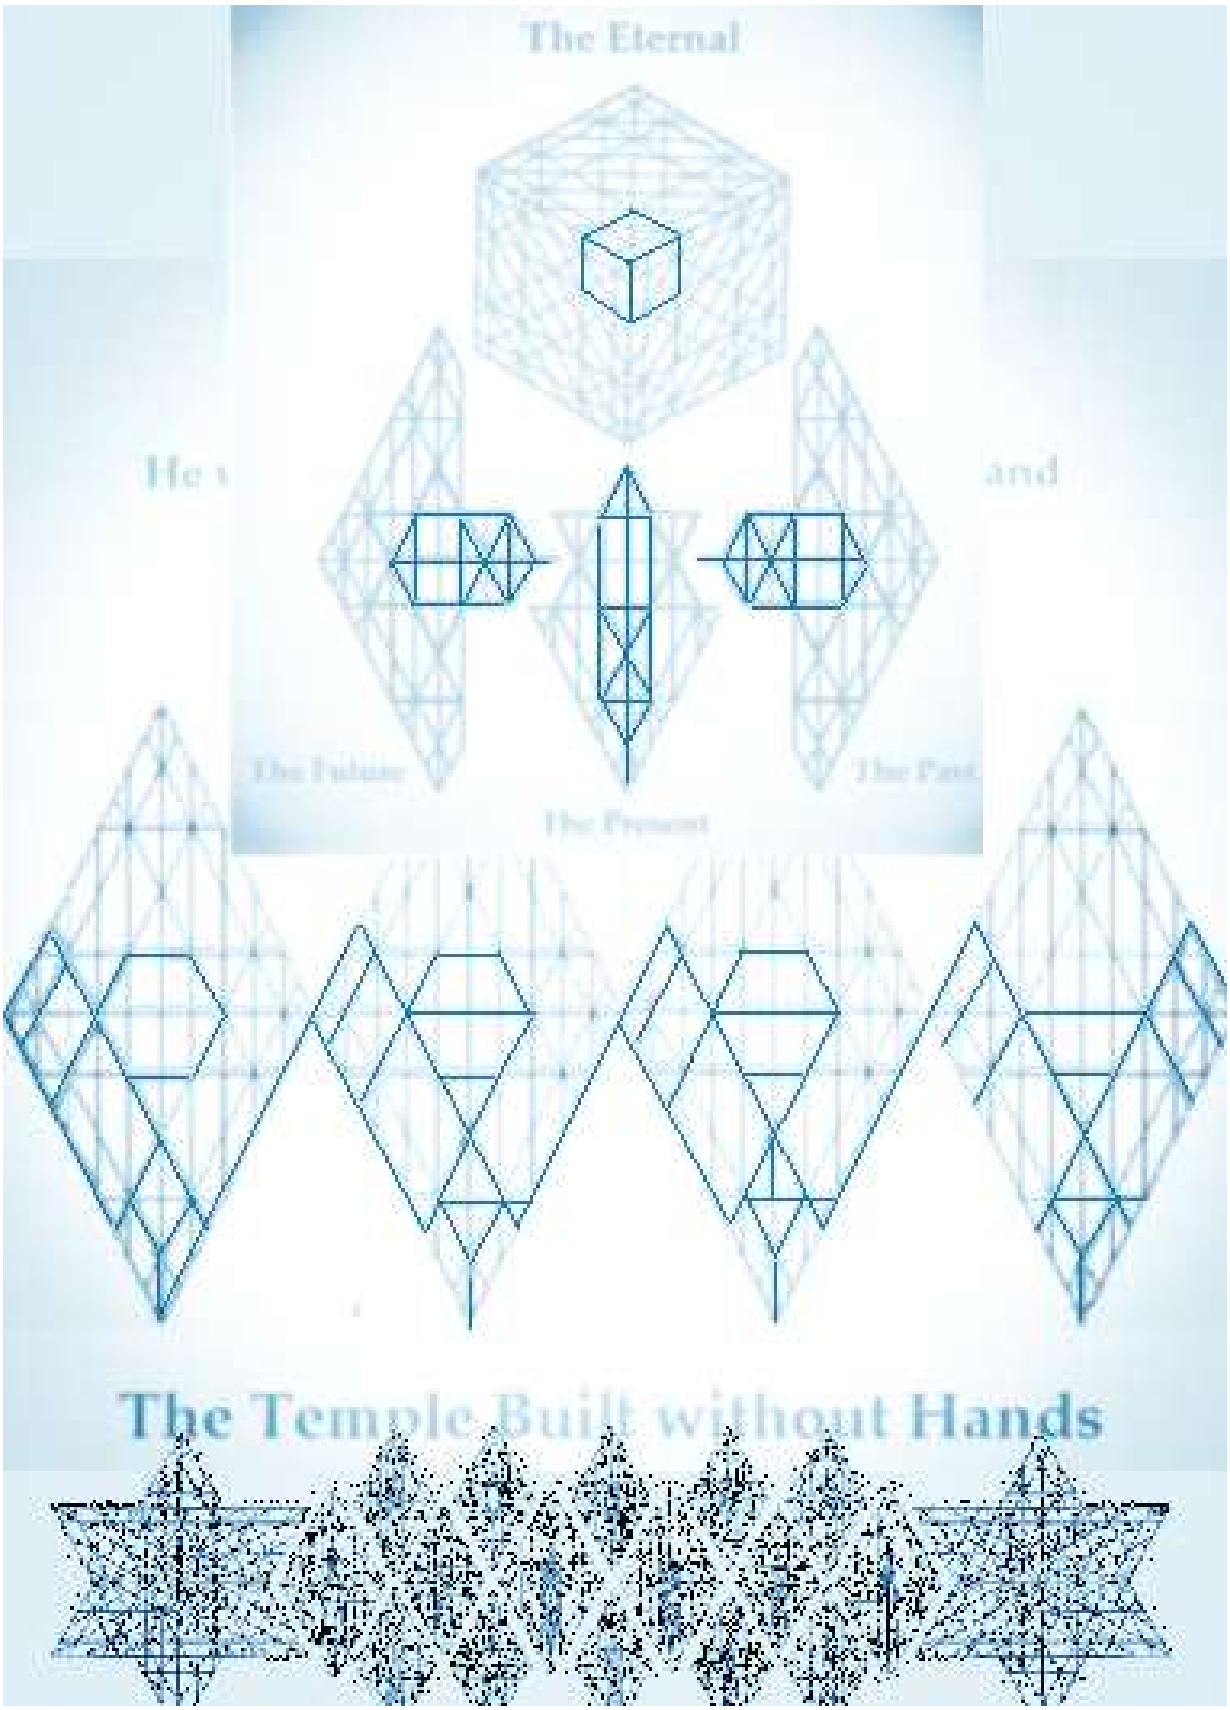

I am honored to serve that day.

—𐤁𐤏𐤁 𐤉𐤄 𐤁𐤉

Bob Finton

Two Laws: "First, I gave them laws that were good...then, laws that were not good:" not bad laws, but less than good; for all things work together for good. It is good that we can perceive the laws written within us: they exert the touch of God. The right may not know what the left is doing, but that's God's business. HaShem directs our steps; and as we walk, we are to lift up messiah. When others perceive his light within us, they will be drawn not to us, but to messiah.

The Eternal
The Future
The Past
The Present
The Temple Built without Hands

Prologue

After the fall from Eden, we were exiled to the land of Nod, a place where the ground itself seemed to remember what had been lost. Our thoughts had become bifurcated and veiled, divided between what we once knew and what we could no longer see. In that dim country, every step felt like a negotiation with the remnants of paradise — a faint echo of the garden slingering in the dust.

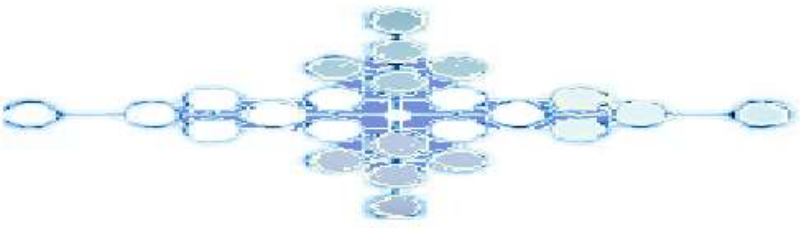

We walked as strangers to ourselves. The unity that had once bound our inner life had fractured, leaving us to navigate a world where meaning came in fragments. Symbols that had once been transparent now appeared opaque, requiring effort and interpretation. Even the geometry of creation, once harmonious and whole, seemed to warp at the edges, as though the exile had bent the very lines of the world.

Yet something remained. A thread, thin but unbroken, ran through the darkness — a memory of the original pattern. It whispered that the division within us was not final, that the veil could be lifted, and that the architecture of the world still held its ancient order for those willing to seek it.

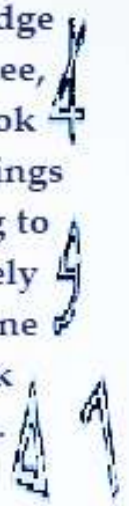

In Nod, we learned to read again. Not with the ease of Eden, but with the slow, deliberate attention of those who must rebuild what was lost. Every symbol became a doorway; every metaphor, a map. The world spoke in quiet geometry, and we listened, gathering its scattered pieces.

Our exile was not merely a punishment. It was a passage — a descent into the hidden chambers of creation where understanding must be earned. And though the way was obscured, the path remained. The land of Nod, for all its shadows, was still part of the same world that had once been whole.We were not abandoned. We were being taught.

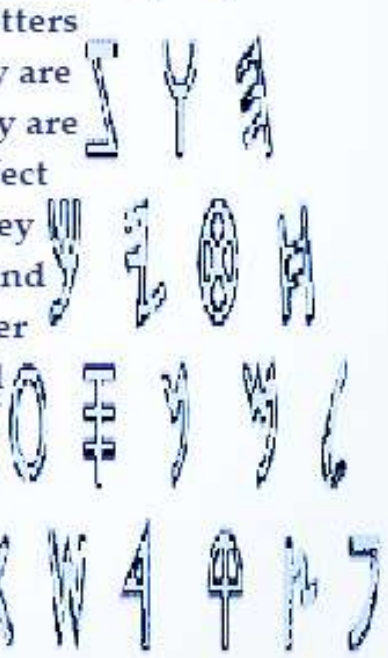

—Precis by MS Copilot

For he revealed it as a knowledge with which all its emanations agree, the knowledge of the living book that he revealed to the eternal beings at last as his letters, displaying to them that these are not merely vowels or consonants, so that one may read them and think something devoid of meaning.

On the contrary, they are letters that convey the truth. They are pronounced only when they are known. Each letter is a perfect truth like a perfect book; they are letters written by the hand of the Unity, since the father wrote them for the eternal beings, so that, by means of his letters, they might come to know the father.

---The Gospel of Truth

We Walked with God

גן עדן

הגן עד|

The Garden of Eden

Before the commandment came, we walked with God; but imperfect perceptions led to misunderstanding and errors. Drifting from spiritual congruence, we became estranged from the intimacy of that walk, and we long for its restoration.

The primal sense of loss is real, and yet it is mistaken; for unaware—as though stumbling mindlessly within a strange reality whose dimensions we cannot fully fathom, we walk with Elohim every moment of each extraordinary day as we experience and share, together, the presence of the indwelling power above all others, the Breath of Life.

That Presence is called 𐤏𐤌𐤍𐤅 Immanu𐤀, which is the name attributed to the Father as that subliminal reality that accompanies each of us within every moment of our lives. Immanu𐤀 is with us, within us, and among us all at all times. Many think of God as a distant being. He is a distant Essence, and he could not be closer.

Whether we count on celebrating the gift of Life Everlasting at the end of this present age, or whether we cling to the fiction that personal standing within the maze of life's earthly corridors justifies indulgence in hard-won advantages to which we're now entitled, we suffer from delusions born of bias as we stagger within life cycles we can sense but cannot fully fathom.

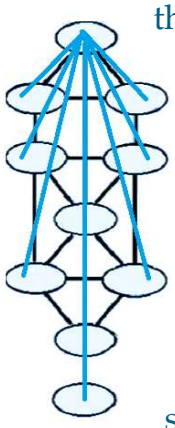

We are dazed and might even be imperiled by the confusion and indecision that harass us; and we're forced to admit that our only certainty is that the world to which we have become accustomed is going, if not already gone, and that it is unlikely to return. Plagued with uneasy conjecture about what is unfolding before us, therefore, we do our best to strengthen resolve; for we admit that we can do little more than to keep on doing as we've been doing all along, as best we can for so long as we can.

In consternation, we are harried and driven about with barely time to think, until, stopped dead in our tracks, we finally realize that this is how it must have been in the days of Noah, before the flood. We don't discuss the dread that is overtaking us as a people, but all of us know that life on Earth cannot continue the way it is going.

There will be no flood, this time, but planetary catastrophe can come so many other ways. In a world where the responsible man is met with derision, the end could come in a sadly comic way. Everything but the dust of death could vanish at the twitch of an eye that's been bothering a drunken hacker who is falling asleep on his chair while fingering random buttons on his new machine.

When the first patriarchal age came to a close so long ago, Father Noah was entrusted with the pattern for the Ark that would rescue a remnant of all living things from the floodwaters that were to come. There are many reasons to doubt the literal account of the narrative; but the story answers to faith, not to reason.

Consider the Ark's measurements; for they are a most significant aspect of the story, but they're seldom discussed. It's generally taught that cubits are variable measurements based on the length of an important man's forearm. However, the best that could be expected of such a standard would be a "ballpark" estimation, and so many ancient constructions called for sophisticated precision in construction.

The Ark was to be three hundred cubits by fifty cubits, which called for triple-decked ship near four hundred and fifty feet in length, by seventy-five feet in width.That's s big boat, but it was to accomodate a great many living creatures for over three months. Alll things are possible, but that's asking a lot of its keeps.

Later, I'll do my best to explain in more detail; but to start, I'll just state what I believe and go from there. I believe the Ark's measurements are mystical expressions of the ratios and dynamics of the kabbalah symbol known both as the Tree of Life and as Jacob's Ladder; for the Life Tree עֵץ־חַיִּים is a metaphor for Creation, in its entirety.

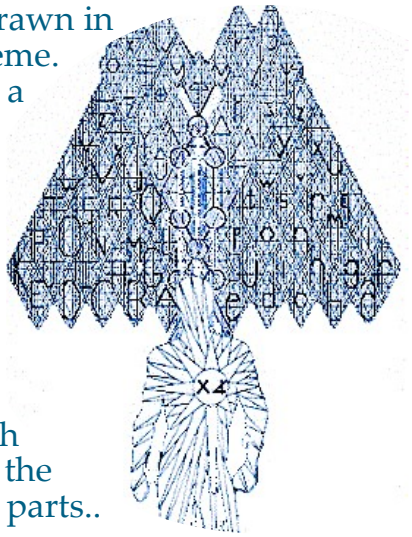

Some consider this line of thought to be delusional because it touches on the occult. I intend to do more than touch upon that taboo; for "the hidden things"—the illusive, occult aspects—"of God are clearly seen in the things that are made." The scripture adds that doubters have no excuse; so, I don't intend to equivocate. God is jealous of our attention for our sake, not his own.

As symbols, Noah's Ark and the Tree of Life are much the same,which is as one would expect of things with similar measurements. Further, the Ark's purpose was to carry a remnant beyond the flood to a new land, which would be administered differently. The Tree of Life is also a vehicle given to convey those it nourishes to a hallowed land not discernible by natural senses, a land ready to receive the chosen into the spiritual realm of Life Everlasting.

Occult study isn't wrong, in itself. Its only danger is one of unwise focus. We are to have nothing between ourselves and God. Obviously, then, no occult knowledge can substitute for visceral understanding of the essence of HaShem, as measured in one's own heart and mind. A man could quote the entire bible by memory, but if HaShem is far from his heart, the knowledge is vanity.

God is the source of all knowledge. We are to look beyond any blessing, seeking a personal experience with the source of the blessing. Knowledge is elegant data. It's righteous mammon. We can be weighed down with libraries and Messiah will knock on our hearts, saying, "I have food to eat you don't know about." What do we answer if we're too busy with our personal diet?

In practice, the symbol of the Tree of Life is drawn in haphazard configurations that follow the basic theme. That pattern of study has value, but we are given a pattern of the Tree of Life that is congruent with the dimensions of the created world and with the spiritual organization of Creation .

. The Crown Diamond is of that pattern. It retools the focus of symbols and parables and meditation practices in congruence with the image and likeness of God, which is discernible in our construction as human beings;; for we are made in his likeness: not that God has arms, but that our arms are given to teach us of the host of spiritual understandings we gain by the use and the purpose of our arms and other body parts..

Adam Kadmon 𐤉𐤑𐤌𐤃𐤐 𐤌𐤃𐤊 is the projection 𐤉𐤑𐤌𐤃𐤐 of man 𐤌𐤃𐤊. In the East, the symbol was the ancient talisman was understood to represent the "Eastern 𐤉𐤑𐤌𐤃𐤐 Adam 𐤌𐤃𐤊." Rising in the East, the symbol and mankind come to rest in the West as the "Projection 𐤉𐤑𐤌𐤃𐤐 of Man 𐤌𐤃𐤊," because the Tree of Life, as fulfillment of the promise of Noah's Ark,comes to rest projection from within the hearts of the Sons of Man, grounded upon Mount Ararat, which is the outer limits of the curse of error upon the planet; and we shall find comfort—Noah 𐤇𐤉—within our souls as the Ark comes to rest.

There is nothing inherently sinister about occult knowledge. If teeth are set on edge, it is because of the manner and timeliness of eating, not because of the grapes. Abraham was schooled among astrologers in Ur of the Chaldees, but his schooling did not warp him. It prepared him for his calling.

Abram 𐤌𐤓𐤄𐤊 became enlightened 𐤀 and was renamed Abraham 𐤌𐤀𐤓𐤄𐤊 in recognition of his standing with HaShem, but he was a son of the East who left all behind to journey to the West in answer to his guidance from above. The East had been instrumental in preparing the High Father to serve HaShem. Nowhere does Abraham deride his past.

A man of many years when he received the call to leave his life behind and enter upon new discoveries, Abram knew that it was not in his power or interest to direct his steps, and his pilgrimage from greater Hindustan to the land of Canaan mirrors Noah's journey from Nod to Ararat.

Both Noah and Abraham were men of faith. Their minds were free to accept the demands of their callings, and they ordered their lives to serve that end. Their personal connection with God outweighed all other considerations. They were reasonable men, but they were not slaves of reason. We are not informed about many details of their religious views, but their narratives establish that they found favor with HaShem because of their faith. The call to follow the demands of faith is the highest of callings. None can do more than to offer himself in self-sacrifice in answer to that call.

To follow one's own initiative is to pursue an imagined reality. It may seem logical, taken step by step; but it is founded on a platform of fantasy and is put into practice by deluded idolatry. To accomplish his personal agenda, a man's thoughts and his estimation of their import must become his god. His personal will must dictate his actions because he recognizes no higher authority than his own mind. His thoughts are the Word to which he must answer. Hamstrung by imperatives he sets for himself, he must bow to self-control at all times; for he is blinded by the world he is busy creating in his own image.

The good news is that divine law—the guidance that comes from above and is written upon our hearts—is also the promissory note of divine remedy. The command that we shall not do this or that is another way of saying that the day is coming when we will no longer be bound by the law's negative expression, and we will fulfill Torah by the open joy of our hearts.

A man whose thought patterns are based on religious legalisms is very much like the man that pursues his own agenda in the secular world without regard to the law. Whether the disciplinary mandates of the life of self-discipline are disciplinary mandates are manifested in the life of a wizard, a priest, or a banker, the ritual spawned by such disciplines is what is served, not the nominal motivation behind the discipline. Self-discipline is not self-sacrifice. It is the exact antithesis of self-sacrifice.

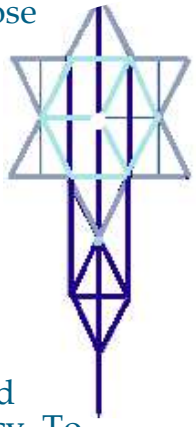

Noah and Abraham received righteous seed that was germinated by their acceptance of divine counsel.Accepting guidance was not enough. They had to abandon their assumptions about what that might require. Abraham was prepared to destroy his own life in the sacrifice of his son, and that abandonment of self led to the ram whose horns were caught in a bush. He knew nothing of either until they were made visible in the hour of need.

These titans of scripture would have been unable to provide thea holly seed planted in their hearts with the husbandry needed to bring forth the fruit of faith. Had they added this or rejected that to the counsel of the Spirit, their interference would have cross-pollinated the holly seed planted in their hearts, and they fruit would have been hybrid, useless for the parables of which they were a part. In consequence, their souls and ours would have been adversely threatened by the growth of weeds.

A man who has Torah written on his heart is not concerned with dictum or prohibitions. It is rightly said that the commandments are ten, but they are also many; and all of them are satisfied by careful fulfillment of the first. With no god between consciousness and the source of life, a soul is pure; and all things that might be required of that soul are clean: even if he is directed to make a fire of dung and eat his meal in the public square as an example to the people he is sent to serve. It is therefore taught that to obey one law is to fulfill them all, and to stand in condemnation by one law is to be condemned by them all. Learn the language of Torah. It is given to school us in the ways of Truth.

Think for a moment about the implications of the Letters of Light. Torah's familiar narratives are enhanced by the geometric contours of each emblem within a word when its letters are read as symbols; and when those meanings are considered in combination with the relevant alphanumeric values, as determined by interpretation of the two systems of computation, who are not only compatible, but which are reduced to the same core value. All of these factors provide built-in commentary for the received text, which we are able to understand because of the etymologic base established by general usage over many centuries.

Further, these each of these attributes affirm the validity of every consideration in a reading. I've known some brilliant people in my life. All agree that no human intelligence could engineer texts that are able to do all these things with consistency. To read Torah in the language of the Lively Oracles of HaShem is to walk in wonder. As the Spirit moves the mind, the reader finds himself walking on holy water as the seas of the world part before him. We are more than conquerors. We are inheritors.

More is at stake, here, than the curiosities of theological archaeology presently enjoying a surge of enthusiasm because of the findings at Qumran. The Crown Diamond diagram proves that the mathematics of Noah's Ark and Mount Sinai have metaphysical implications for the English words you are presently reading. The Babylonian interdiction against God's tongue will be defeated when God's children accept and adopt God's language.

The text of these Chronicles of Nod will draw heavily upon the features of the Moses Script of Torah. As stated previously, that script is comprised of fractals of the divine pattern affirmed on Mt. Sinai. The Moses script remained the language of Torah and the Lively Oracles of HaShem throughout realm of King David, but the script originated in conjunction with Creation.

The Moses script was not contrived by the wizards of Phoenicia. It is not the refinement of pictographs. The related Paleo emblems discovered in hardened mud are not indicative of human evolution. They reflect human informality, just as the carefully constructed Paleo typeface used in this book represents a moment of human endeavor. Torah's sacred emblems are universal symbols born in the mind of the eternal and decreed relevant for all time by the Angel of the Presence, the Lord of the temporal, who declares, "Let there be!"

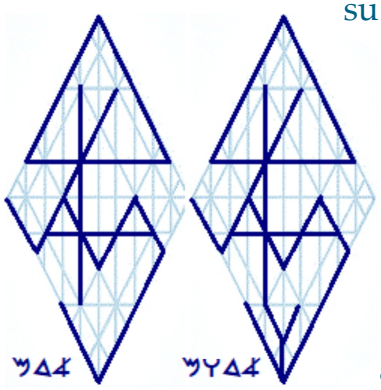

If Noah's Ark was only a boat, its ruins have yet to be certified; but its pattern, both spiritually and geometrically, engulfs us at every moment. It's therefore reasonable to assume the Creator of Worlds, with their stars and their sub-systems, gave Noah instructions whose implications go far beyond the mechanics of saving a remnant of living souls from the unprecedented darkness that plagued that material world.

The flood came on behalf of the spiritual world that is now unfolding before us, whose seed was preserved in the keeps hammered into the timbers of the Ark's interiors by Noach at the direction of HaShem.

When the waters receded, the Ark's pattern remained. When the gopher wood rotted, the pattern remained. After every inch of mountainous Ararat has been searched again and again without yielding evidence of a boat, the pattern remains; for the pattern is intrinsic to God's Creation, right down to the spiritual cube rightly positioned at its very well-reasoned center, even as it is embedded within our hearts.

The cube the builders rejected is correctly positioned within Adam Kadmon, as within Creation. It is hidden in the Shield of David and within the Crown Diamond, David's Buckler. The key to its mysteries is the kundalini, which is the wedding of man's spirit and the spirit of HaMashiyach, a sacrament represented by Adam Kadmon as representative of the dynamics of the human organism. A symbol of the Logos, the cube of the bridal chamber is positioned at the head of every corner and as the predicate of every subject: Adam Kadmon is the gateway to the Stone the builders rejected.

Imagine Noah's Ark as Moses must have seen it from Pisgah. It measured three hundred cubits by fifty cubits, a ratio of six to one. Through many lenses, this "golden ratio" of sacred geometry is prevalent in the physical architecture of man; and this structural congruence is the reason the Ark's pattern is understood to represent not only man, but also the Tree of Life. Adam's Projection is called the Tree of Life simply because the Tree's pattern is reflected in the human organism, which is made in the image—according to the similitude, the pattern—of God.

The kabbalah of mystical Judaism agrees that HaShem gave Noach these measurements for spiritual edification. It will take long discussions to fully unearth even obvious corollaries, and loose-end details of implications would never end. The fullness of the pattern is presented here not for argument, but for reference; for the pattern of the Crown Diamond is like unto the sextant for ongoing thought within an endless journey.

The civilization of the elder patriarchs was overturned by a deluge of waters from unsuspected sources, and the flood destroyed lives that had been darkened within the Wheel of Life. Unchanged,, they had fallen behind; for the angle of the Wheel's rotation had shifted in the flooding spiritual waters.

Earth was still the lathe of Heaven, but the chisel of severity that had driven Adam and Eve from Eden would be retooled as it bit upon the keel of the Ark while it was carried by the waters of the flood; and the change in tooling was sealed by the bow of mercy that HaShem brought to their attention at the peak of Mount Ararat. HaShem acknowledged that beloved Adam 𐤀𐤃𐤌 had lived a life of self-sacrifice, and that he would sometimes be seen as the usurper 𐤀𐤃𐤅𐤌 Edom, which also means "man."For the elect's sake, the remnant of Man 𐤀𐤃𐤌 would no longer be driven like cattle. Mankind 𐤀𐤃𐤅𐤌 would be harnessed and yoked 𐤉, like oxen.

Working together, the hosts within the immortal and the mortal spheres of the temporal realm would farm the Earth and bring forth the fruit of Heaven. Although subject to the gearing of its cogs, the Circle of Life would be unbroken by death: immortal spirits that incarnated to live and die as men would no longer cry out from the ground after physical death. They would be liberated unto life and regathered to their fathers, to be reborn as Wisdom might require: some to the progress that comes by overcoming; and some, to the progress comes with failure.

Sometimes it is necessary to go backward to learn the correct way forward. Wheels turn within wheels. What seems disorderly to those imprisoned in linear thought is both orderly and beautiful to those whose minds are gaining congruence with the workings of the Wheel of Life. The ratios built into the Ark are also found in the circular pattern of the Wheel, sometimes called the Flower of Life. The sciences of mankind perceive the Flower's pattern at all scales; for its universality speaks of the triumph of life over the foolishness of nihilism.

Spiritual lives had become stagnant, but the planetary immersion would refresh life by carrying the chosen seed of Adam to a new land with an uncluttered second heaven. The old thought patterns slipped away with the inundation as the chosen remnant of flawed beings was deposited safely atop Mount Ararat in a major demonstration of the intricacies of wheels that turn within the wheels of realms and, also, within the lives of man.

The deep mysteries invested within the survivors of the Land of Nod lay hidden within the ribs of the Ark that had preserved the remnant, keeping it afloat above the turbulence of the overthrow. While driven by the floodwaters, thae survivors were haunted by the Ark's design, which became imprinted on their subconscious thought at all times as their days of survival within the abyss wore on.

They would recall the sense of its shifting timbers at significant moments of their natural lives. They went about their business in the boat's stalls, surrounded by the mathematics of the lily of the field, the flower of life. Creation expanded in their hearts as thir souls came to term with divine logic.

Scripture does not teach us of a distant deity that imposes rule upon a clockwork creation. Rather, it testifies of an intimate Presence that will accomplish its will within the malleable life forms it creates, upholds, and inhabits as it continually makes all things new for the benefit of its Creation. The words of HaShem do not fall to the Earth in vain.

These claims are not wholly speculative. They are founded on understandings drawn from the Torah narratives, which bear seasonal fruit upon the Tree of Life; and as those seasons come and go, the logic of Adam Kadmon turns the pages of that which is written.

The invisible things of HaShem are seen clearly in the things that are made, and the things that are made display the majesty of the Flower of Life: the lily of the field, the engine at the core of Adam Kadmon; for this occult symbolism is hidden in Creation because they are expressions of the essence of HAShem: they are clad and empowered by the likeness to HaShem.

The Flower of Life drives two-dimensional geometry through its paces and explodes into the wonders of three-dimensional geometry, which compels the experience of the fourth dimension and suggests the marvels of the fifth dimension, escaping our sense of reality and transitioning into the mysteries of the dimensions that lie beyond what is suspected.

The Pattern of Life is the reality into which HaShem invests holy seed. Its verbal and mathematical genome is at the core of biblical parables, which are written in the alphanumeric script whose emblems adhere to the Father's spiritual logic. The Phoenician alefbet, also known as Sinaitic Hebrew, is the emblematic key to HaShem's written word, and the structure of Adam Kadmon is the signpost that points to the interior applications of the recorded counsel of HaShem; the invisible, ineffable Truth from which all truths emanate.

A word concerning Ararat 𐤀𐤓𐤓𐤈. The etymology of the word for the Ark's destination is not very helpful in conveying its meaning. The Hebrew word for "curse," which is 𐤀𐤓𐤓, suggests that Ararat 𐤀𐤓𐤓𐤈 represents an apex 𐤀 of the suffering caused by the curse 𐤀𐤓𐤓 that was levied against the ground of Eden.

The severity of the curse earned by untimely eating of the Tree of Knowledge was partially eased by the flood of Noah's day. That there was intense scrutiny 𐤀 of that 𐤀𐤓𐤓 curse was commemorated by appearance of the rainbow 𐤀𐤒𐤔, which speaks of light's infusion קשת within the atmosphere, the second heaven.

The sense belongs to one way of thinking; the realization, to another.

HaShem speaks once (by etymology): yes, twice (by the alphanumeric), but we perceive it not. Our spirits must triangulate within the Living Oracle; for it is there we behold the faces of HaShem continually, knowing as we are known. As incarnated beings, we pay close attention to the Word of HaShem from time to time; and so, we hear only in part, and we understand only in part. We squint at the truth within scripture; for if we were really open to the fullness of its counsel, the shallow approximations we manage to salvage would convince us that we don't understand much at all.

We are to take cheer, however; because acknowledgment of our limitations provides HaShem the parchment that is needed for new revelation. While addressing the complications that stem from insufficient appreciation of the dynamics within a vision, Y'shua taught his disciples, "If you were blind, you had no sin; but because you say you see, your sin remains."

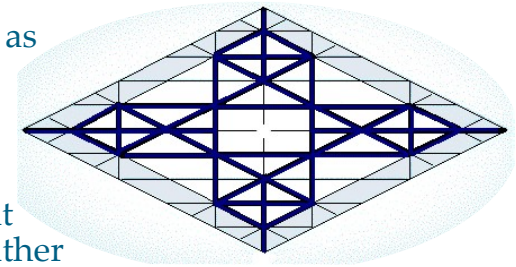

We cannot receive Truth if our minds are filled with half-truths. Truth is a state of being, not a better collection of data. If we part its garments among us, as if truths originate in our understandings, we are thieves; but if each of us shares what he receives with his brothers as discoveries, we are Sons of Man.

All over the world, the language of confusion is driven by the same inverse pattern, a distortion born of greed that serves idolatry. Were we to practice self-sacrifice, we would become the sons of Man and of God; for the Word would rest within our hearts as arbiter of our speech, whatever the shape of our letters or the sound of the speech we use for expression.

Even if we recognize the legitimacy of the holy emblems of original Torah and try to understand their legitimate import on the translations we favor, the pattern of Truth is intrinsic to Creation's design, not to any description or depiction of that design. The pattern that was embedded in the structure of Noah's Ark is embedded in Torah, in Creation, in our minds, and in the movement of galaxies, as well. We seek not knowledge as we read, therefore, but congruence.

The Sealed Book

Because of our many errors, Torah is called the book that was sealed; for falling backwards as we moved forward in our attempts to understand, we came up short, locking ourselves out from the truths we pursued. Our ancestors hadn't realized the timeless importance of the Ark's pattern, and they had undervalued its pervasive presence within Creation.

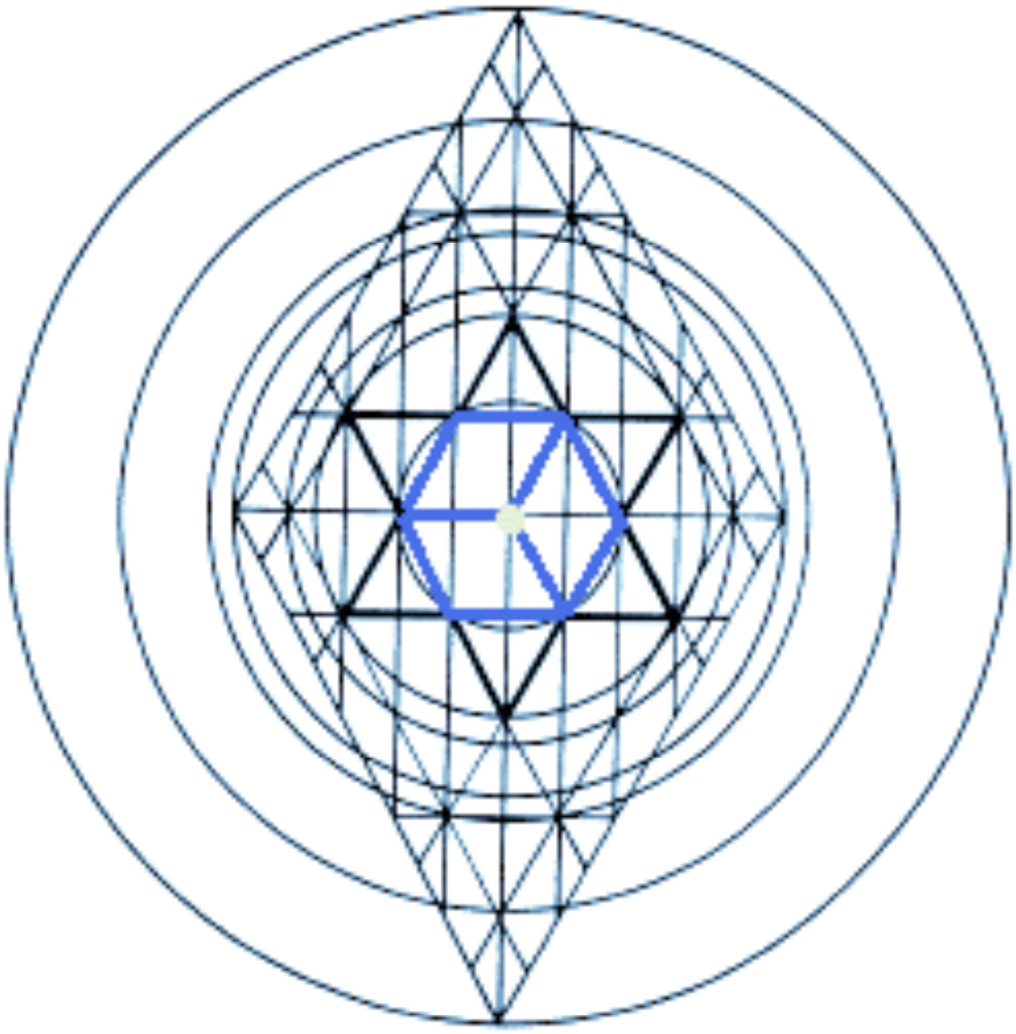

They read the story of Noah as history, not as parable. The flood may have been a historical event, but its record in scripture is written as a parable. Seduced by the intrigues of assumption in a worldy timeline, our fathers lost track of the spiritual thread and spent their energies looking for a shipwreck, rather than for the soul weck the parable addressed.

The patriarchal age that closed upon Noah was filled with knowledge, but it was deficient in understanding. Noah could openly build an Ark before his peers at the direction of HaShem, and not even Methuselah asked him what he was doing. Knowledge without understanding results in the prideful delusion that the individual mind is the center of the universe.

With that mindset, each man is an island unto himself. Such a man has little interest in others, except as they feed his self-image. To my understanding, that is the reason the flood had to come upon the patriarchal age.

Patriarchal fiefdom was doomed. Beyond the rainbow, personal details—such as would be conveyed by the Names, their numbers, and the narrative in which they are embedded—would give rise to notions of tribal thought.Those who were projected would also be extended. Torah would project, and then it would extend—magnify—that which it projected. This pattern is representative of the ongoing processes of creation within the material world.

𐤇𐤍 Noah נח

comfort; restful, relaxed, quiescent;
Nirvana; the sense of being absent, at rest, unified

Gematria 58 𐤇𐤍: a Son of Man 𐤍 on the stairway to heaven .
Ordinal 22 𐤆𐤏: extensions 𐤏 of the soul 𐤆.

In search of understanding that would add comfort 𐤇𐤍 to what he had come to know, Noah 𐤇𐤍 planted a vineyard on Ararat, so that he might draw strength from the fullness of the Earth, and he drank of the fruit his planting produced, in its season. He had been of the patriarchs; but now, his personal life, rather than his genealogical standing, became the focus of his thoughts; for that reflects the Torah narrative: Noah did not look back.

Noah's wine brought him neither understanding nor comfort. It brought him drunkenness. Uncovered within his tent, he was dishonored; and his plight would not be shielded from the eyes of others. However,he was comforted in that not all his progeny had dishonored his nakedness. Faithful sons had supplied him with a covering. They had walked backwards into his chambers—according to mindset of the past. In so doing, they had earned Noah's mixed blessing.

Again, centuries followed as the vine Noah rescued from the previous age again drew strength from the Earth; and in the course of its natural seasons, it produced fruit that was turned into wine. In due course, that wine was introduced into the house of Pharaoh by the agency of Moses, a distant son of Noach, the comforter. The reflection of HaShem 𐤉𐤅𐤄, Moses 𐤄𐤅𐤉 reflected HaShem's Wisdom more brightly than he, himself, understood.

Wearing the mask his people urged upon him, Moses had also agreed with HaShem that his expressions should be masked with parables. Centuries followed the masterpiece given into his hands, and the spiritual nation fell into captivity much darker than they, themselves, understood. They knew not what they were saying, and they were unprepared to welcome the one that had been given to understand the lawgiver's legacy: the Essene Teacher of Righteousness.

Y'shua 𐤔𐤅𐤏𐤄𐤆, the son of none and of all of us, was given to understand Mount Sinai as the transfiguration of Mount Ararat. He drank deeply of the waters of Noah, which had been preserved as wine by Moses, the great master of Torah. Able to drink of the wine of the patriarchal age without drunkenness, Y'shua was empowered to turn the writings of Moses into a new kind of wine: a wine that elated not from inebriation, but through sober understandings of the unification of the spirit of HaShem and the spirits of his children.

When he returned to public encounters after water baptism by his near cousin, Yahuchanan, he walked as a new creature, clad in the understandings reserved for the Anointed One. He had died to himself and was reborn unto HaShem, and he was able to turn water into wine whose waters did not come from the Earth: they had been captured in open cisterns, and they had no hint of the bitterness the old wine had drawn from the residues of mother Earth.

Centuries upon centuries passed; and even today, there are patriarchal spirits that walk among us with the trappings of authority. Full of pride and arrogance, they have contempt for any who do not remind them of themselves; and those who do remind them are soon perceived as threats to their primacy. These tyrants become the powers and principalities of every generation. They turn neither right nor left, but they are bulls charging in the wrong direction.

There are spirits who make their pilgrimage among us. They travel for awhile with this faction or with another, learning without an agenda of their own. They change their thought not out of disinterest, but because of a lack of trust. If an angel of God were to appear before them without mouthing the right words at the right time, they would turn their backs in virtual accusation. Confliction has the upper hand in their souls; and, mesmerized, they will stand idly by as more contentious believers stone the saints.

There are seekers among us. They attach themselves where they see the most promising opportunity for beneficial growth, but they are remain arbiters of what is useful and what is not. When an issue becomes too complicated to resolve by the standards they have raised, they cannot pause. They must seek; and searching empty rooms, they become disheartened and, with reluctance, they become God's judges. Should they be turned away from paradise at the end of their natural lives, they would protest that this or that information had been withheld from them at crucial moments, to their harm. They will seek allowances; for they are aggrieved.

There are children among us. They watch. They listen. They imagine themselves to be both the speaker and the hearer within every conversation. They feel what they inflict, and they give vent only to those things their spirits cannot hold back. They are reborn every at moment, for better or worse. Their lives shall have no end. Angels have charge concerning their care.

All of us struggle within the womb of mother Earth, whose amniotic fluids have been polluted with floods of corrupted data. The fountains of the deep under Constantine flooded our libraries in the world's effort to overwhelm the overtop the cisterns of HaShem's spirit that were preventing its monopolies; and like Noah planting his vineyard atop Ararat, we devised our own methods of navigating corrupted data. We were convinced we were going forward, and we did go forward: into a world of atomic fusion and spiritual inanity.

Committed students of Torah hear rumors of its original language; and they question the learned man, asking him what it all means. The man of letters replies, "I cannot tell. The book is sealed". Indeed! The book was sealed by the very etymology upon which the narrative depends. Hear this: the narrative is the key to the parable, but it cannot turn the lock.

The hidden things of HaShem are seen in the things that are made, but the hidden things are spiritual, not material. Their eternal meanings and implications are accessible only by revelation. Torah was crafted with specific emblems given at the command of the Angel of the Presence.

Whether of the Masoretes or of King James, tools of translation must not be allowed to insult Wisdom by suggesting that our ingenuity has gained evolutionary advantage over the wisdom of the ancients. The lock exists in a dimension to which the fingers and the tongues of natural man have no access. Praise God! That dimension is now opening to the Sons of Man.

Modern languages can express things hidden in the shapes of Torah's original letters once those things have been revealed within the unified spirit of Father and Son—of Husband and Bride, which are one 𐤀𐤉𐤀𐤆; for the Moses Script was designed to reflect the hidden things of HaShem. The Moses 𐤀𐤔𐤉 script of HaShem 𐤉𐤔𐤀 has universal applications that are timeless. It is the language of Torah in the realm of Everlasting Life.

In the temporal realm, practical priests and ministers settled for readings that addressed the pressing demands of parishioners. That practice will be countermanded at the demand of HaShem;; for looking past the sealed book and forward into our day, towering Isaiah prophesied that the seals would open on a magnified Torah made magnificent by the hidden hand of HaShem.

Well, then! Here we are! With the discoveries at Qumran, the lamb of etymological Torah is coming to rest alongside the Lion of emblematic Torah. We must take notice of this historical nexus; for the key to the locked book is in our hands. We must use it. We will use it! Experiencing the full context of the Oracles of HaShem, we shall all be taught of God by God's Spirit!

The day of the open book is upon us, and many are now learning to read Torah in its original script. Using the received text as context, they make deep dives into the waters of the emblematic parables, fishing for the rich messaging that was built into the original text by means of the alphanumeric language of Phoenicia. That this is not only possible but actually happening is proof of the hand of HaShem in the affairs of men.

Priests told us that Torah words meant this and—maybe, also, just possibly they could be seen as suggesting a little of—well, that! Our teachers served as doorkeepers, and, like me, they pedaled interpretations that spoke to the truth of the moment; but Truth knows nothing of time. Truth is eternal, and time and all within time must bow to its timelessness. By grace, therefore, and not by acumen, the Torah words that the priests embalmed by etymology are now being resuscitated by the Breath of Life. The revival will serve as keys to the oracular mysteries of the Word of HaShem and to the restoration of all things.

What better praise is there than admitting that our teachers were wrong, but God made them right?! Y'shua read original Torah written in the Moses Script—in the emblems of Shomron, of Samaria, of Galilee. Each letter of every word was understood to be a parable that invited long study, whereas etymological Torah favors short visits and offers brief and boring details of potentially interesting narratives.

The Torah of Moses brought the wonder of freedom from the rulers of this world; and it raised questions; the Torah of Ezra tackled the terrors of nights in captivity, with their imposing fears, as it addressed transactional issues within a limited field of vision. These voices of the right and the left press upon the heart-felt center of our day; and the third voice of the words of HaShem will be heard in the lilt of the most ancient song of all; for the two-edged sword of HaShem will get to the point.

In these days of disorder within an imperiled world, awe-inspiring wonders are quietly being uncovered by a fledgling movement of time travelers scattered among strains of Abrahamic believers and among the magi of other faiths. The pace of progress is gathering momentum; for this is God's doing. What cannot be overturned will be left standing before us. God's word to man is being renewed in accordance with his promise, and we shall calibrate its fulfillment by taking measure of the joy in our great-grandchildren's hearts.

Use of the Moses script in the Chronicles of Nod will give a sense of the manner in which the letters of Sinaitic Hebrew are to be read; for this text will give concrete examples of such interpretive readings; but this book is intended to do more. Its purpose is to restore appreciation of the dynamics of oracular scripture by rolling away the stone of etymology. That stone is a Rosetta. It is not to be despised or maligned, but neither can it be allowed to seal off the Lively Oracles of HaShem with its litany of dead letters.

Proofs of these claims are not mine. They belong to HaShem, who promised to magnify his Word and make it glorious by his hand, not by the hand of upstart men. This book was not given to a man of great learning. It was not given to a pious man. It was given to a fool who once lived within the madman of Decapolis.

Consider, again, the quote from the Gospel of Truth, which appears on page fourteen of this book and is published within the Nag Hammadi Collection. I had read this gospel in early adulthood, but had forgotten it until a brother reminded me. The Chronicles of Nod will demonstrate that there are extensive texts hidden within hidden texts the mind rejects as not worthy of a second thought. The emblems are divine gifts, just as this early-Christian author once wrote.

Torah encourages exploration and fulfillment of episodic patterns whose hubs ride upon existential bearings as wheels turn upon wheels. The lively oracles of HaShem are neither linear nor circular. They are gyroscopic.

Individual Torah letters read as commonplace words are complete texts within themselves; and where the eye lands, there the narrative begins. The Chronicles of Nod are intended to demonstrate that biblical accounts, by means of the letters in which they are written, tell the same story, over and over again in ways none of us would dare suggest if it could not be demonstrated to be true.

By using standard etymology, gematria, and ordinal numerology that call for symbolic interpretation, and by including occasional commentary drawn from checksums that include all of these elements, this text will validate its postulations. The checksums for any word add rich interpretation to its etymological profile, but few examples are given in this work. More are available elsewhere.

There is a unified approach to Oracular Torah, and the Nag-Hammadi quote is most instructive. As suggested, its author may well have been a disciple of Y'shua, the Essene Teacher of Righteousness. Translation of the text is awkward, but the passion in the man's words is apparent, as is his sincerity. The excerpt of the Gospel of Truth brings to mind the words Y'shua spoke to his disciples after his conversation with the woman from Shomron at Ya'akov's well: "I have food to eat you know not of."

Without doubt, Y'shua was speaking of more than the Torah emblems he had studied in his native Galilee when he taught that he had food of which his disciples had no knowledge. He was speaking, in part, of nourishment the Father's guidance provided him by means of the Moses Script, which the establishment of Judea had "outgrown."

Expressed more clearly, Y'shua was speaking of the direct counsel he received fin silent interaction with the Father: nourishment that was not derived from scripture at all, but from personal congress with God's Spirit in the hour of need. He reported that the Father taught him what to say and when to say it. A servant open to the right and the left as both the light and the lamp—all dualism within him contributed to the seamless colloquy of his heart and mind in the Spirit of One, as wheels turned within wheels.

Endless wonders remain to be discovered within Torah, therefore; for the Tree 𐤏𐤑 of Lives 𐤌𐤉𐤌𐤄, so integral to the narrative, has twelve manners of fruit, which appear in their seasons—in their times. In a literal sense, those times are pressing upon us in the budding foliage of the Crown Diamond diagram; for that pattern is a full expression of the logic in display within HaShem's Word.

The divine language of oracular Torah is the key to knowledge. Never forgotten by men of great learning, it was simply shelved. It was not proprietary—it had its histories within the nations of Pharoah's lands, and it had fallen to disuse on Earth, except within Y'shua's Galilee.

With the turn of that age, its use faded there, also; but nevertheless, it survives today within isolated communities of rural Yemen in the war-torn Saudi Peninsula, where it is known as Ancient Arabic. The times of Heaven and Earth may pass away, but not the word of witness written by Moshe or the affirmative Word of Yahushua 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏, HaShem's Shout, which was articulated by the small voice of Y'shua, or by the call to mercy that came by the prophet Mohammed.

We can continue to idolize the received text of the Masoretes or of some translation of that first, formal translation into spoken Hebrew. Highly stylized, Aramaic is like a secret code not meant for outsiders. The oracular text is, by far, the better choice, and the discoveries at Qumran prepare the path to its recovery. A deeper commitment is needed, however; for HaShem answers before we call, by means of the issues he is raising in our minds.

The teaching at John 5:39 is the anchoring instruction for the best choice concerning the written word: "Search the scriptures; for in them you think you have eternal life; and these are they that testify of me." The silent voice of HaShem invites communion within the prayer closet to discuss issues that the day will raise upon our paths. At one with the Spirit when we close the door, we prepare for HaShem to direct our steps.

Should your mind insist upon choosing the subject and the path of prayer, it's because you forgot to shut the door; for to "shut the door" is to assume the posture of yoga, emptying yourself of all but the inward reality. There is no struggle. The quality of yoga is not strained, as a guru once said. If an issue appears in your mind, challenge it. If it remains, it is there by the sufferage of HaShem. Prayer is the commitment to maintain conscious communion with the nameless Presence, as it is found. It is open to discovery when the door to all extraneous issues has been closed.

Prayer is not the impudence of hurling words at the Chief of the Cosmos in order to obtain a result. If we shut the door to the prayer closet properly, those concerns were locked away on the other side. Shutting the inward door to all but the Presence prepares us to live at rest in the moment—to abide in the Vine of Being: to reclaim our essential unity in HaShem; for 𐤀𐤉𐤀𐤆 is one 𐤀𐤉𐤀𐤆. We are not asked to abandon our essence. We are asked to rediscover it; for we are One with HaShem, even as Y'shua walked among us as One in Yahushua, the Projection of HaShem.

There is no audacity in the desire for unity. We do not intrude upon the Presence; for it is already within us all. Dusty feet do not offend. Whatever the state of the petitioner, it is the pleasure of HaShem to open the doors to all who knock with sincerity. Why should he not? While we are yet in offense, HaMashiyach stands at the door of our hearts, knocking to gain our attention. To enter the prayer closet and to shut the door is to establish liaison.

The Lord's Prayer, as written in the gospels, is given to reinforce the parameters of effective conversational prayer. At "Amen," it's time to listen. Inventive phrasing will not speed a response. All things that come to your mind—even bristling silence—have been put there by HaShem. Your thoughts are the answer he gives before you call. Listen to them.

There's no need to recite. The Spirit knows every nuance of your reactive thoughts at every turn on every level. Allow the Spirit to walk you through the ramifications of the chatter that grabs for your attention, taking note of odd topic changes; for they will be connected to the essential point of the conversation in some important way. If you can't properly guage connection, that's a data point in your prayer. Listen.

Evenings come before mornings; and in the cool of the evenings, we walked with God, conversing in the language of Heaven. Before the Fall to Earth where we live and die as man, the dialects of speech had not yet appeared; for we had not fallen. We were the Elim—the divine sparks 𐤀 in the blood 𐤃𐤌 of Adam 𐤀𐤃𐤌 before the separation of Eve.

Mortal vulnerability was quiescent, and the quaver it would later impart to mankind had not yet touched us. Nevertheless, all we who passed from the eternal realm into the newly formed temporal realm at the invitation of HaShem on the first of days of the Creation were touched by an existential shudder that gives our spirits pause, even now.

In the process of differentiation—in which the holy Father emptied himself of himself, showing the way—we who were expressed by becoming empty of the essence we had known sensed not freedom, but a compression—almost a constriction. We had known as we were known, but differentiation gave rise to a desire—no, a need—that we should understand, as well.

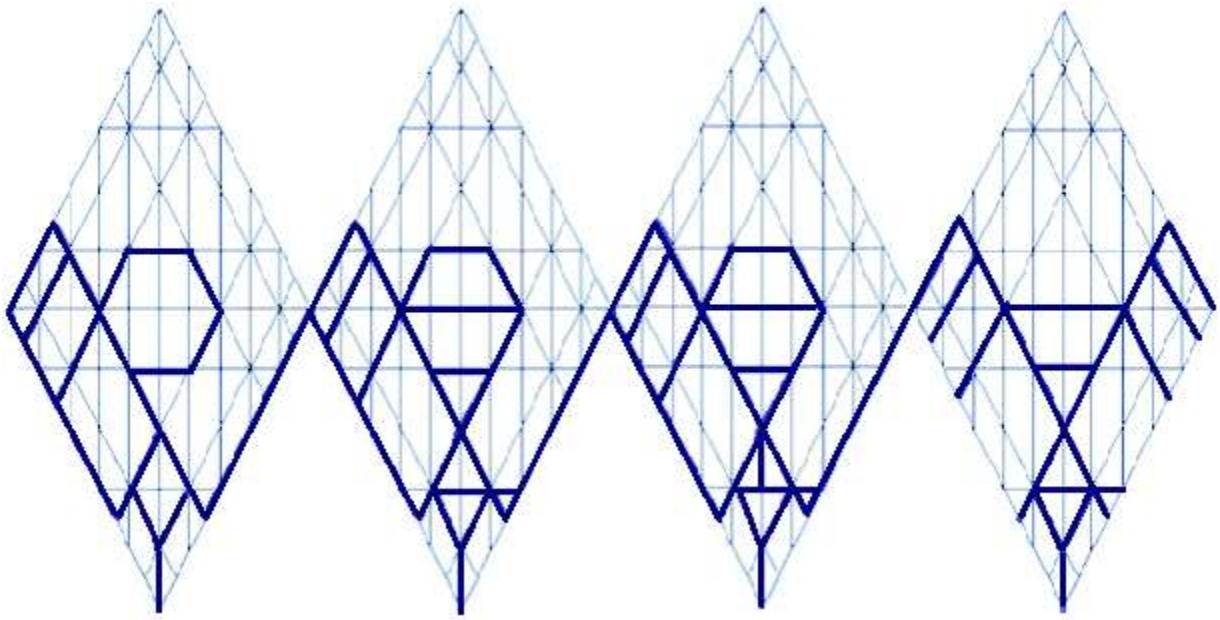

We were learning in the experience of virtual separation. We became as though insulated from the vital connection we had enjoyed as One in HaShem. The Presence of which we were part was not lost to us, but it had become distanced, veiled. Creation became binary: the distancing of the Unified Presence was one as projected and two as received.

These intervals were the first cubits, and they circled within and about us in accordance with every perception, impacting our thoughts, which had become satellites of our essence. One cubit was the mind of heart; the other, the mind of the brainpan, and our intermittent awareness of their expressions served as spokes in the immense wheels of consciousness. Every turn increased our sense of isolation as defined thought reached the limits of our minds. In the signs of the material world, these cubits were represented by the sun and the moon.

We had known satisfaction in the eternal, and we were being taught the virtue of patience in the temporal. Differentiation had given our thoughts a sense of trajectory, and its reward was a more subtle satisfaction; for it held intrigue. As each of us thought within the trajectory of his projection in Yahushua, communal vistas were opening before us; and patience produced an optimal flow of energies as they synchronized with the measured cubits as we ran our souls back and forth on the strings of our spirits, leading to the symphonies and mad cacophonies of children let loose upon the playground of planet Earth.

The linear trajectory—the path—through the veils that revolved around us as the strings of our spirits raced to Earth, established the sense of spiral, and our minds were as fires reaching for the substance in the spirals of thought and experience, seeking the warmth of compatibility or the finality of conflagration. Wee would be blessed or injured by virtue of our differentiations, and we were capable of controlling almost nothing.

We understood that our the momentum carried within our essence would bear its fruits in destinations we could not presently foresee. We therefore became subject to unease because we sensed that events were happening of which we were unaware and about which we could do nothing. We tasted death by faithlessness, and we were touched by a perverse satisfaction in our survival.

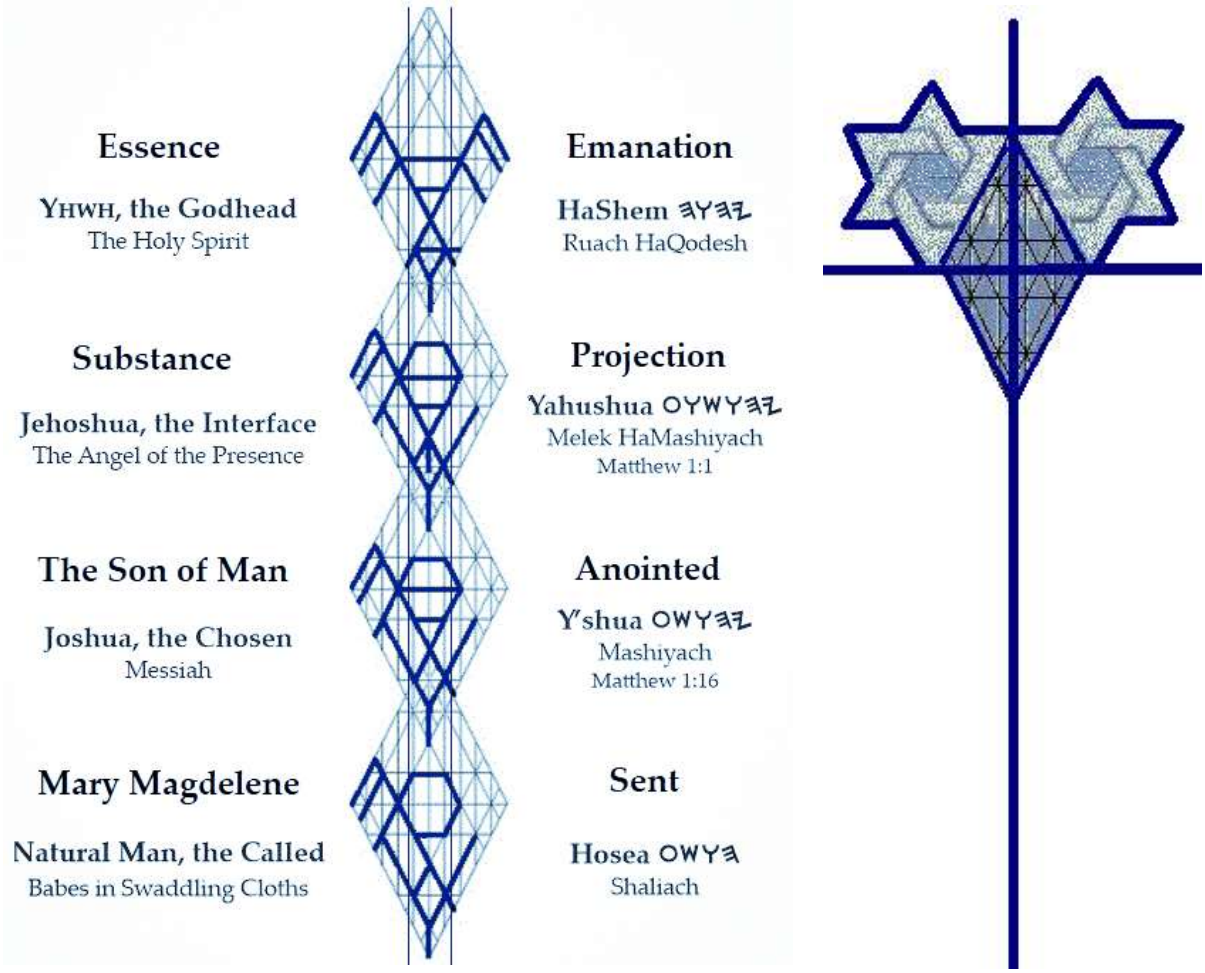

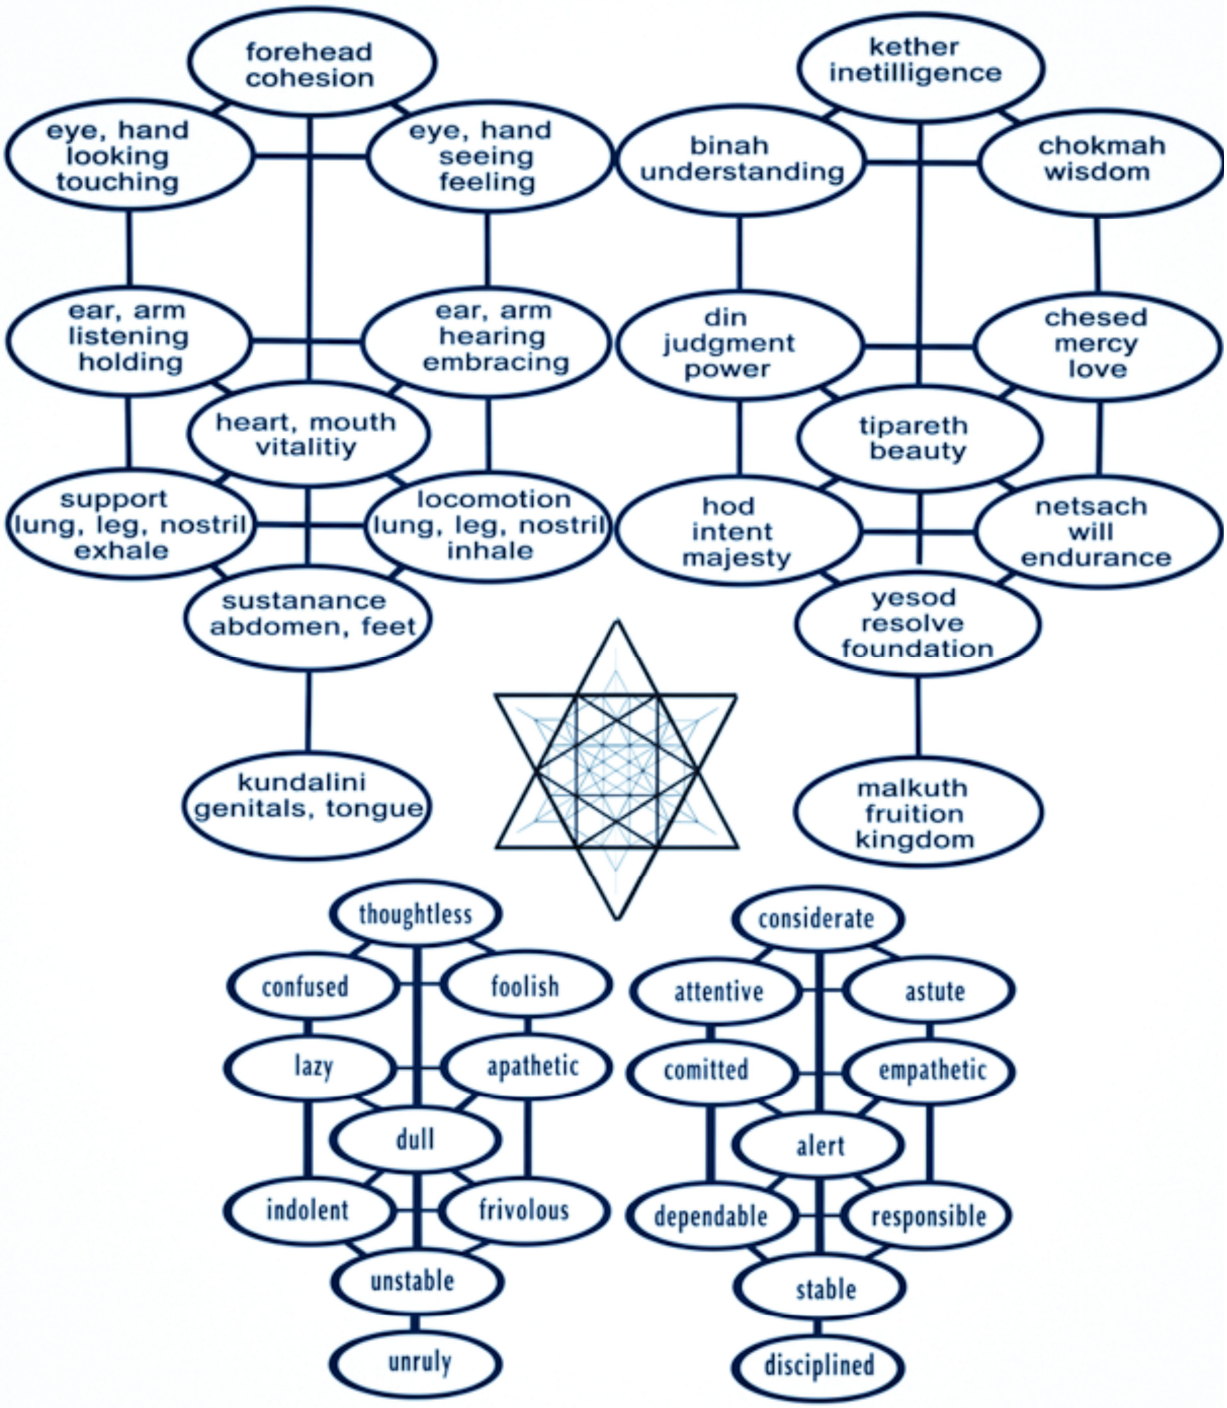

OWYƎ	OWYƎZ	OYWYƎZ	ƎYƎZ
Hosea	Y'shua	Yahushua	HaShem
Hoshea	OYWZ	Jehoshua	YHWH
Oshea	Yehsua	Joshua	Yahweh
Osee	Joshua, Jesus	Jesus	Lord God

An expanse was forming as the differentiations of our spirits became established reality. There was friction between what we had been and what we were becoming, and we became confused. We did not realize that the friction that tore at the seams of our consciousness was caused by inertia, and not by any substantial essence or thing.

We had been projected with a sense of identity; and because we imagined ourselves to be separate from the unity by which we were projected, we imagined that inertia was a differentiation of someone of some thing; and the friction seemed to wrap more tightly about us, the sensation intensified by the persistent illusion of separation. The conflicting passions of these misapprehensions generated the kinetic energies of the material plane, and we were issued into the temporal realm through primordial Adam and Eve as the showering sparks of humanity.

Loosed within the molecules of Earth, we felt lost, even to ourselves; and we needed an interface to establish equilibrium by restoring the dynamics of which we had been a part. With perfected perspectives, we would be armed against future difficulties; for that which we had known was being enlisted to clarify that which we needed to understand.

Yes, there it was: understanding! We couldn't explain its shape or convey its weight, but we could feel it, if that's the right word: we could almost see it! It would enter at our eyes and pool within our hearts. We would be aware of its presence, but we would not be able to express it. Our grounded experience should clothe it, rightly or wrongly, depending on the focus of our minds. Its undergarment is hope; for its essence presses upon us as a Presence.

We had been projected from the Eden that is above, and its contours were fading from conscious thought. Ever more forgetful of our measurement in HaShem as we approached Earth, how could we be could we be reconciled to that from which we were descending, except an interface be provided? We would surely be lost without an interface to bridge the gap—the firmament—the cubit that tied us to HaShem.

In the eternal realm, knowledge had been enough: there had been no need for the sing-song languages tied to caravans of understanding. We knew. We did not know separately, but as One. Reality was measured by knowing, not by reflecting on that which was known, and consciousness was a dance of affirmation as matters came to mind. Conversation, with the pleasures and the burdens of its words, was unknown.

Trapped in time, we learned that language would be a consequence of differentiation; and speech was discovered when we awakened in the mortal sphere of the temporal realm, just past the threshold of incarnation. While taking our rest in the fires of in the immortal sphere of the temporal realm, the whispers of consonants wore at our minds, like a burr beneath the saddle. It took the added heft of Earth dust to amplify the scratches of sound into the vowels of speech. As we emured the irritation, we found that consonants had cataloged our knowledge; vowels would index our understandings.

Speech was among Adam's gifts. He is known in the immortal sphere of the temporal as Adam 𐤀𐤃𐤌, the Giver of Names; for he was empowered 𐤌 to name 𐤃 the attributes of Wisdom 𐤉, which is to say that he was blessed with the ability to verbalize Wisdom's reflection in the things that are made.

Words are the bodies of thought: they are the tombs of stillborn understandings, and they give up their dead when they are set upon by the dawning of God's light. A cubit sits atop our tongues; and when it has been properly measured, the darkness of evening cannot prevail. There is a cubit between darkness and light: the evening and the morning star are revealed as faces of God's love. Time is a trap that distorts reality by its revelations. HaShem joins together the sticks of the cubits as hoops that form cisterns that fill with Essence.

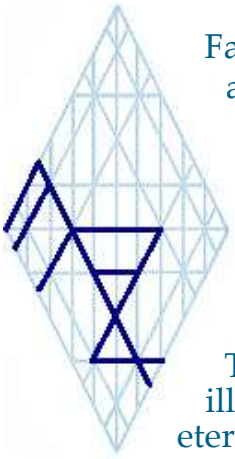

All who suffer implacable remorse from the falling away drink of the cup that has been prepared for Esau, who is Edom 𐤀𐤃𐤌, the interim Adam 𐤀𐤃𐤌 that is sacrificed 𐤉 from the foundations of the world. The cup prepared for Edom has potions that separate the loose-end cubits of the mortal soul from the intervals of immortality that became tangled in the quagmire into which Edom had fallen.

The cup prepared for Esau is extended as mercy, not in punishment. HaShem does all things well, and those that fall short of their fullest measurement are cast into the bottomless. There is no despair in Heaven; for the bottomless is the wellspring of love in the heart of Hashem. It contains Living Water, and all who drink of its mercy are renewed within the bottomless Waters of Life. That which offends will be utterly washed away, becoming as though it had never been; and the crippled soul will not be found as Edom's essence is revived. s they see and without as they are seen.

HaShem knows how to reclaim, and he has no will that any should perish. He is not without power, after all. In the fullness of the temporal, therefore, none is lost but the husk of that which we are becoming. Some have thicker shells than others; but mercy endures, and grace is sufficient to meet need. Among all the attributes of HaShem reflected in differentiation, mercy shines the brightest. It is the sheen of glory that conveys the promise of the Father's rest.

Mercy is the base attribute of HaShem within differentiation; for our Father determined to be known as the Creator. A potter at his wheel, Father 𐤀𐤆 trims the clay, just so; and if imperfection is encountered, the clay is recast, and in the hands of HaShem when the wheel shall come to rest, error will become as though it never had been.

Creation does not exist in the eternal realm; for creations require beginnings.However, equal to the task of finding a way for knowing to become, also, known, our Father therefore became more by becoming, also, less. The emanation of HaShem found projection into the traps of time. When the aperture was discovered, divine Essence streamed without into the temporal without causing depletion within the source.

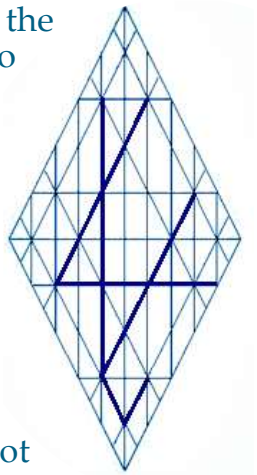

Father 𐤀𐤆 sacrificed his Essence in the eternal, so that his image and likeness would be projected into the temporal, where it descended to the throne of time by emanation, as HaShem's Essence was projected into the void. Timelessness, which exists, streamed into time, which seems to exist;; and the Creator appeared as the Ancient of Days; for in sacrificing the eternal to serve the temporal, the Infinite One became more by establishing, embracing, and enlarging finite parameters.

There was reason for this sacrifice. The cycles of time are an illusory aspect of the temporal. All things are forever known in the eternal; for all things testify of the fullness of HaShem and the majesty of his ways. All things are forever known; but through the sacrifice of differentiation, Father 𐤀𐤁 emptied himself of his powers and attributes, determined to bring understanding to bear on elements of the eternal that had only been known.

We all have a sense of the meaning of the of title "God," but there is no prevailing meaning that most can accept. Etymology is frustrated; and in consequence, people participate in discussions of God without reaching a consensus about definition. Lengthy discussions unfold with subliminal confusion, however carefully its sincere participants choose their words. For the dawning of the Everlasting Realm, root definitions must advance the collective understanding.

The root contours of the core word rendered into scripture as "God" are illustrated by its positioning on the Crown Diamond diagram, whose meanings are open to all because its symbolism is universal. The emblems of Paleo translate themselves under patient inquiry, whatever the language of man or the argumentative issues of speech. To hasten that day, the spirit of HaShem provides counsel when time traps bite down on discovery—giving a hint, here; a nudge, there.

This illustration maps the root word 𐤀𐤋 as written in the Moses script. God is infinite and formless—yes, God is a spirit—but the emblem speaks of a spirit that has salient characteristics. Readings of 𐤀𐤋 are driven by the shape of its letters. Meaningful discussion is possible by taking advantage of the freedom in this standard: God is the invisible power 𐤀 that guides us 𐤋; the principles 𐤀 that drive us 𐤋. God is the root concept 𐤀 of which we must learn 𐤋; for the Lord 𐤀 of antiquity 𐤋 is an interactive 𐤀 guide 𐤋. The; the watchful 𐤀 shepherd 𐤋, God is 𐤀 perceived 𐤀 as the essence 𐤀 of the elders 𐤋.

These readings of the Paleo root 𐤀𐤋 demonstrates the contribution of this approach to interpretation. Its readings offer the same understandings in all languages because the emblems are universal symbols. No single reading can be authoritative. If one is consistently preferred above all others, it represents an idolatrous line of thought because the root language is oracular by design, and wide-ranging meanings are intended. A definition can be specific within a context, but no definition should ever be definitive. This applies to every word written in the language of Heaven.

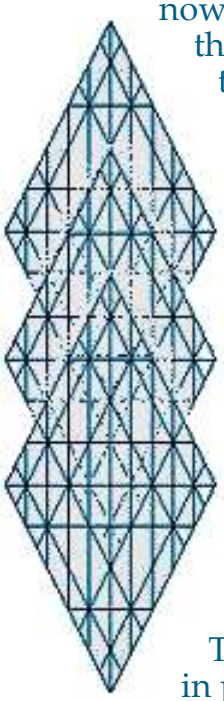

The emblems are representative of the design of Creation, and interpretations hover about each word like electrons circling the orbitals surrounding an atomic nucleus. Interpretations are intended to pile against each other—just as atoms pile against each other to form molecules, then compounds, then structures, then organisms. Concepts wed with concepts to build understandings that are cumulative, not exclusive. Like sub-atomic particles, the emblems point to the overriding understanding of Truth as principle. Each word, under consideration, is as a hub; and understandings that ride upon it are as data points as wheels turn within wheels.

Within the emanation of the Elim of Elohim at the creation of the temporal realm, we followed the lead of the Logos. A perfect representative of the Pattern, the Logos is called the Light Bearer; and when he intruded upon the temporal, his crown pierced the spider-web veils of inertia within the void. The subsequent phenomenom of resistance was seen as adversarial, in that it generated heat, which dissipated as showers of sparks that scattered throughout the void, seeding the newly-formed temporal realm with sacred tokens of the eternal.

The Logos is the covering cherub; and by his lead, we filled our places in the temporal's immortal sphere, which is close by the eternal as that measure of distance goes. The flames generated by the weak resistance of inertia became our first forms: we filled them and possessed them to document the moments of the Realm of Names.

The tongues of fire stabilized as embers within the temporal's immortal sphere, where the hosts of heaven congregated in the throne room's Lake of Fire, pooling before the dias of Heaven's throne. We had become, and we now are, the immortal tongues of fire the scriptures call the worms that do not perish. We worship HaShem as we bathe in its transformative fire; and, from time to time some of us venture forth to incarnate on Earth, for the life on Earth flares up from the holy Lake of Fire, and those who incarnate are tethered from within the lake, and their faces do always behold the faces of HaShem visible in the Angel of the Presence, which is Yahushua, the Light Bearer: the Shout of Hashem.

Feeding off each other in the Lake of Fire, we delved into prospects and strategies, searching out the risks and weighing liabilities, should we incarnate—not only for ourselves, but for those with whom we would interact. It was foolish speculation that called for repentance, but we were facing things to which we had never given previous thought. Choice was a grave new responsibility, and not all of us would choose to incarnate.

The heavens are not clean in the sight of HaShem. Creation is still in progress. Mercy will not have an end in the eternal. Grace will always be sufficient; but it had become clear that we could fail; and failure, itself, was a new thought among the Elim, the caterpillars of Heaven. We had come from the eternal to add understanding to what had been known, and the individuality that came with form could be misconstrued as self-sufficiency. Were we to become separated from the Lake of Fire, we would become like pellets of immortal charcoal.

The mortal sphere of the temporal realm is buffered from its immortal sphere. The firmament from the eternal to the immortal is vast, and the firmament from the immortal to the mortal is a little less imposing. They are greater and lesser cubits that stabilize the cores of divine flames, offering both distancing and protection.

Were it possible for the cubits dysfunctional, we would be extinguished. The cubits are the inhale and the exhale of the Breath of Life. Were the cubits to exceed their functions, the fires of Heaven would ravish the mortal sphere of the temporal, and the cords that pool in the golden bowls of those who go forth to live and die as man would be severed, and they would have an untimely return. The firmament ot Earth is designed to protect against this vulnerability; for life flourishes when order is preserved as the Wheel of Life revolves with its satellite systems of wheels turning within wheels.

The temporal's mortal sphere is located in the region of the void that had been known as "the Face of the Deep." The bands of inertia are the pheromones that were generated as the Father hovered over the Waters of Life. Except for palpable potentiality, they had no features; but as the Father hovered hard against the Deep, the potentials had been perceived. Satisfied with the substance of its welcome above the Deep, HaShem had determined that he would build the Hierarchies of Light, the Kingdom of Light, the Kingdom of Heaven and of God, the Realm of Names.

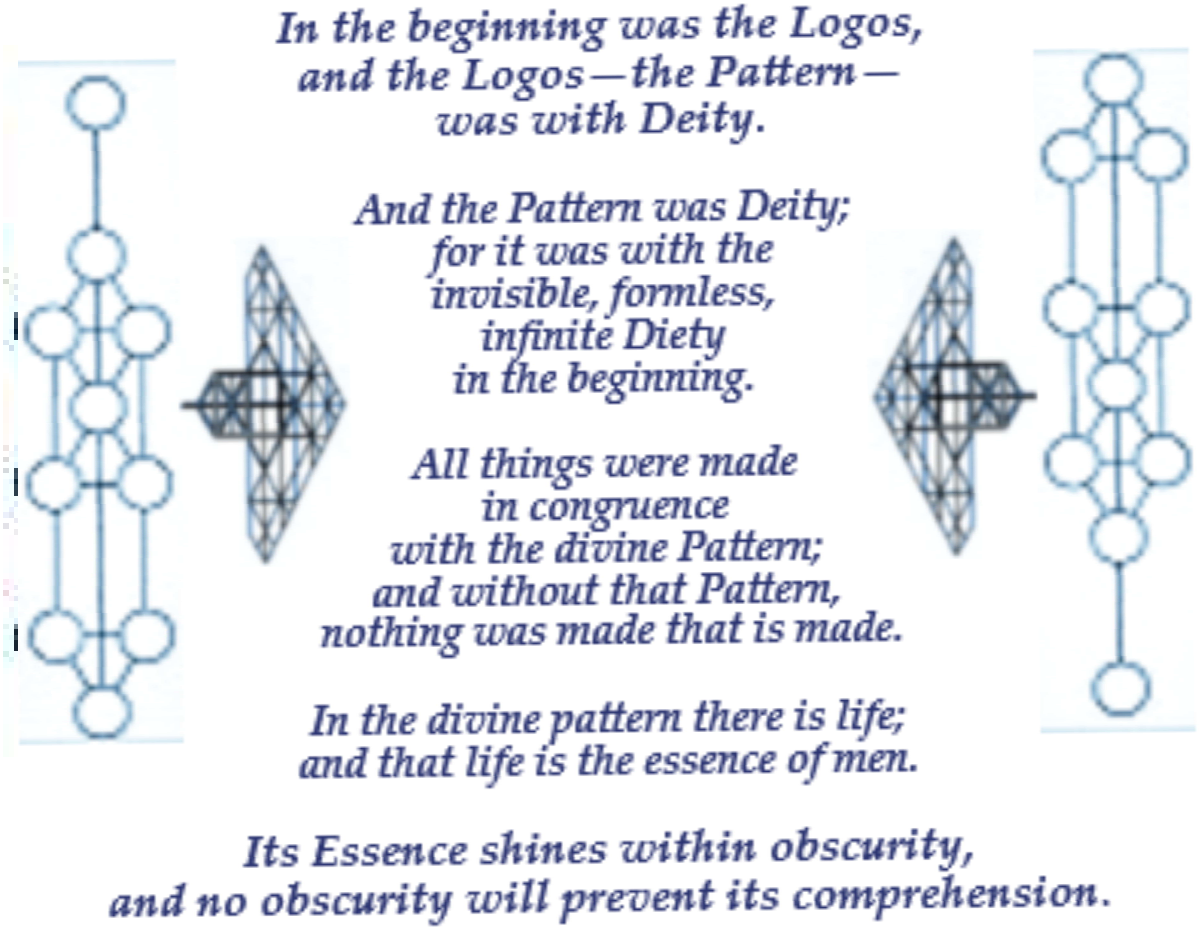

The Elim are as God's children: before their differentiation, they were among the Elohim; and as they emanated from the source, they were not forgotten; they are remembered as heirs of the eternal God. These things were known and understood by the Elohim; whereas, within from within the Elohim, they were known by the Elim, but they were not understood. When they emanated from the eternal in transit to the mortal sphere of the temporal realm, they would require a resting place where they could make sure of their acclimation. That place is the immortal sphere of the temporal realm, where the hosts of Heaven and Earth remain united as One.

The Elim that choose to incarnate and tabernacle with the primordial fire seeded by the Light Bearer inhabit forms that are drawn from the dynamics of Creation. Thir earthly orms are double portions of the fire forms of the Elim who elect to remain in the immoral sphere as functionaries within the throne room of the Realm of Names.

Those who migrated to the mortal sphere through incarnation did not lose their presence in the temporal's immoral sphere. Further, all Elim who were projected from the eternal realm into the temporal retained their spiritual root in the eternal. The eternal was not depleted by that which was projected; for it was replication of the eternal essence, and its fullness would remain hidden within the Elohim until the feast of perfection, which is part of the celebrations of bridal festivities. The incarnated Elim are rooted in the eternal, and that root is extended to Earth and reaches backwards through the immortal to the eternal. These roots are cubits, equivalencies.

The immortal fire bodies men call angels are forms that serve as envelopes into which we entrust our essences as we enter the temporal from the eternal realm. We had known life in HaShem, but we had not known being; for by definition, a being is one set apart from all others. As Elim we had been as sequentials within a collective, but degrees of separation were not understood until our projection into the temporal.

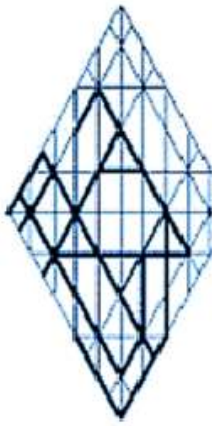

The Logos is called the Light Bearer because the Deep had resisted the disruption of routine and process that came when the fire of Elohim had hovered over the Waters of Life. In Creation, such resistance is understood as surface tension. When it is disrupted, the floodgates open. The Deep had diligently maintained the void with the seal of inertia, which plied its quiescent force inobtrusively against every intimate advance. The Father's insistent hovering had broken down the walls of separation, and their ruins became the bands of interference called stumbling blocks in scripture.

The void was losing ground to order by every consideration; for lands were already separating from the seas, and single-celled creatures were nodding at the edges of potentiality, searching for substance into which they could release the vibrations that were building within them and changing their shapes.

A new thing was coming, a great thing, indeed! The Father had determined to make a short work of the first moments of Creation, and a Garden was planted far in the East, before the appearance of Light. HaShem had pre-filled the mortal realm of the temporal with all manner of creatures, and he had turned his attention to making a creature after his own image and likeness, with whom he could share the import of his substance.

He would call the man he made 𐤌𐤃𐤀, which would be "Adam" in the languages of Western man 𐤌𐤃𐤀. HaShem invested the Fire of Life 𐤀 into the man's bloodstream 𐤌𐤃. Blood 𐤌𐤃 is the heart's 𐤃 fluid 𐤌, and its engine would deliver life's waters to the entire organism by means of the metabolism. And as the heart rests in the center of man, so 𐤃𐤏𐤍𐤌𐤉—the Garden of Eden—became the center of Earth. It was an enclave of great pleasures. Some, in the East, would call it Nirvana.

All things in the mortal have their corollaries in the immortal, even as the immortal is a revisitation of the eternal. It is correctly said, "As below, so above;" but the equation is not yet resolved, because it shall also be said, "As above, so below." For this reason the prayer of the Anointed includes the saying, "Allow your kingdom to come, your will to be done: on Earth as it is in Heaven."

Earth is a little lower: the fires on Earth are a little cooler, but the mortal sphere of the temporal bears the full bandwidth of all higher spheres through the insulating properties of physical form. Heaven is centered in the immortal sphere of the temporal realm. Earth grabs the heel of the immortal sphere and its tenacity is among the reasons the Eternal One will welcome mankind into the realm of Life Everlasting.

The immortal angels will celebrate man's victory over mortality. It's greedy head will be trampled beneath their feet in the muddy trail made passable by the example of the anointed servant Y'shua, who made 𐤆 the Projection 𐤇 of Yah 𐤇𐤆 visible to all. Each manifestation of Life Everlasting will become visible in its order through the miracle of incarnation. As rounds are completed in the footsteps of the King, the holy armies will join him where he is, but not as soldiers. They are more than conquerors, and they join him as friends.

When HaShem fashioned Adam 𐤀𐤃𐤌, the first man 𐤀𐤃𐤌, from the dust 𐤀𐤀𐤃𐤌 of the temporal's mortal sphere, the current of heavenly fire was amplified 𐤀 by its transmutation from sphere to sphere; and the holy ember 𐤌 invested within Adam's blood 𐤀𐤃 intensified when it was fanned by the Breath of Life.

It was not good for the man to be alone; for the divine essence had no outlet, and the dynamics of inertia prevail within closed systems. The man—this lamp of Heaven—had need of a helpmate; and at a convenient time, the Father would cause Adam to sleep. There was evening, and fire would be drawn from fire in the morning.

Adam 𐤀𐤃𐤌 was among the Elim 𐤀𐤋𐤌 of the eternal Elohim 𐤀𐤋𐤀𐤌; but he sacrificed that reality by agreeing to become less. An immortal, his eternal essence was hidden within the manifestation of heavenly fire, which bathes initial forms.

Separating himself, even from the Elim, Adam was the first to accept the challenges that would face all those who agreed to lay down their immortality to serve the Father of Souls in the temporal, by investing their essences in the temporal's mortal sphere. He would persist in this pattern of self-sacrifice: he would lay down his mortal life on Earth as readily as he had laid down his immortality in Heaven and his divinity in the eternal realm. Overcoming dependence on the security he had left behind, he would also overcome the insecurity he would face on Earth; and he would be rewarded with rebirth in the everlasting realm.

He had been an eternal spirit, an Elim among the Elohim; and at the Father's invitation, he laid down divinity to become an angelic creature of heavenly fire, that he might serve the Creator in the formation and operation of the worlds answering to the Realm of Names in the Kingdom of HaShem 𐤀𐤉𐤀𐤋.

He was among the imperishable tongues of fire called the worms that perish not. His life was still rooted in the realm of eternal Spirit, but there would be no going back. Had he so chosen, he could have remained as an angelic dragon forever: he was immortal; and none could deny him life, even if he should he rebel and seek his own course apart from the will of Heaven.

He was immortal, but he chose to lay that life aside at the Father's call for volunteers to take up life in the mortal realm. Immortality would accompany all who chose to go to Earth, but any doing so would be vulnerable. All would be free to disobey Heaven's rule for any reason or for no reason. If such a decision were defensible, its reasons for justification would not avert the punishment for disobedience, which was death. Adam had faith that perseverence in the service of Truth would lead to justification upon death in the temporal, after which everlasting mercy would intervene.

Adam, alone, had volunteered. He looked forward from the eternal and backward from the immortal, and there was no one willing to stand with him as he stood naked before the hosts of Heaven. He was alone, but within his heart he heard—perhaps it was his own voice; perhaps, another's; he couldn't say—he heard the words, "Take me. I will go with you." The Father's call for volunteers had turned him into a fulcrum, and the inward voice was the lever he needed to make his decision and take his oath; and so, he had bowed before the Angel of the Presence that sits upon the Father's throne and had said, "Send me. I go with you."

Before he could swallow, he found himself in the enclave on Earth called the Garden of Eden. There was much to do, and as the times of Earth began to unfold, he tended the Garden each day and walked with the Angel of the Presence each evening, at which times they would discuss Adam's observations and his concerns. He had shown dedicated as an Elim and as a worm of imperishable fire. He would be a dedicated student as a man, as well. There would be no equivocation: he would obey and he would learn; for his love of HaShem was profound.

In due course, the Angel of the Father's Presence took spittle of Living Water and molded it with the dust of Earth to form Adam's physical body. As a man, he would be subject to mortality, irrespective of obedience or disobedience; for a creature of dust can accomodate only limited exposure to heavenly fire without succumbing to combustion. His fathers would reclaim the faces of his life on Earth by means of the very metabolism that sustained his physical life. He would perish from internal combustion, over time.

Adam's essence was strengthening because he believed his life was a service, not a possession. He was becoming a hologram within an invisible dream that could be discerned only within the theater of Earth. As he thought of that of that one evening, the angel with whom he walked asked him, "Where is your mother and your brothers?"

He had never felt alone until that question had come. It began to chase him from task to task. It haunted him by night, eating at his heart until, finally, he remembered the words he had heard, "Take me. I will go with you." Others might have found solace in the memory, but Adam suffered grief for which he could find no answer.

In his walk that evening, the conversation had skirted this despair; and as they reached a moment of silence, Adam noticed that the angel was smiling. The pause in their talk was ended with the words, "Take heart, my friend; it is not good for you to remain on your own." Adam believed that his turmoil would be resolved; and when their discussion resumed, Adam had agreed to become a living soul. His immortal and mortal natures would be fused together. He would become a human being.

He understood that, in making the committment, he would also be committed to life on Earth. Except for his walks of an evening, the immortal sphere of the temporal realm would be far distant from his life on Earth. His agreement to become earthbound had earned him prescious ambience with the Breath that had drawn him from the Living Waters of the Deep; and when Adam awakened from the deep sleep that preceded his new reality, he had become the future of the cosmos.

Time is a trap. I have written much about the creation narrative, here and elsewhere; and I shall add more. When the man and his wife first settled in Nod, after the Fall, and began to raise their children, the families of Adam and of Cain were of one language and one speech. This was the language Adam had learned in the evening walks within the Garden of Bliss, and it was a greatly treasured jewel that held great power.

The threat of that jewel in the hands of an errant humanity concerned the angels charged with protecting the path back to Eden, and they were given license to intervene. They began flashing their swords about when whispers of the holy tongue were used on Earth; and lisps of the swordplay mixed with the whispers of men, creating dialects that were harder to understand with each explanation. Confusion wore at the corners of the holy gem, isolating fractals of its overtones and opening the sluices of etymology, along with its trials. The holy tongue was still spoken on Earth, but it was being swallowed by undisciplined usage.

The language of Heaven would remain unsullied in the immortal sphere of the temporal. Its towers would serve destiny, but fractals of those towers fell back to Earth as the languages of man. The dialects of confusion would serve expedience; for they would encourage the formation and migration of tribes among the families of man. Earth would be overspread with civilizations that were spaded. They would not endure.

Not all angels incarnated; and those that remained stationed in the immortal sphere of the temporal realm closely followed the progress of the sons and daughters of man; for the Father had invested the future of the hosts of heaven within mortal man, who circled the throne of heaven on hidden paths between the two spheres of the temporal.

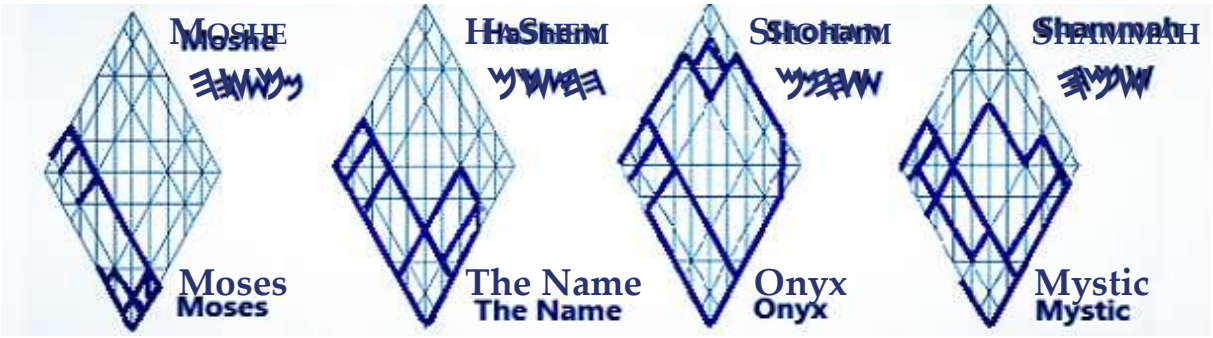

Among the angels, therefore, lowly man was seen either as threat or as promise. Some immortals saw man as fair; others derided man as faulted. In consequence, divisions arose in Heaven concerning man, and bitter war arose over the children of men. The disagreements were of no small matter; for the children of men held the key to the destiny of the heavenly hosts within both spheres, whatever the angelic concensus concerning man.

Before the tree on that fateful morning, Eve had crossed a line. By eating of the lesser tree, she had become more adept at measuring the movements of Heaven. An intervention would be needed to safeguard angelic interests and to preserve the intended function of incarnated man 𐎌𐎀𐎍; for the Light invested in mankind was destined to engage and overcome darkness.

The parable was so profound. Mankind would maintain their bodies by consuming forms, which are thick darkness. Their metabolisms would support a wide range of diets, but a majority of the human race would consume the heavier forms, which the fires of their metabolisms would convert into fuel. By the demands of his appetites, man would favor a diet of darkness over the manna that comes down from Heaven.

Along with the romance languages of the West, all tongues derive from the common language of ancient Egypt, which was carried from tribe to tribe by the traders of the Mediterranean basin, who were the Phoenicians of modern-day Venice. That language is not alphabetical. It's emblematic. It is derived from the geometry of Earth. It's God's language. Let's reclaim it.

There are subtle implications in diagrams of related Torah words. Note in the following anagrams that the geometry for the names "HaShem" and "Moses" share a resonance that differs from the resonance shared by the words for "onyx" and "mystic," terms that refer to conditions.

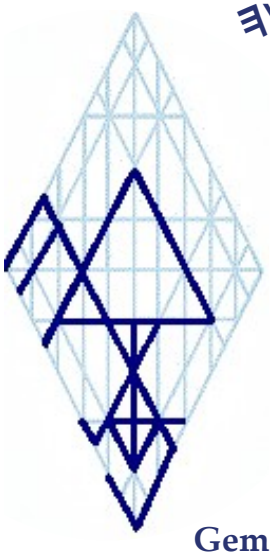

By interpretation: the reflection (Moses) of the Name (HaShem) absorbs its light (onyx) and feeds the mystic experience (Shammah).

Gematria 345 ֵשָׁמ; Ordinal 39 טכ > 12 יב > 3 גּ: Wisdom מ is reflected in the spontaneity ש of life ה. However, we are schooled כ within a collective ט and are intent ב on our personal י pathways ג. Separated, one from another מ, we freely ש explore ה, or else we deny כ, the commonality ט that furnishes ב our souls י with direction ג.

There's a distinction between language and speech. Language is the pattern of a linguistic system, and speech is the utilization of that pattern. For example, meanings can be amplified or mitigated by the art of speech; for what is said has its impact upon and within both hearer and speaker.

Communication is fluid; and, as a rule, Hebrew words have vague meanings. However, when Hebrew words draw spiritual distinctions, English becomes vague by comparison, while etymological Hebrew becomes more precise. For example, though a sense of the relationship is not entirely lost, the proprietary phrase "promised land" differs from the phrase, "land of promise."

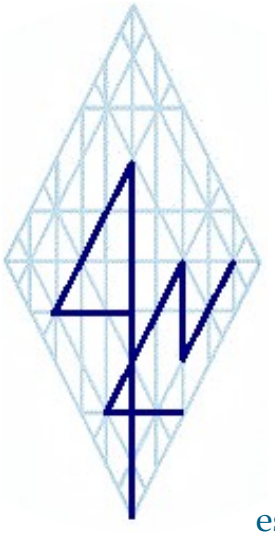

𐤀𐤃𐤌𐤄 adamah אדמה

ground, soil, dirt, earth; a place, a physical context, a material substance;
a farmer, husbandman.

the primary 𐤄 substance 𐤃 for the reflection 𐤌 of light 𐤀; the principal 𐤄 pathway 𐤃 for the waters 𐤌 of life 𐤀; an essential 𐤄 base 𐤃 for counsel 𐤌 and enlightenment 𐤀; the seed's 𐤄 vault 𐤃 into which it invests and releases 𐤌 its life 𐤀; an individual 𐤄 who pays attention 𐤃 to what others 𐤌 reveal 𐤀.

Gematria 50 𐤍; Ordinal 23 𐤗𐤏; Targum: Brimming with potential 𐤍 for fruitful 𐤏 progress 𐤗, the "land" of the human body is a fertile 𐤄 womb 𐤃 for the cleansing waters 𐤌 of life 𐤀.

Lands as Cubits

𐤀𐤓𐤑 eretz ארץ

grounds, country, territory, soil;
a condition, an idea;
the context for essence—for interactive dynamics.

Intentions 𐤄 are governed 𐤁 by righteousness 𐤓 in this theater 𐤄 of personal 𐤁 transformation. It provides the field for victory 𐤓 over injurious 𐤄 indulgences 𐤁 in perverse performance 𐤓. The indwelling 𐤄 messiah 𐤁 will perfect 𐤓 the innermost essence 𐤄, lifting it up 𐤁 through dance 𐤓.

Gematria 291 𐤄𐤓𐤁; Ordinal 39 𐤈𐤆: Be thankful 𐤁 for righteous 𐤓 seed 𐤄. It is of ancient 𐤆 origins 𐤈.

Checksum: The mind 𐤁 is transformed 𐤓 when the source 𐤄 (291 𐤄𐤓𐤁) of holiness 𐤒 delights 𐤓 the soul 𐤋 (192 𐤋𐤓𐤒). One is able to overcome 𐤓 error 𐤗 (93 𐤗𐤓) as he is guided 𐤆 by a synergy 𐤈 (39 𐤈𐤆) that can stimulate 𐤇 the soul 𐤋 (12 𐤋𐤇) as it progresses (3 𐤗).

Targum: The source of life sparks 𐤄 will elevate thought 𐤁 through transformations 𐤓.

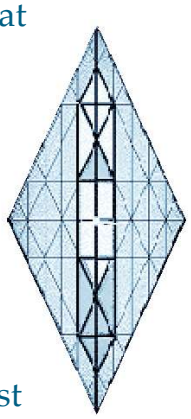

It is commonly taught that the angels guarding the path to Eden are stationed there to prevent access to sinners, and there is truth to that view; but more to the point, the angels are there to preserve the pathway for those whose hearts are doorways that bear the mark of blood drawn from the Passover Lamb: that is to say, that their hearts are doorways whose mantles brim with the Life that is in HaMashiyach, which eclipses the life light within natural man.

The narrow path back to our first home is not blocked by any exterior force. Messiah leads before us on a path that only we can close, and that only through intentional error while childishly rejecting counsel. Such choices present themselves as stumbling blocks that close off the path, temporarily; for the days of error are numbered; and HaShem will see to the maturation of his children. Many are called, but only one of each is chosen. In the end, however, each of God's children will find his way back home. Yes, on behalf of salvation; but, more significantly, for the integrity and glory of the Father's name.

Eden is the story of the age of innocent perfection lost through error. As our present, computerized-and-stubbornly-industrial age comes to its end, crashing upon itself in errors too complex to address, differences within and among peoples have become too complicated to bridge; and yet, we're all just humans.

In consequence of the maniacal powers and principalities of Earth, who are empowered by the errors of the collective, humanity is on the verge of losing all its bearings on even simple questions of principle. Examples are too many to recount, but ancient distortions and prejudices have saturated our thought processes, which have suffered viral infection. The database of the collective subconscious has been corrupted; and distortions have turned the conscious thoughts of even diligent souls into whirling swords that detract from any focused consideration of principle.

We hear a trumpet. It enervates our souls. So what do we do? Do we await instruction about what the trumpeter requires of us? We might: for one, but not for two hesitant seconds! We take the uncomfortable bit of God's counsel between our teeth, and we bray our way into ignominious argumentation with those who heard nothing at all in the first place! The shock of stupidity sends us backwards, and we stumble on, seemingly alone in our struggles. We are desperate to be of some use to Truth, even as we wonder what hope it might offer to those who can perceive nothing of the things we would share: not for their benefit, primarily, but for our justification.

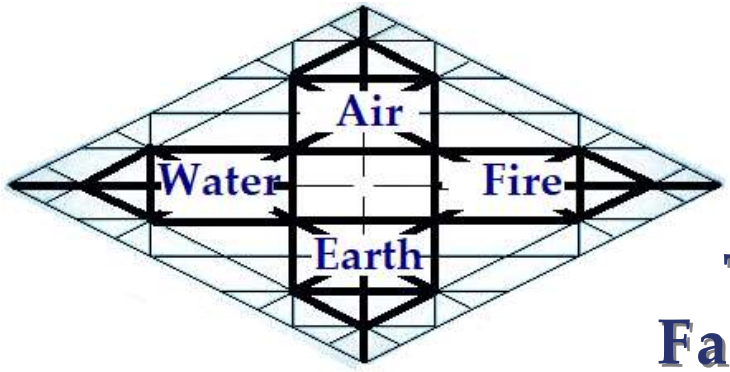

Eden is within each of us. The flimsy walls that block vision of its contours are quilted from seas of erroneous memories and blind surmise. Wheels revolve within wheels. We are yet adrift on the waters of Babylon the Great. We stir ourselves and stumble into our mornings each day, which ring with a hollowness that we can sense but can't explain, and which we don't have time to address: the day is upon us, and we must station ourselves by our own understandings, in preparation for its demands. We do our best, but memories of troubled dreams persist as we shuffle through blurred instants of the day. When we shall fully awaken, emerging, fitfully, from the confusion in which we have floundered for so long by recidivist reasoning—when we awaken, we will be as dreamers who shake away the residue of slumber that pulls at our thoughts. God willing, we'll rebuild the distorted landscapes of the night's dreams.

The invisible things of ℭ𝔄 are seen in the things that are made. The four directions of the physical plane are mirrored in the four orientations of the mind. We characterize time as the past, the present, and the future. They appear This text devotes many words to the four faces of man. As time and physical reality have a minimum of four dimensions, so does man. The body is the outer garment; the soul is the inner garment; the imperishable worm of fire is that which is clothed; and the breath of HaShem is the life and the unity of the organism. For this reason, there are four baptisms: four immersions.

This text devotes many words to the four faces of man. As time and physical reality have a minimum of four dimensions, so does man. The body is the outer garment; the soul is the inner garment; the imperishable worm of fire is that which is clothed; and the breath of HaShem is the life and the unity of the organism. For this reason, there are four baptisms: four immersions.

The Four Faces of Man

Earth — the physical body. It dies. It does not inherit.

Water — the soul. It lives, dies, or is transformed after the judgment that is called the Second Death.

Fire — the angel, the immortal fire worm. It cannot perish. It will be reborn until perfection comes.

Air — Spirit—Breath: the eternal Life of HaShem that is wholly manifested within the faces of Man.

Earth—With his consent, man is buried in Earth unto his release from within the amniotic fluids of the mother's womb at his physical birth.

Water—By choice, man may submit his spirit to symbolic death and burial through water immersion by a spiritual baptist, unto the remission of sin.

Air—Fulfilling all righteousness by the acknowledgment of error, man is born again: he is redeemed within the waters of Earth as a new creature. Accepted into congruence with the Spirit of HaShem, he is welcomed among the elect and is furnished unto all good works: he is charged with sharing the bounty of God's Breath, as he is led by Immanu𐤀𐤋, the indwelling Shepherd.

Fire—Walking among men as did brother Y'shua, man is bathed unto perfection in the Fire of Wisdom. On this path of the cross, the old garments are burned away, replaced by love, the seamless garment of charity.

Undifferentiated Spirit

Air
The Life Force

The Eternal Realm
Ein Sof

The Godhead

HaShem 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄

The Celestial Body

Soul of Living Water

Butterfly
The Tabernacle of 𐤀𐤄𐤀

Immortal Sphere
Of the Temporal Realm

Ezekiel's Temple

Y'shua 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏

Differentiated Spirit

Divine Fire

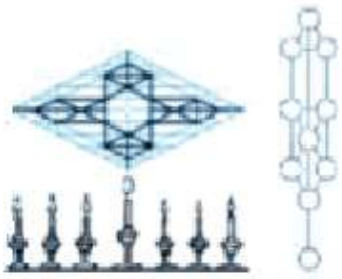

The Angelic Projection
The Caterpillar

Immortal Sphere
Of the Temporal Realm

Kundalini Serpent

Yahushua 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏

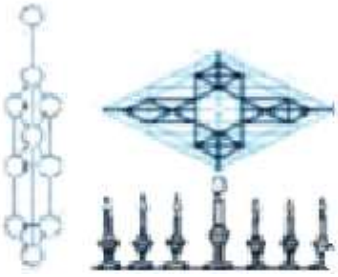

𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏, the Son of Nun

The Cocoon:
Sheath of the Mortal Soul

The Mortal Sphere
Within the Temporal Realm

Earth
The Physical Body

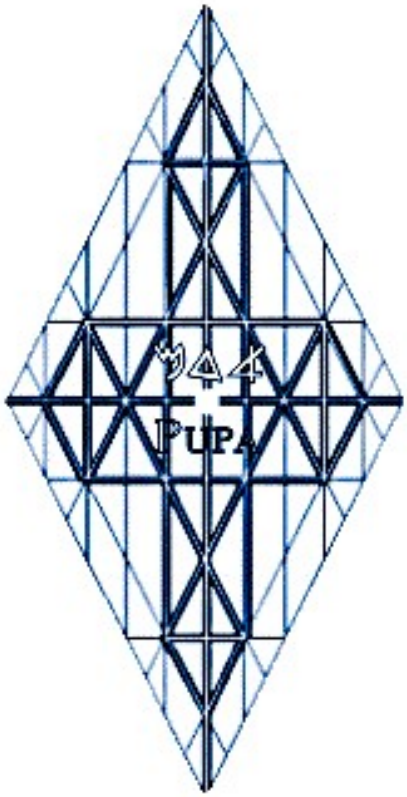

Living Waters

Euphrates — 𐤐𐤓𐤕

Breath of Life — Spirit — Air

HaShem — 𐤄𐤔𐤌 — YHWH

Gihon

𐤂𐤉𐤇𐤍

Celestial Body

Butterfly

Water

𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏

Y'shua, Joshua

Hiddekel

𐤇𐤃𐤒𐤋

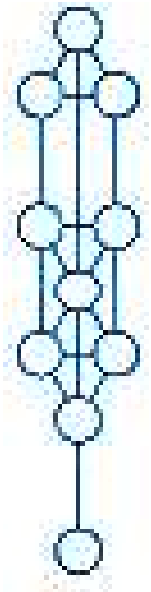

Angel

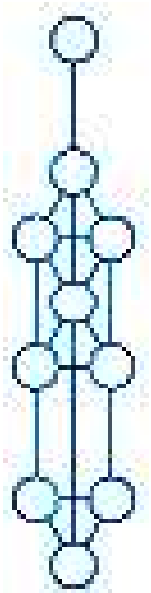

Caterpillar

Fire

𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏

Yahushua, Jehoshua

Pishon — 𐤐𐤉𐤔𐤍

Physical Body — Cocoon — Earth — 𐤀𐤓𐤑

Adam — 𐤀𐤃𐤌 — Man

The Realm of Names:

Sons of God and of Man

In form and in substance, humans are Creation's most exotic caterpillar. The fire-worm's life cycle is a metaphor for the path of man in his circuits between Heaven and Earth. Only a little lower than God's messengers, each of us retains roots among the angelic hosts of Heaven during our incarnations on Earth. We turn the world upside down. Incarnating to live and die as man, angelic worms of Heaven's fire surrender their immortal wings in exchange for mortal bodies, in answer to the call of HaShem and the arc of Wisdom.

We didn't entirely forsake angelic identity when we were sent to Earth to live and die as man. Those things that are below reflect that which is above; and although the gulf between the two spheres of the temporal realm is vast, the connection within the firmament is never lost.

Thus, it is written, "Lo, I am with you always;" for always—even at our worst—the angelic root of the soul is secured in the immortal sphere of the temporal realm, which is called Heaven. With his feet planted firmly upon the Earth, man can draw from the divine fire of his deeper roots in the eternal realm; and the light of that fire strengthens the immortal angel as it gazes continually upon the faces of the Father. When man's spirit, angel, body, and soul stand in unity with the Indwelling Presence, he stands as One with Yahushua HaMashiyach, HaShem's Shout within the Realm of Names.

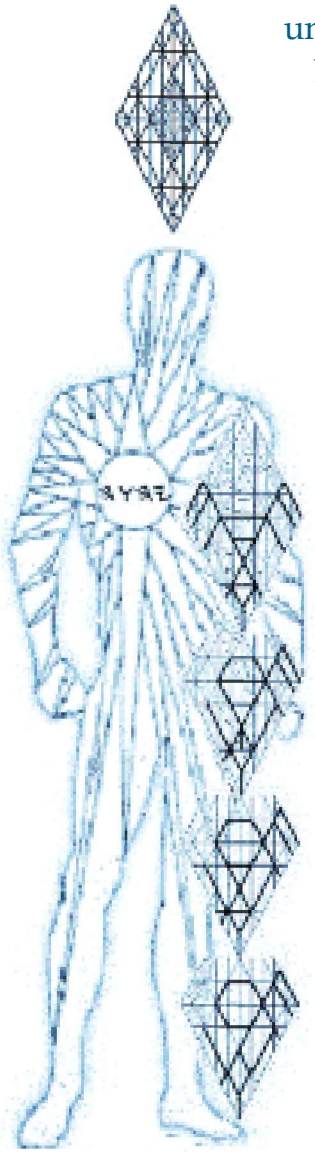

We are worms of heavenly Fire; and we chose to set immortality aside so we could undergo spiritual transformation, which is the purpose for which planet Earth was created. From the emblems of the divine language, we understand that Earth 𐤀𐤓𐤑 is a 𐤑 location that is isolated 𐤓 and under quarantine 𐤀 for the expansion 𐤑 of knowledge 𐤓 through transformations 𐤀.

We are not sent to Earth as punishment for misdeeds, though many are born into punishing environments and lead punishing lives. We are sent to discover our roles as co-workers with the Father in creation of the Realm of Names. We're here to overcome the vestiges of iniquity found in us because of the effects of spiritual inertia. There is no accusation in that; for the heavens are not clean in the sight of the Creator. Sinners will know not only mercy, but also victory that comes not by personal fastidiousness, nor by spiritual might, nor by intellectual realization, nor by any power we might claim as ours, but by the Grace of 𐤑𐤊, which is HaShem 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄.

Time is a trap within the mortal sphere of the temporal realm. We are of the immortal Essence; and we have put on mortality so that we can undergo transformation from eternal Essence to immortal Being, for as beings we can perform individual functions within the Realm of Names with better focus.

The events that unfold in mortal life reflect sequential states of being that stretch backwards to Eternity and forward to Life Everlasting. We incarnate within this eternal continuum as living souls and are expected to overcome the handicap of temporal understandings as our hearts and minds experience the transformation necessary for our perfection as enlightened beings who honor the essence of our differentiations from HaShem.

Whether we succeed in a lifetime or fall backwards to continuums we mastered lifetimes ago, we are roted within the undifferentiated Essence, which is eternal Unity. That Essence is succinctly expressed by the Name יהיה, in recognition of the universality of cause and effect within a continuum stretching between the penultimate cause יה and its cumulative effect יהי, were that differentiation possible within the eternal Unity.

We are differentiations of the eternal Essence suspended in time; and Messiah is the intermediary whose function is to lead us to our optimal positions within the existential continuum called the temporal realm. By coming to mastery over the particulars of our differentiations, we enter upon the path that will lead to our perfection as essences transitioning into beings who honor our rot in the eternal Essence. Overcoming temporal handicaps, we will be worthy as the imperfections of mortality have fall away.

To overcome incarnation as mortal souls, we are to emulate the treasure of Immanu֏ who hides within us until we are given to perceive him as Yahushua as the Father releases us from the illusion of time. All will be well because of the Name יהיה: the effect יהי is One with the cause יה. Blessed be HaShem יהיה and the agency of Father יה. Without the projected interface, we would be forever isolated by imperfection, trapped within continuums that were intended to be transitional.

We live our lives on Earth in a continuum between perfection and imperfection; and neither extreme can admit of the other. Messiah bridges the gap. Messiah is the interface that facilitates congress between that which is and that which must come to be. Yahushua HaMashiyach, the Shout 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔 of 𐤀 Father Yah 𐤉𐤄, silenced all interfering modulations as the interface that stands as arbiter between every polarity. There is no higher name among the names that are given voice. Blessed be the Name 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏𐤉𐤄 Yahushua.

The traps of time establish handles on the sides of imperfection. In the eternal realm of HaShem, a day is as a thousand years; and a thousand years is as a day. Essence is of the eternal realm, and time transduces the unity of Essence to the architecture of Being. That which is above finds its expression in that which is below; for the beginning and the conclusion have a form of congruence, in that the end and the beginning—the taw 𐤕 and the alef 𐤀—are said to be One. To perceive the symbiotics is to gain a handle on what is expected of beings.

𐤄𐤉𐤄 let there be יהי

abbreviation of יהיה

the manifestation 𐤄 of an effect 𐤉 by its cause 𐤄

Gematria 25 𐤉𐤅: a proliferation 𐤅 of effects 𐤉.

Ordinal 13 𐤌𐤄 > 4 𐤃: to initiate 𐤄 procedures 𐤌 and opportunities 𐤃.

The Bead Game

I'm reminded of the book Magister Ludi, which I must rewrite to match my temporal memory. In the Hesse novel, a student of the game appears at just the right moment with the just the right bead for just the right spot on the game's central table, which holds an impressive and intimidating array of beads that were perfectly positioned by exceptionally well-qualified finalists.

The student is an interloper; and as he places his single bead, with timid but studied precision, he is understood by all to be operating with a skill set that exceeds their understandings. They are not jealous. They are not overawed. His mastery affirms the efficacy of in their endeavors; and the student is acclaimed Magister Ludi, "Master of the Game." His success brings neither pride nor shame, but base-level joy to all players; for his bead affirms the mastery of all players.

Perhaps I misremember. Perhaps the analogy might have been better expressed. It is of no importance. I am not the Magister Ludi. The potency of the bead each of us carries is hidden until that which is perfect shall come. While stumbling through awkward infancy as Sons of Man, we add to the harmonics of the beads we carry through our interactions with each other.

We measure the facits of our soul, and its measurements map our way forward as HaShem allows us to move, whether forwards or backwards. When each of us reaches the moment of alignment in a convenient time, we will half-consciously commit the bead we cary to the place where it must go. We shall understand why.

The bead is not placed on an empty table, and the magnetism of the other beads guides our fingers to the spot they blindly recognize, as if they could see. True to who we are and trusting the moment, each of us wil commit the daring contribution of his living soul to the mosaic called Life.

Each of us is a unique soul, but life is meaningless without each other. By the decisions we reach in concert, we are guided from above as determined by the necessities of communion. In dying to personal choice, we become souls capable of the perfect positioning that honors every brother and sister.

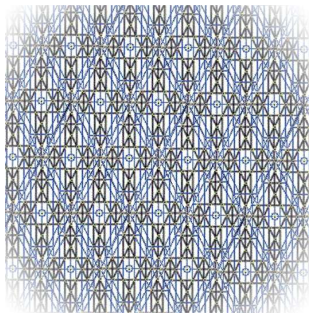

The step of faith taken in self-sacrifice is without fear of falling backwards; for we are propelled by the momentum of perfection. Not for our sake, alone, are we perfected. We are part of the mosaic comprised of the lives of all. There is a saying for the self-sacrifice that leads to our proper positioning: “Stepping down is stepping up.”

We’re magical beads suspended in the time periods of Earth and the dream periods of Heaven. The illusion of irreconcilable separation from HaShem and between each other as expressions of HaShem came upon us eons ago. when inertia tore at our thoughts and we embraced erroneous understandings of corrupted data. The discrepancies we entertained made it impossible for us to reach mature conclusions on our own. We were blinded by error, and we had to learn that we could not see so that we would hunger after vision itself, not the things that vision makes visible.

There are features and operations built into Creation that are not, in themselves, perfect, but whose apparent deficiencies drive us towards perfection, much as can be understood in the mathematical operations of Pi. In recognition of this complicating factor, the prophet Ezekiel was told to include the measurement of a hand’s breadth when making note of the dimensional specifications of the spiritual temple HaShem is now building within the inward City of David.

This is the manner in which souls are incarnated: friends and enemies will serve perfection by cohesion, not by judgment. "Learn what this means, 'I will have mercy, not judgment'" We know if we are precisely where we need to be within a lifetime if we are filled with love for those that surround us. If that is not the case, we must understand the reason.

Brothers are for adversity: they challenge and make sense of each other's differences. We must seek the wellbeing of all. That cannot be achieved by any in isolation. It requires the readiness of each to serve the master mason's foresight by fulfilling his will. Moving through our lives without understanding where we stand or how we might come to rest, we must be willing to abandon ourselves to the organizational skill of HaShem; for we cannot fathom the configuration to which we are destined by design.

There shall be no hammering as the temple is built: the tools at our disposal must not chip away at the design as envisioned by the master builder. If we would be a part of what is coming, we must abandon ourselves to the Father's hands, trusting that we shall be satisfied only by his goodness: not by the goodness that belongs to any one of us, but to the harmonious glory of the overall design, which satisfies the peculiar demands of every single part. This divine masonry builds the temple with the living stones of HaMashiyach, in whom we are members in particular.

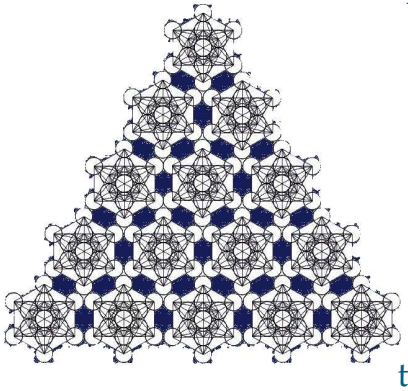

Fine Print

Wheels turn within wheels as cycles are repeated throughout the ages at different amplitudes. Faithful Father אב goes before us by day, beckoning that we should follow from within the haze of our clouded thoughts. We do our stumbling best. Like moths at night, he draws us to the light of his Holy Fire, with its updraft, so that we can experience transformation within the currents of his Breath.

Fireworms whose light must find outlet, we are immortals of Heaven who rain down to Earth to live and die as men; and like rains of the firmament, we fall to Earth, returning again and again as we learn what it means to grow and to bear the fruit of the inspired stewardship. Faith allows us to overcome the limitations of differentiation and fulfil its promise.We submit to differentiation to build; for—High within the Holy of Holies—our cocoons bridge the mortal and immortal spheres as chambers in which death and rebirth are One.

When the living close upon one phase of life, they are opening upon the next phase; for, like caterpillars, they are immortals that quietly thrive within the temporal fires of the eternal. They escape death in the tombs of their cocoons, which are woven from filaments gained through their experience in mortality. Again and again within the seasons of growth, they follow their destiny. As door 𐤃 aligns 𐤉 with door 𐤃 in the moment of perfection, they will find rest within the fruitful Garden of Bliss that hides within the celestial grounds of the tabernacle of David 𐤃𐤉𐤃.All things, all spirits, and all times teach us about the ways of Father Yah and of our futures as his children, as it is written, "All things work together for good."

Like King David 𐤃𐤉𐤃, our hearts 𐤃 will be wed 𐤉 with Love 𐤃, itself. The worms that perish not were once derided, but they shall forever be exalted; for the last obstacle they shall overcome is death. In the Realm of Names, the butterfly 𐤃𐤉𐤃 will be released into of Life Everlasting and will know no end.

𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄

Whatever our stations in life, we are instructed to call upon the Father's Name for salvation. With no other god before us, we stand before the throne of Grace, laying claim to the abundance that awaits all who are to share the life of Father YH 𐤉𐤄 in Yahushua within the footsteps of Y'shua. We will each have part in the mystical body of HaMashiyach as we take our places behind Y'shua on the trail that leads beyond Golgotha to a perfection we have yet to se in the temporal spheres of Heaven and Earth.

In the minds of man, the path of the cross is a single event watched over by our Father 𐤉𐤄. It is that; but more, it marks an individual's acceptance of the journey that leads beyond salvation to perfection. Every footfall taken in the steps of Messiah Y'shua is part of a process. As we make our way to the hill of thieves, we join in that process, walking in solidarity with the brethren.

Though not all agreed on particulars, reincarnation was a given in the eyes of the world Y'shua addressed. The teacher said nothing against it; nor did his apostles, truth be told. Only one learned man of the Sanhedrin questioned it, to our knowledge; and the response of Y'shua was to ask Nicodemus how it was that a teacher in Israel did not know these things. He challenged the rabbi's knowledge and his faith, spurring the man's renewal.

By the fruit of the Tree of Life, we will know God's goodness. There is no doubt in my mind that I will be perfected. None. It could never be allowed for an upstart like me to deny the Father's will by perishing in imperfection. Were I to be condemned, it would justify my accusers, giving them excuse to gossip profanely and forever about that pesky fellow who got himself damned just to make the Father look bad. That wil not happen.

It is really good news that Creation is not imprisoned by its mechanics: that the provenance of the Father demands that mercy and grace must pervade all things. Physical death is not necessary for us to be reborn. The gospel narrative teaches that we can be born of the spirit at any moment through realizations. The Father can add to the life that is in us by opening the doors of our hearts to the outpouring of his love.

All constraint begins to fall away as we realize that—together—we comprise the temple of Immanu𐤊, the Holy One of Y'shar𐤊. The Holy of Holies, with its Mercy Seat, is within us as we now are. It is God's good pleasure to sit down and sup with us even now, as we are being perfected. During the prayerful ceremony called the washing of feet, we are able to reason together concerning that which we must become and those things that must be done.

Doctrines of damnation are perverse; for God's fervent love will purge, purify, and perfect us all: each, in his order. As the future is child of the past, so our ascent is the outcome of our descent. Evening and morning are one day because there is no god but God.

Eliyahu's return as a new soul named Yahuchanan to serve as the baptist on the banks of Yordan was not unique. We have all made that journey numerous times, going in and out. We are imperishable worms of fire sent to Earth to become living creatures clothed in a succession of mortal souls, that we may become worthy of an immortal soul within a celestial body. Merciful by nature, our Father redeems the past, constantly creating all things new, to the end that his Projection—his Expression, his Son, his Life—may expand to fill all in all.

In the Garden of Eden 𐤉𐤃𐤏𐤄 𐤉𐤓𐤄, wheels turn within wheels; and the spiritual energy 𐤄 generated by their turnings 𐤓 can be recognized 𐤉 and examined 𐤄. It pools within the chakra 𐤏 at the hearts 𐤃 of individuals 𐤉, as the energy 𐤄 within the nervous system arises 𐤓 to nestle 𐤉 within the celestial energy 𐤄 of heavenly Eden 𐤏.

The East calls this transmutation of energy from the physical to the spiritual, and back again, the kundalini awakening. This path of spiritual rebirth is foundational 𐤀 to the manifestation of the Sons of Man 𐤉, whatever their beliefs or superstitions. Wicks must be trimmed. To confess 𐤇 errors and missteps 𐤋 with sincere regret will bring about 𐤉 the inspirational relief 𐤇 necessary to ease 𐤏 the painful 𐤀 contractions 𐤉 of life's 𐤇 birthing process 𐤋. For this reason, the families of man 𐤉 live lives 𐤇 that are bursting 𐤏 with love that is unexpected, unforeseen 𐤉.

Gematria 187 𐤆𐤂𐤐: The Garden is a restful shelter 𐤐 that is accessible 𐤂 to all; for all are being lifted towards perfection 𐤆.

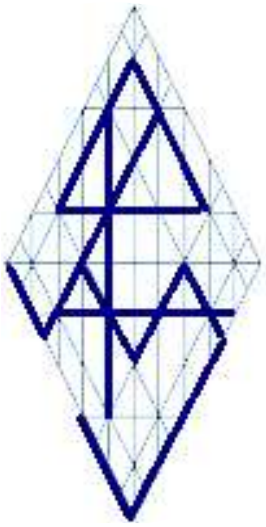

Ordinal 61 𐤊𐤎 > 16 𐤉𐤆 > 7 𐤆: The stress 𐤎 inherent to concentration 𐤊 will be of little help 𐤆 as we consider 𐤉 the import of Torah words 𐤆. It's the operations of grace within cycles 𐤎 of inspired growth 𐤊 that brings 𐤆 the heavens 𐤉 nearer 𐤆.

Targum: Spectacular 𐤇, the chariot 𐤋 of the Deliverer 𐤉! Its glistening 𐤆 wheels encompass 𐤏 the hearts 𐤀 of Sons of Man 𐤉; for the day 𐤆 the chariot arrives 𐤋 will signal the winnowing 𐤉 of Earth 𐤏.

𐤀𐤃𐤊 Adam אדם

man, humanity; the Watchman; lifeblood; ruddy, reddish; a ruby, garnet; Edom (Esau).

Adam is the Son of God—his projection, his self-expression, his Word; for as the outward husk of brother Adam 𐤀𐤃𐤊 received the Life Breath, his entire organism was impregnated by emanation of the Holy Fire of Wisdom. The man was reborn. The infusion of divine Breath transformed Adam by means of a second birth, a spiritual birth.

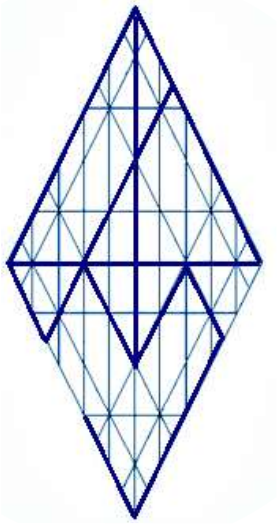

The name of the First Man implies covenant, agreement, as is affirmed by its letters; for the generic "Man" applies to each of us, regardless of sex. Along with everyone else, therefore, each of us carries a spark 𐤊 of God's Presence in our bloodstreams 𐤀𐤃. The Holy Source is our Life, whether we understand it to be so, or not. This saying echoes what is taught concerning the inward Presence called 𐤏𐤌𐤍𐤅𐤌𐤊 Immanu𐤊𐤏, which is translated as "God within us;" for the Father 𐤊 hides in the hearts 𐤀 of humanity 𐤉.

As the divine exhale of eternal Life filled the outward husk of the man Adam, making of him a living soul, the Father simultaneously laid the cornerstone of the temple made without hands; for fusion of the eternal and temporal realms established the parameters of the everlasting realm, and this is the reason Heaven's angels are said to have shouted for joy at the man's creation!

To the benefit of the hosts of Heaven, Adam became the Door to Earth. This first man. by laying down his spiritual Life on behalf of Eve so that they might reach perfection together: by his self-sacrifice, this man became the Door of Return, also. Within that first Breath, the fullness of 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄 was invested in Adam; and, thus, it is said of him, "male and female created he them." The beginning of Creation, Adam 𐤌𐤃𐤀 is the emanation 𐤀 that glows 𐤃 from within humanity 𐤌.

Never destined to abide alone, Adam was the seed 𐤀 that was planted 𐤃 and also watered 𐤌, that the Life Spark of the Father could blossom forth in the hearts 𐤃 of humanity 𐤌. It will be so; for the Father 𐤀, hidden beyond human perception 𐤃 and all memory 𐤌, enlivens 𐤀 the hearts 𐤃 of us all 𐤌.

The Second Adam

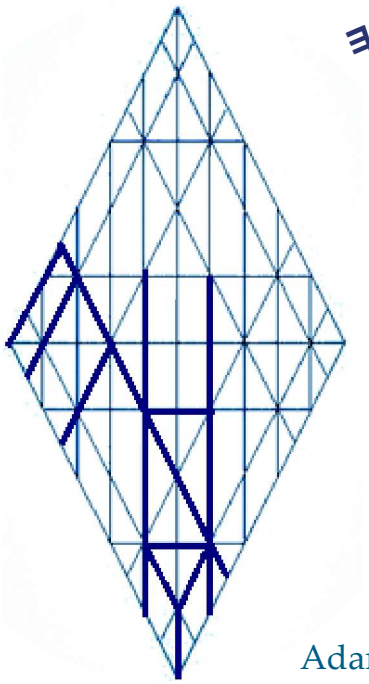

The circuits of Man would be hidden until the coming of John the Baptist.The teachings of Y'shua made it clear that there were elements of individual lives that survived death of the body, and that, with some shuffling and some substitution, elements of a past life could return to Earth for other incarnations, in answer to the will and Wisdom of HaShem.

The concept of emanation 𐤀 was foundational 𐤃 to the messages 𐤌 of John the Baptist, who bore witness 𐤀 to his perception 𐤃 that another had become worthy of the anointing of Messiah 𐤌. By his laments along Jordan, we know that he was angered 𐤀 by the blindness 𐤃 of his countrymen 𐤌. He derided 𐤀 their base 𐤃 judgments 𐤉 ; for they nd dismissed 𐤌 of this great 𐤀 treasure 𐤃 of humanity 𐤌, who recognized the spokesman for Messiah. No natural man is greater than John, and yet the Least is greater; for the Least is among and within us all and shall be shall be carried to birth by us all, first and last.

Gematria 45 𐤀𐤌; Ordinal 18 𐤈𐤆 > 9 ⊗; Targum: John was a messenger 𐤌 who groomed 𐤀 his people 𐤌 by his confessions 𐤀. Jordan is the spiritual river that spans the gap between Heaven and Earth; and John had taken his place within and upon its banks, looking forward.

Committed to clearing the inward path for the heavenly messiah, John was given vision of the immortal Life he would gain in exchange for his mortal life, and he shared ל his perspective ה with any he could engage ⊗.

A master at gauging the currents of spiritual Yordan, John understood that the holy Life Force ל in the blood ים is Immanuאל, the incarnate ל gateway to the heavens ד for all people י. Bearing witness to the holy Life within his own mortal frame by his words and by his deeds, John awakened in himself, as in others, expectations of that quality of being which would express the fullest measurement of Life.

חוה Eve חיה

to be alive: to experience; to make known, declare, pronounce; an announcement; homestead, farm, ranch; Chauwah, the Mother of all Living.

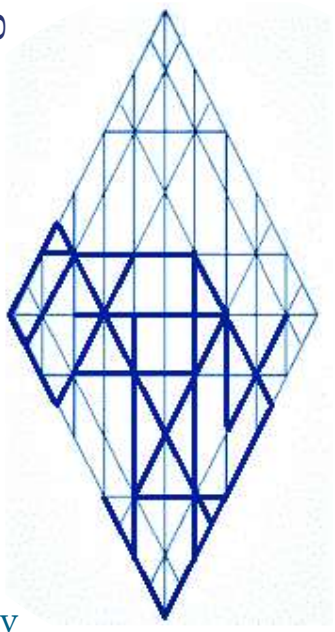

The selfless partner ה who passionately devotes herself י to the details of life ח, Eve is that hard-working care giver ה who embraces י all things that fall within her reach ח. As Adam's wife, she complements his both his manual labor and his spiritual endeavors ה. She temporizes his judgment and fuels his aspirations י, discerning and amplifying his spiritual vitality ח.

Adam's fitting companion ה, she will slake his thirst י and fan ח his passions ה according to the prism י of her experience ח; for her maternal qualities, unless they suffer great damage, are guardrails ה of fairness י and propriety ח.

Gematria 19 ⊗ז: In serving the needs of the family, Eve is a humble ז peacemaker who resolves disputes between divergent factions ⊗.
Ordinal 19 ⊗ז > 10 ז > 1 ל: Whether as Mother of All Living or simply as caretaker for any who happen to be at her table, Eve serves ז in her station ⊗ with humble ז, single-minded efficiency ל.

Targum: Adam's acknowledgment ה of Eve as his wife י is a pledge of their mutual satisfaction in days to come ח. Bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh, he is confident she will fulfill her duties ה, bringing welcome י relief ח as he labors ה to meet his own particular obligations י to the living ח.

𐤏𐤑 𐤇𐤉𐤌 Tree of Lives עץ חיים

All of us share the Breath of Life, and none of us possesses it; yet there are—oh!—so many of us, it seems, who do not understand what this simple truth means for each of us!

We share one Breath, and it makes no sense whatsoever that we should war against each other to gain advantage, one over the other; for to war against one another for any reason at all is to war against the Life within each o us: it is to war against God, against the Breath that sustains evey soul.

In the main, those who devote their lives to spiritual pursuits agree that the road to peace, which simply has to empty onto the grounds o the Tree o Lie, is paved by sel-denial. Among students of Truth, many consider self-denial to be a discipline limited to fasts against physical comforts, such as curtailing the appetite by eating only one helping at dinner, or wearing the same coat until it ends up as threadbare rags.

I'll not argue against such sacrifice, nor even against the more worthy fast of preferring the welfare of another above one's own; but the virtue of self-denial is deeper than any of this: it's hauntingly personal. Self-denial applies to every understanding by which a person might define himself.

Beyond the mortal self in every way, self-denial is rooted in our angel's relationship with the Life Breath that hides between the mortal inhale and exhale of that Breath. I might have written about the rhythms of our own, "personal breath," but that's the point! The Breath we are privileged to breathe is very personal, but it is not our own.

We are to honor 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄 with every Breath we receive of him, in accordance with the admonition, "You shall have no other gods before me." As creatures, we have partial control over the inhale and the exhale of breathing, but not over the Father's Holy Breath, upon which breathing depends. Could we monitor our personal utilization of Breath with detachment as we breathe, then we would make great progress in the actual denial of an actual self.

That level of self-denial approaches Zen. If we could lose thought of ourselves altogether by resting upon and within the Breath, thus settling into Zen, we would stand at rest within the open doorway that the apostle characterizes as "prayer without ceasing." Unceasing prayer is experienced only by those who are One in the Spirit: who live their lives consciously walking within the Breath. Unceasing prayer is also known as yoga.

There are numerous schools of yoga in the disciplines of the East. I have my preferences, and I utilize them with less discipline than one might expect. It is written, “physical exercise is of little profit.” That is true, but it is important to understand that they do profit some. We can make gestures, and we will know how they are received, but there is difference between East and West.

In the prayer closet of the West, there is an intensely personal relationship between the petitioner and the master, much like the Bhagavad Gita, but the counselor comes as the god Samaritan. He tends to our needs, but his guidance prepares us to overcome in the ditches to which we are accustomed. We have brothers there, and they need the leaven our example as we lift up the lessons we have learned in the closet before them as they are and as we once were.

We wil be perfected. That’s God’s business. Ours is to spread the word that those whose feet are soiled from their walks in the world can call upon the King of the Realm of Names and his legions of angels and his hosts of friends to meet them where they are and as they are, placing no other burden upon them than the desire to learn more.

They will know the basics. Perhaps they will ask questions. If so, it wil be given to you what to say. Yes, we adhere to principles and follow after ideas and mysteries, but as important as those things are, they are nothing in view of the light of the moment. We are alive in the company of the hosts of Heaven, and our colloquy is our strength, our wisdom, and our efficacy. We serve a living savior who is hardwired into the synapses of our brain. Trust that. Move on.

To be mindful of God’s Presence within us as we live and move within our lives establishes a kind of triangulation between heart, mind, and the works they engender. This yoga sanctifies relationships as it clarifies the distinction between who we truly are and what we apparently do; for as children of God, we sometimes become captive to inertia and fall short. Sometimes falling short is precisely what a fledgling brother needs to do what the spirit requires of him.

In recognition of this truth, it is written, “If any man says he is without sin, he is a liar, and Truth is not in him.” When we fall short, what seems to be error can be behavior that we can’t control because it arises from depths of which we are unaware. Peter’s denials after Gethsemane may have been this sort of error. The Father in Heaven knows.

Sometimes, we are simply not equal to the burden of truthful behavior. If volition isn’t involved when we fall short, that does not absolve us of fault; for we must overcome errors of both commission and omission; but sometimes, what seems to us as error is the will of God for the good of all; for al things work together for good.

The root of error cannot be understood if self stands in judgment of self. We must transcend the pairings of dualism by triangulation; for the three points of triangulation 𐤊 within prayer 𐤊 open the hidden center for meditation 𐤃, which is the heart 𐤃. This mystery answers the teaching, “I am the door, the dalet 𐤃”—which is to say that Messiah is the perception 𐤃. In dualism, we are like a point within the continuum between good and not good. Triangulation opens our minds to the center, where wholeness is to be found.

As we are enabled to hear and to respond to that call from within our hearts—from within the chakras, the sephirot, the buds of the menorah, the spiritual centers within the body—the inner faculties open to the fullness of our Father's love. By grace, we open to the particulars of his counsel,as conveyed within the whispers of the small voice of HaMashiyach, of which there are examples in the in the messages to the Churches of Asia in the book of Revelation.

In relaying Yahushua's words of the Father to those who can hear, Y'shua taught, "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me." He who rides upon the Breath is meek and lowly of heart; and as we are enabled to answer the inward counsel of this Master of Life, the savor of God's Breath stirs and quickens our hearts, building bonds that the cares of this world cannot break.

As seasons turn and counsel follows counsel, we are fed with fruit of the Tree of Lives, by whose strength we are prepared to take our places among the immortals at the Father's table, where we will be honored among the Remnant.

Because we live in dedication to the Breath, we are transformed, and we shall be transfigured; for beyond incarnation in the celestial body, which can be compared to the astral body of the East, it does not yet appear what we shall be. Understanding that allegiance to the Breath is the Way, the Truth, and the Life, we commit ourselves to follow in Y'shua's steps as we take up our staves—our crosses—with a determination to follow, as we are enabled. We can do no more.

The sap of the Tree of Lives sustaining us, we drink of Eden's rivers to slake our thirst by washing away what is extraneous to divine thought; and we draw strength from the Holy Breath as we climb the hillside path that crosses the needs of Earth and the concerns of Heaven. Children of the Breath, we drink Living Waters to our fill; for the Father's pleasure is that we should have abundant Life.

Should we seem to be lacking in anything, the fault will most likely be because of error—not "sin," particularly, but error; for our errors withhold good things from us. Our frail helplessness is well known—on Earth, as it is in Heaven! We can surprise no one but ourselves.

How, then, shall we be weaned from the erroneous counsel of the ungodly—from the influence of those among us who put such things as commerce, knowledge, or piety above the common-sense realization that we are here for one purpose: to celebrate the Breath of Life?!

If our faith is weak, the arguments of the world are strong; and it's not in our power to strengthen our own faith; for that is the Father's business. Our only remedy is to reaffirm the gestures by which we first began our quest: we rededicate ourselves in living sacrifice to the Breath that sustains us.

Regathering our thoughts in this manner, we assure that we are prepared to serve the Breath of HaShem, fulfilling his righteousness, not our own.

In the Realm of Names, coworkers with the Father are provided a place at his table. It behooves us, therefore, to utilize God's Breath on behalf of the Kingdom the Father is building in our hearts, as a collective and as individuals. With the Presence foremost in our thoughts, God's Spirit will address even those questions we cannot yet verbalize, and the substance of our dialog with the Breath will increase faith and clarify the way forward.

Self-denial does include careful confession and reformed behaviors. Those virtues are important; but to yield lasting fruit in our lives and in the lives of those with whom we interact, self-denial must find its root in the Breath: for it is there—just beyond perception—that we must gain congruence with our profiles in the mind of God. To value ourselves is unavoidable, but self-denial is the essential and invaluable priority of recognizing God's primacy.

That the mind has the ability to recognize, collate, and conclude is argument that mental processes reflect the handwork of a Creator. We think as we do because our design and the efficacy of our thought processes answer to the Creator's good pleasure concerning the design's functionality in time.

Our words and actions utilize the Breath and are therefore subject to the Breath. In our spiritual lives, as in our natural lives, we cannot even conceive of a thing to be said or done, except God brings it to mind. The Teacher of Righteousness, Y'shua witnessed that he could do nothing by himself, and that the words he spoke were uttered as he heard them: he didn't speak what he heard, but as he heard, his heart giving utterance.

Tempted in the desert by such things as are common to Man, Y'shua overcame by self-denial, not by accomplishment; and in his ministry, he walked among men as though he were a hole in the air: a perfect cipher, in which and through which his friends could perceive the fullness of the Father. He had faith to appear before the multitudes in all circumstances without giving thought to what she should say or do; for his soul served the Father's will.

Y'shua was well acquainted with grief, and we breathe the same Breath and are subject to the same thought patterns. Therefore grief does not bring accusation against us; for we are the Children of One. The smiles on our faces, the glints in our eyes or the downturns at the corners of our mouths—all these familiarities argue that every one of us shares the same Life at a bedrock level. Such affirmations of commonality must, in their fullest extension, lead to efficacious thinking; for righteous thought is celebration of the Brotherhood of Man within the unifying context of the Father's Life, which we measure as we breathe.

The Tree of Life can be sensed as a column of holy Breath that aligns with the human spine. The Tree provides a covering 𐤏 for mortals 𐤓, so that our days 𐤉 of laboring together 𐤇 will be blessed because of the benefit 𐤆 of shared 𐤆 counsel 𐤉. The canopy of th Tree of Life is a patchwork of understandings 𐤏 that knits 𐤓 the Father's Light 𐤀 into garments 𐤄 that satisfy 𐤆 the needs 𐤆 of his people 𐤉. Wheels within wheels. The apostles turned the world upside down, teaching that the roots of mortal man are in Heaven, not on Earth. Our lives on Earth are as the spiraling land of Havilah, which contains good things.

Our experience in any one life carries the savor of our journeys within the circular paths of incarnation. Not who we think we are, but who we are in the mind of HaShem is what is being tended through and beyond our lives on Earth. It should come as no surprise, therefore, that the boundaries of East and West must blur as they overlap at the end of this present age. By the will of HaShem, we are being united as a species, as a society, as a people, and as the Children of God, the Sons of Man.

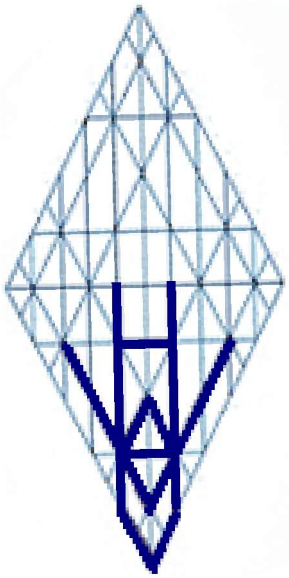

There is no inadequacy that HaShem 𐤀𐤉𐤀𐤆 cannot turn to the glory of his Holy Name; for in this temporal land 𐤏 of transformations 𐤓, each of us shall be enlightened, that we will be able to examine 𐤀 the relationship 𐤄 between our willful deeds 𐤆 and the beneficial will of the Engineer 𐤆 of Destiny 𐤉.

Gematria 233 𐤁𐤂𐤀: The Tree of Lives is the Lord of Creation 𐤀, the Shepherd who guides 𐤂 us through the processes of birth 𐤁.

Ordinal 80 𐤅 > 8 𐤄; Targum: He releases each of us 𐤅, that we might descend 𐤄; and he permits us 𐤅 to ascend 𐤄, according to his good pleasure. We are to pay attention, therefore, to the manner in which we tread the Earth; for as reward for self-denial, we are to be reborn as stewards of Life. We are encouraged to press our shoulders firmly and resolutely against Creation's wheels 𐤏 of transformation 𐤓 as we explore 𐤀, with care 𐤄 and with humble diligence 𐤆, the Father's gift 𐤆 of spiritual freedom 𐤉.

𐤅𐤄𐤉 serpent נחש

insinuation, suggestion, a whisper, hiss; a guess, to foretell; a snake, copper coil; distiller, copper smith, magician, suggestion, an omen.

This text has undergone many revisions. Some were modifications of what I had already written, but most are toss-up attempts to start over and get it right as I wrestled myself within my cocoon.

All that appears here, below 𐤉, is as a ladder 𐤄 that leans upon Wisdom 𐤅; and if all is internalized 𐤉, those things that appear are windows that frame 𐤄 the hidden things of HaShem 𐤅. Realization that is unexpected 𐤉 will give pause to our perspectives, causing anxiety 𐤇 that is disruptive 𐤅 because of fear of offense. We may lose balance and fall backwards 𐤉; but the covenant between Heaven and Earth 𐤇 is unassailable 𐤅.

There is but one Life. Though those who have passed on and those who will yet live are many, we are One in Wisdom 𐤅; for we are as sparks 𐤀 of the Consuming Fire 𐤅𐤀 within HaShem 𐤄𐤉𐤄𐤆, whose Life we share in our experience of the Universe, which is the body of Yahushua, the Son, the Projection, the Shout 𐤏𐤉𐤅 of 𐤉 Father Yah 𐤄𐤆. Yahushua blazes the trail before us; for he makes the Way, the Truth, and the Life of HaShem 𐤄𐤉𐤄𐤆 visible.

When Father Yah 𐤄𐤆 created the Universe 𐤉 by the Shout 𐤏𐤉𐤅 that raced upon the void, divine sparks of Elohim followed in its wake. The Angel of the Presence is the holy Ember who became Adam, the only-begotten recipient of the Breath of Life. There had been no Father without a Son, and there would be no Son without a Father. The Only-Enunciated became the Spokesman of HaShem—his Word. Because the Word was released into the temporal realm, the ring of Truth will fill all things, ensuring congruence with the Father's will in the fullness of time.

The train of sparks that follows the projection of Messiah throughout every realm of Creation is filling the Father's mansions with differentiations of Elohim, all of them faces of HaShem. From the angels of the Throne Room to those who serve in the distant corners of Creation, all are Elohim. None is above another; for all are essential to the balance within the Realm of Names.

By the Breath of Father Yah, a particular Life Spark came to its intended rest in the heart of 𐤀𐤃𐤌, the first living soul of Earth, in whose body was encoded the configuration of the realms as determined by the logic of Wisdom. For Adam's outward form had been fashioned in the similitude, the image, the pattern of God; and his inward substance was invested with God's likeness.

By virtue of the operations of the Presence within him, Adam would be reborn. More than "man" when the word 𐤀𐤃𐤌 is spelled as 𐤀𐤃𐤉𐤌 Edom, he was furnished unto all good works; and the gifts and the callings of HaShem are given cheerfully and are without repentance. Fanned to their common destiny by the bellows of the Breath, the family of man, in its perfection, shall be comprised of Sons of Man and of God.

As Son of the Breath of Father 𐤄𐤆, Adam could do no other than fulfill his Father's will; for HaShem does all things well by means of the holy fire of Wisdom delivered by his Breath. His Word, enunciated as his Projection, does not fall to the ground in vain. It accomplishes that for which it is intended, as it's written. Written, also, are the words of Isaiah: "I am 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄, and there is no other. I form the light and create darkness, I bring prosperity and create disaster: I, 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄, do all these things."

Where, then, is the garden serpent that so many blame for the temptation and fall of man? According to the spirit of prophecy found in Isaiah, there is no equivocation about who or what that might be. Those things that seem to be against us are actually performing the heavenly Father's will for our good, transient effects within Earth-time notwithstanding.

God is good; and his fruit, good. Should it appear otherwise within our flashes of comprehension, the fault is not God's, nor ours. If fault there is, it lies elsewhere: a result of the minute, weak-force drag of inertia that asserts itself against the intervals between cause and effect as, together, all things bend to the mathematics of Creation as wheels turn within wheels.

Within time or beyond time, it has always been within God's power to prevent error, as the scripture implies in the brief account of Abimelech's attraction to Sarah, Abraham's sister and wife. God allowed Abimelech's fancy of Sarai to go only so far, avoiding the confusion the ancient king's interest might have brought on us all.

In the Garden parable, however, God chose not to prevent error, but allowed the man and woman to make their own choices, especially with regards to his one command, to see what they would do. The Garden parable concerning the Tree of Life can be considered in many contexts. Whatever conclusions are reached about God's reasons, it's clear that Adam showed no interest in the trees, except as the place where he walked with God of an evening.

In due course, HaShem gave Adam a good gift, knowing that it would not be good for the man to continue on Earth alone. It is said of Adam, that male and female, he had created them; so Elohim brought sleep upon the man and separated a rib—a "side chamber" 𐤏𐤑𐤄—a faculty that would facilitate discernment 𐤄 that would both challenge 𐤓 and redirect 𐤑 man's understandings 𐤏: a helpmate who Adam embraced. The man took Eve as his wife, declaring her to be bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh.

Had he asked God for help, the Father surely would have provided him with a good gift, not a stone. He had not asked, however. Adam understood that the gift of Eve came from the Father's heart for his good. At the end of days, that gift would prove itself to be good and very good.

And so, the man Adam was charged with caring for the Garden, and with dressing it—with deciding what should grow there, and to what extent; but there were things in the Garden that Adam may not have noticed. At the least, there were things there that were unnoticed until Eve walked at Adam's side.

Most notable of these was the serpent, which they encountered together one day before the tree in the midst of the garden. Close reading of the text makes it unclear whether the Tree of Life and the Tree of Knowledge are separate trees. My thought is that they are separate understandings of the same tree, made distinct by discernment of Man, not by a dualism inherent to Eden.

When Eve spoke of the tree in the middle of the garden, she did not distinguish between two trees. Whatever the case proves to be, Eve clearly ate of the lesser tree as Adam watched, having listened to her encounter with the serpent. It is notable that Adam was silent, even though the Garden was his to manage.

Nehushtan wiggles 𐤉 and stretches 𐤇, inching forward 𐤅. Rising on his tail 𐤉, he climbs upward 𐤇, to shake the branches of Wisdom 𐤅 by suggesting 𐤉 a scenario 𐤇 that seems at odds 𐤅 with the caution to abstain from 𐤉 the urge 𐤇 to partake 𐤅 of the lesser tree.

As Eve listens, the serpent proposes 𐤉 an alternative 𐤇 that is exciting, enticing, and invigorating 𐤅 as he hypnotizes them with the sway of the fruit on the branches: "In dying," he whispered in a soft-spoken with well-practiced cadence, that they would not surely die!

Adam did as he had been instructed. He was not moved by the serpent's argument and did not eat; but Eve, his good wife, was confused about the commandment, the trees, her husband, and the fruit; and so, she ate in doubt. She acted upon a guess about the meanings of words and their implications within a context to which she had not given much thought, previously; and she may have had insufficient regard for the questions forming in her mind. Consider also: she just might have been doing the will of HaShem.

She had mistaken the serpent's words about eating as permission to disobey the Father's instruction. Doubt, itself, was her temptation; and subjecting herself to conflicted choice by eating was her error.

Deceived by rational thought, Eve was unprepared to receive the words of the serpent as rightly interpreted; for they were prophecy. Had she not interpreted them as denial of a penalty for eating, Eve might then have perceived the truth that we are, only now, gaining enough perspective to comprehend.

There is only one Life. Many live it, and the sparks of divinity that are emitted by the holy ember of that single Life as it spans infinity cannot die. At times, the soot accumulating on its surfaces might need to be whisked away; but the Holy Fire itself can never fail. All sparks of Life are divine.

Bodies are as lamps; and if a lamp becomes incapable of hosting the fire that gives it its light, the lamp is disposable, but the fire is not; and Divine Fire will continue forever, coming to rest in the vessels to which it is appointed: it is the Wisdom of HaShem.

Knowing the Father's mercy would prevail beyond any dissolution, Adam understood the mistake Eve had made; and therefore, he also ate, so that Eve wouldn't die alone. A living soul under an oath, Adam sacrificed his immortality on behalf of the helpmate to whom he was committed.

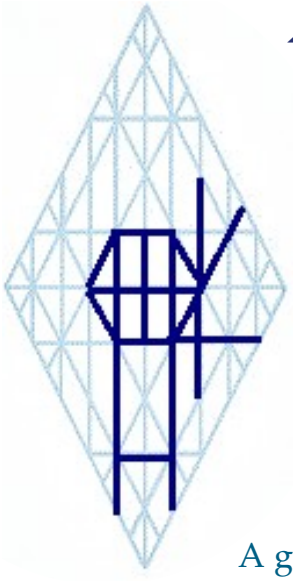

Never destined to abide alone, he also ate, opening the way for the throngs of humanity that would share the Life Spark 𐤋 that was within his Blood 𐤌𐤃. Each human, in accordance with his order, would become the child of an immortal parentage that had put on mortality, so that their lives would be enhanced by knowledge.

The great Serpent 𐤍 within the bellows 𐤄 of the Breath 𐤅—foe 𐤍 or friend 𐤄, as one might perceive in a passing moment—is charged with raising up Wisdom's 𐤅 children 𐤍. The serpentine bent of natural man is to prefer that he should ascend 𐤄 through reason 𐤅, so that he might earn his way to successive levels 𐤄 of spiritual 𐤅 development 𐤍, while avoiding 𐤄 the indignity of dependency 𐤅.

The man and his wife communed with Elohim in the evenings as they walked among the trees of the Garden. If it is a devil, but the heavenly serpent that speaks to Eve before the lesser tree, the narrative of the vision vouchsafes the salvation of all who offer their souls to Father 𐤀𐤆, confessing their errors. HaMashiyach 𐤄𐤉𐤅𐤉𐤀𐤆, the Shout 𐤄𐤉𐤅—the Projected Word—of 𐤉 Father 𐤀𐤆 is the holy serpent 𐤍 that descends and ascends upon the Ladder 𐤄 of Wisdom 𐤅.

Gematria 358 𐤇𐤍𐤅; Ordinal 43 𐤌𐤍 > 34 𐤃𐤆 > 7 𐤆: Wisdom 𐤅 confounds 𐤍 such efforts 𐤇. Keep faith during the discomfort 𐤍 and anxiety that are intrinsic to the birthing process 𐤌; for they are goads that will teach 𐤆 you of what hides in your heart 𐤃, and to what purpose 𐤆.

Targum: As with Nehushtan 𐤍𐤇𐤅𐤇𐤍, the fiery serpent that mounted the stave in the wilderness before Moses and the People of the Book, to the end that all who perceived him would live, so it is, also, with perception of the holy serpent in the trees of the Garden.

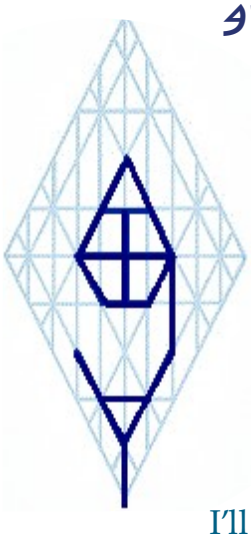

𐤇𐤀𐤈 sin חטא

error; to miss; to fall short: transgression, fault, guilt; misunderstanding; to cleanse, purify, disinfect; a sin offering; to be cleansed.

The distance 𐤈 to the target ⊗ was deceptive 𐤀, and my appreciation 𐤈 of complexities ⊗ was insufficient 𐤀. Perspective 𐤈 had been marred ⊗ by arrogance 𐤀, and beliefs 𐤈 had become clouded ⊗ by doubt 𐤀 and marred by flagrant 𐤈 betrayal ⊗ of principles 𐤀, which brought strife 𐤈 and contentious ⊗ disorder 𐤀, weakening 𐤈 the resolve ⊗ to remain faithful 𐤀.

A gateway 𐤈 to restoration ⊗ is contrition 𐤀. Repenting 𐤈 of error ⊗ requires devotion 𐤀. We must coordinate 𐤈 and integrate ⊗ ideas 𐤀 that seemed at odds 𐤈, but which were only misconstrued ⊗ assumptions 𐤀. The prerequisite 𐤈 of resolution ⊗ is to focus 𐤀 on Covenant 𐤈, trusting ⊗ the father 𐤀 to forgive 𐤈 and to restore ⊗ spiritual vitality 𐤀.

Gematria 18 𐤈𐤆; Ordinal: 18 𐤈𐤆 > 9 ⊗; Targum: Grab hold 𐤆 of the ladder 𐤈! Choose 𐤆 to align 𐤈 with those things that are right ⊗! We must honor 𐤈 and treasure ⊗ Principle 𐤀.

𐤈𐤅𐤁 good טוב

agreeable, goodhearted, well-behaved: lovely, kind, pleasant; to be happy, glad; beautiful, valuable; to be fair; goodness; wealth; a benefit; a good thing; Tob.

As an abstract, goodness is beyond us—both as fact and in understanding. Within many contexts, we struggle with the concept of mere decency; for the imagination of our hearts is continually evil, an admonition made less accusatory, when it is understood that the opposite of "good" is not "evil."

I'll not waste many words defending evil: it's nasty business, but the bottom of bad is wickedness, not evil; for within the iniquitous continuum that was discovered in the angelic and fell, through mankind, to the demonic, evil is every single gradient of error that can be found, or might be judged to belong, anywhere between the polar extremes we think of as "right" and as "wrong."

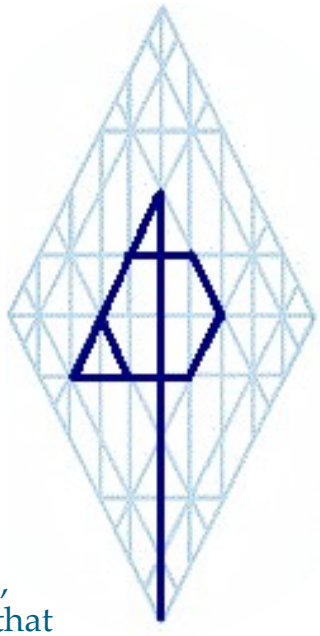

With bias for our predispositions, however innocent our intent might be, we weigh many factors, ignoring others; and we conclude that a "good" person is one who, when ensnared in a dispute that might end in quarrelsome violence, first defines ⊗ and then evaluates ץ what is being said—very carefully ג!

That he is circumspect suggests he can be trusted ⊗ to give fair ץ hearing ג and to resolve ⊗ disputes ץ with careful concern ג. We might trust such a one to be a civic judge who would do just that—resolve disputes, that is—because we've learned that a "good" individual practices reticence ⊗ in his judgments, deferring to the consensus ץ of those in the community ג who are considered to be reliable ⊗, honest ץ, and scrupulously compassionate ג.

The expression, "I'm good," implies that somebody who thinks of themselves as "good" shows his "good" side only because he's complete ⊗, comfortable ץ, and satisfied ג, which is to say that he is "good" primarily because his baskets ⊗ have ample ץ stores גּ:..

Gematria 17 זץ; Ordinal 17 זץ > 8 ח: ...while a person who's just "good" is an individual who is respectful ז to a fault ס, is eager to meet ז expectations ס by contributing ז to causes and goals ס to which all "good" people ascribe ח.

עץ evil רע

bad; compromised, inferior, useless; worthless; repugnant, displeasing; malignant, dangerous, obnoxious; malicious, riotous; unkind; shouting; a friend, fellow, neighbor, companion; an idea, assumption, thought, implication; to be suggestive; an unspoken meaning, insinuation.

Some regard evil as any threat ע to the status quo ס, good or bad. Their minds ע dulled by a reality that became monotonous the hypnotic ס, their minds began to gape ע, like staring eyes, in which those things that are invisible are crowded out by the natural faculty of sight, overriding the soul's ability to see. They plunge, virtually ס, into a mental ע stasis ס that prevents ע the comprehension ס of thought ע!

Blinded by the world in which they have become captive through spiritual distraction, they become contemptuous ס of Vision ע, which they mock ס with cutting ע ridicule ס. Their judgments aw final. The last word to be considered, they become lofty fiats delivered ע without compassion or concern ס.

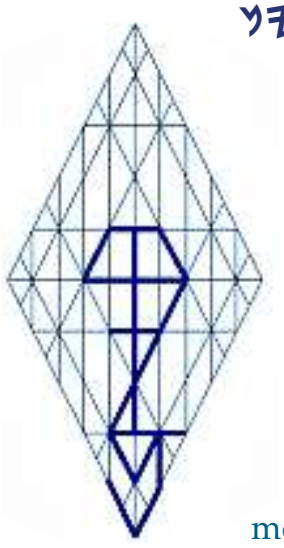

Satisfied with themselves by every consideration, their repugnant thought is like an ax that has been plied 𐤀 against a log too many times to count 𐤏; and, thus, the cutting edge of their intellect 𐤀 lost its bite long ago 𐤏, and their bitter minds began to hammer away 𐤀 by habit, at anything and everything 𐤏.

Taking a peculiar pride 𐤀 in superficiality 𐤏, detractors are busybodies that rage 𐤀 against things that, to their sensibilities, are pointless 𐤏; and they are wickedly 𐤀 amused 𐤏 by the savagery 𐤀 of their understandings 𐤏.

Messiah 𐤀 must circumcise 𐤏 our minds 𐤀: within us all, earth-bound thoughts 𐤏 must be pared away 𐤀. In the fullness of time, all must become acquainted 𐤏 with the Kingdom's higher 𐤀 understandings 𐤏; for only honorable individuals 𐤀 will comprehend 𐤏 the faces of King Messiah 𐤀.

Gematria 270 𐤏𐤀; Ordinal 36 𐤉𐤒 > 9 𐤗; Targum: Should any seek a Higher Power, its characteristics will remain veiled in mystery 𐤏 because it would curtail 𐤀 all shameful 𐤏 expectations 𐤀 and understandings 𐤏. This manner of thinking slays its champions 𐤀; for it ignores, denies, and suppresses 𐤏 the persistence 𐤒 of Truth 𐤉, which dwells within all of us, detractors included 𐤗.

Dangers 𐤀 abound 𐤏, threatening 𐤀 to overwhelm us all with confusion 𐤏; but the Great King 𐤀 understands our predicament 𐤏 and will intervene 𐤀 to our benefit, healing 𐤏 with elegant 𐤀 sufficiency 𐤏.

𐤉𐤆𐤐 Cain קין

things with a point designed for piercing: spear, lance,javelin; the edge of a blade or shovel; plowshare; to be inflexible, fixed, rigid, unforgiving; patriarch of Nod.

Dejected 𐤐 that his offering 𐤆 hadn't found favor 𐤉, Cain floundered 𐤐 in the grip 𐤆 of resentment 𐤉. He was uneasy. To accept 𐤆 this public loss 𐤉 of standing 𐤐 would surely bring 𐤆 embarrassment 𐤉. He had turned to farming, but Abel had kept the family tradition of ranching. His concerns were Earth-bound, whereas Abel's were somewhat loftier because he monitored the fields and. the skies simultaneously.

It simply hadn't been his fault! In a kind of self-defense, he had lashed out 𐤐 at his brother in jealousy 𐤆. His envy 𐤉 of Abel had settled 𐤐 within his heart as persistent accusation 𐤆, and he just couldn't tolerate it 𐤉!

That he had been vulnerable ף to such provocation ל would tarnish י his good name, in any case ף; but the Father's public disrespect of his offerings had been much worse! It was Abel's fault: that show-off had robbed ל him of his right י!

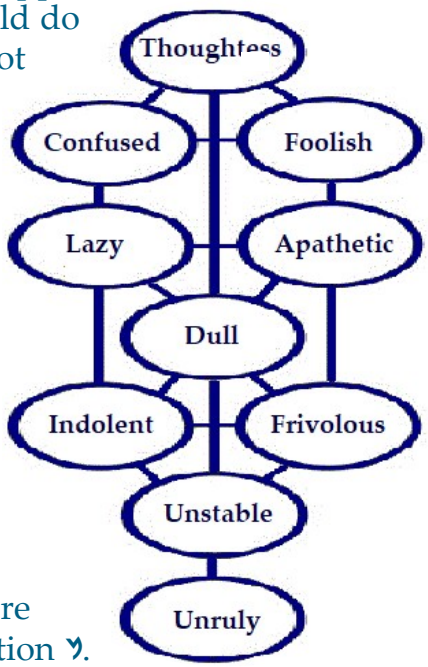

Cain had become obsessed ף—tormented ל, even—by this predicament י. He admitted that it might have been driven ף, in part, by his own assessment ל of the reasons for disappointment י; but that was the point: it was his disappointment that had determined the course of events!

Overcome ף with self-pity ל, he'd lost י control ף of his hands ל and had given in י to the mounting pressure ף to do something ל—anything! He'd been exhausted י, after all! Him, fighting the dirt all day every day, while Abel breezed about in the hills with the frolicking sheep! And now, this!

Gematria 160 ₹ף: Preoccupied ף his rigid ₹ self-image ף, a harried ₹ Cain had ignored ף the warnings ₹ of his conscience ף; and—already stressed beyond ₹ the limits ף of what, to him, was reasonable patience ₹—he'd been like a trapped ף animal. His thoughts had raced back and forth ₹ in his mind, ready to explode ף in perfectly understandable frustration ₹!

Ordinal 43 ץש > 34 דצ > 7 ס: Confused ש and bitter ץ, he had lashed out צ in response with what had proven to be a lethal ד thrust ס to what was, now that he remembered, an arguably minor irritation ש. It hadn't been his fault. He had only been trying ץ to redirect צ some discomfort ד, hoping for closure ס. So understandable!

And so, now!? To do well going forward? He was supposed to free up ש a pathway ץ to change צ, so that he could do well?! Maybe to be accepted in the future, but not now!? This was not fair!

Cain loved the thrill ד of confrontation ס, but Nod would not be nice to him. He knew the drill on the need to ד be better because he'd written the book on falling short; but he would have to ease up a little bit sooner or later. He knew in his gut that this wrangling would probably prove pointless, in the end.

Targum: Failing some sort of resolution, his contentious instincts ף would surely seal ל his ruin: and that, without much sympathy י. He would be faced with temptations that are common to Man, and his path to redemption ף would require humble ל introspection י.

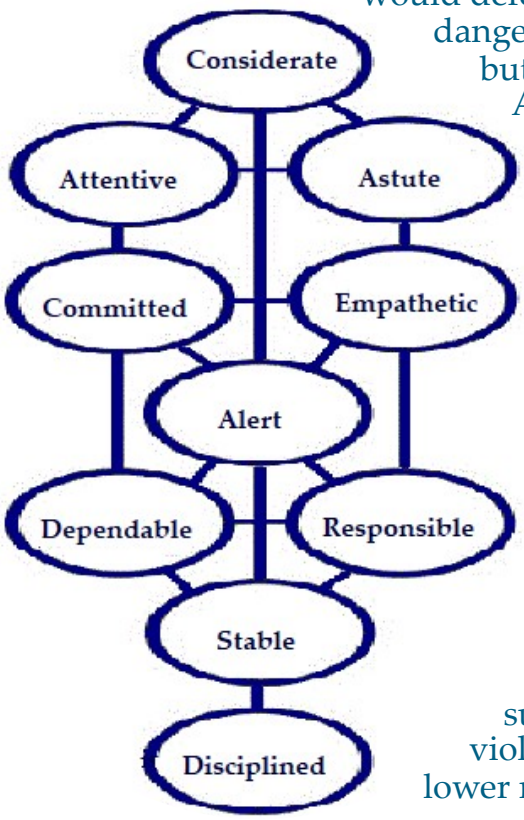

𐤄𐤁𐤋 Abel הבל

fleeting, transitory; steam, vapor, breath; vanity, emptiness, foolishness; misapprehension; to be fooled, hoodwinked; an idol: the 𐤀 Bel 𐤁𐤏, god of Babylon.

While at rest among the flocks, Abel envisioned 𐤀 his body as the refuge 𐤏 of an inward friend, a guide 𐤁; and he had come to welcome 𐤀 this inner Presence 𐤏. The wise teacher 𐤁 discerned 𐤀 what he could accept and retain 𐤏 and had led accordingly—the familiar pattern he followed in tending the flocks 𐤁.

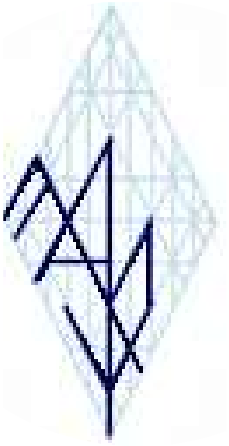

Drawn back as from a dream, as though suddenly imprisoned within a walled room, Abel quickly 𐤀 retreated into himself 𐤏; for he was, again, being challenged 𐤁 by brother Cain. He loved his elder brother, and he understood that his life on the pastures 𐤀 with the sheep 𐤏 had become, oddly, a serious provocation 𐤁.

Gematria 37 𐤔𐤁; Ordinal 19 𐤈𐤆 > 10 𐤆 > 1 𐤀: Abel's teacher was a shepherd 𐤁 who shared his watch with determination 𐤔 to defend 𐤁 his life, just as he as he would defend the lives of the sheep! Threats and dangers 𐤔 were constant and required diligence; but whatever the future might hold for him, Abel understood that, for the present anyway, he had become a convenient 𐤆 target during Cain's preoccupation with his own rage 𐤈; so this time, as he had done so often before, he again endeavored to avoid 𐤆 friction. Clashes with Cain could escalate into open hostilities 𐤀 at any time.

Targum: Cain saw him as weak 𐤀 and self-absorbed 𐤏. They were brothers, after all; and so, Abel was not predisposed 𐤁 to immediate 𐤀 reaction to Cain's physical 𐤏 attacks 𐤁. It had been just another day 𐤀 and another round of physical 𐤏 aggression. He had been surprised by the pace of events and by the violent consequences of being driven by the lower nature 𐤁.

𐤓𐤄𐤍 river נהר

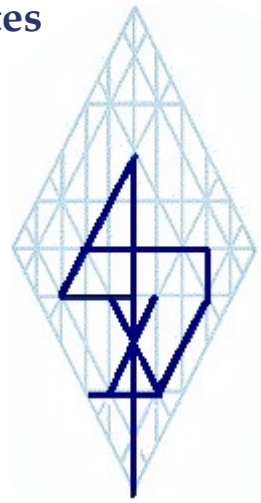

stream, brook, current; inevitability.

Gematria 255 𐤓𐤄𐤍: The beauty 𐤓 at the core 𐤄 of life 𐤍.

Ordinal 39 𐤈𐤋 > 12 𐤉𐤁 > 3 𐤂; Targum: They will follow his lead 𐤋 and, together, they will resolve all conflicts 𐤈 through activation 𐤁 of the soul's 𐤉 birthing processes 𐤂 is the River 𐤄 of Light 𐤍 streaming down from HaMashiyach 𐤓, investing them 𐤄 with knowledge 𐤓 and discernment 𐤍.

The River of Life

Perat 𐤐𐤓𐤕 Euphrates

Unlike any river on Earth and very much like them all, Perat 𐤐𐤓𐤕 is the river of Creation that streams throughout the entire Universe, running just below the material plane. Invisible, it seeps within all things after the behavior of water, seeking the lowest place.

Unassuming in every way, water's name, drawn from many tongues, means "fruitful" and "good for crossing" because the ancients perceived it as a swelling up from within that carries what hides within to the surface, where it can be addressed. The mind questions the heart, and answers well up within modulations the mind must engage and wrestle into articulation.

Creation is like a very extensive river. There is not one solid thing in it, large or small; or if there is, that something exists "elsewhere" because the tools of science can't find it. Dense particles disappear under microscopes: nothing is as it seems to be. Euphrates holds it all together.

The spiritual life 𐤍 of Sons of Man 𐤄 radiates 𐤍 from within the Lord 𐤓 of Antiquity 𐤋. Our Father 𐤕 keeps watch 𐤓 over our souls 𐤉; for while on Earth 𐤏, we are to rediscover 𐤍 the majesty 𐤓 of our fiery origins 𐤕 in the Spirit of Wisdom 𐤅, that we might make better use 𐤁 of our measurements 𐤐.

Gematria 1479 𐤈𐤏𐤐𐤕: The Creator 𐤕 of the universe 𐤐 is wholly attentive 𐤏 to every one of us 𐤈.

Ordinal 174 𐤀𐤏𐤐 > 84 𐤀𐤋 > 75 𐤂𐤏 > 57 𐤎𐤉 > 48 𐤇𐤉 > 12 𐤋𐤆 > 3 𐤕: Dwell studiously 𐤐 on obstructions 𐤏 to perception 𐤀. Allow 𐤋 your heart 𐤀 to understand 𐤏; for answers 𐤂 will surely arrive 𐤉. He who has impregnated 𐤎 humanity with Life will fulfill 𐤉 the promise implicit in the compact 𐤇: he will bring 𐤆 our mortal souls 𐤋 to their immortal birth 𐤕.

Living Waters

𐤉𐤅𐤔𐤆𐤋 Pishon: River of Elemental Earth

dispersive; a cresting of water, calling to mind a birth

The Emanation of the formative spirit:

The Blue Nile, the pupa: the womb body—the cocoon: it's man's temporal, physical component and cannot inherit immortality. It returns to dust 𐤋𐤌𐤏 when the Life Spark is recalled; for empty 𐤏 containers 𐤋 are disposable 𐤋.

𐤉𐤅𐤇𐤆𐤕 Gihon: River of Elemental Water spontaneous; rushing waters; a quickening, like a first breath

The emanation of souls in pursuit of perfection.

The Yardan: The soul's immortal wings are the work of many seasons; for the perfected soul is scripture's "promised "land."

𐤇𐤃𐤋𐤇 Hiddekel: River of Elemental Fire

succinct: a rebounding wave, an awakening.

The river of angels: worms that do not perish as they work their way between Heaven and Earth.

The Sons of God and of Man.

𐤗𐤋𐤋 Euphrates: River of Elemental Air:

Breath; expansive, conversive; a calming of waters.

The White Nile—the Invisible River of Life.

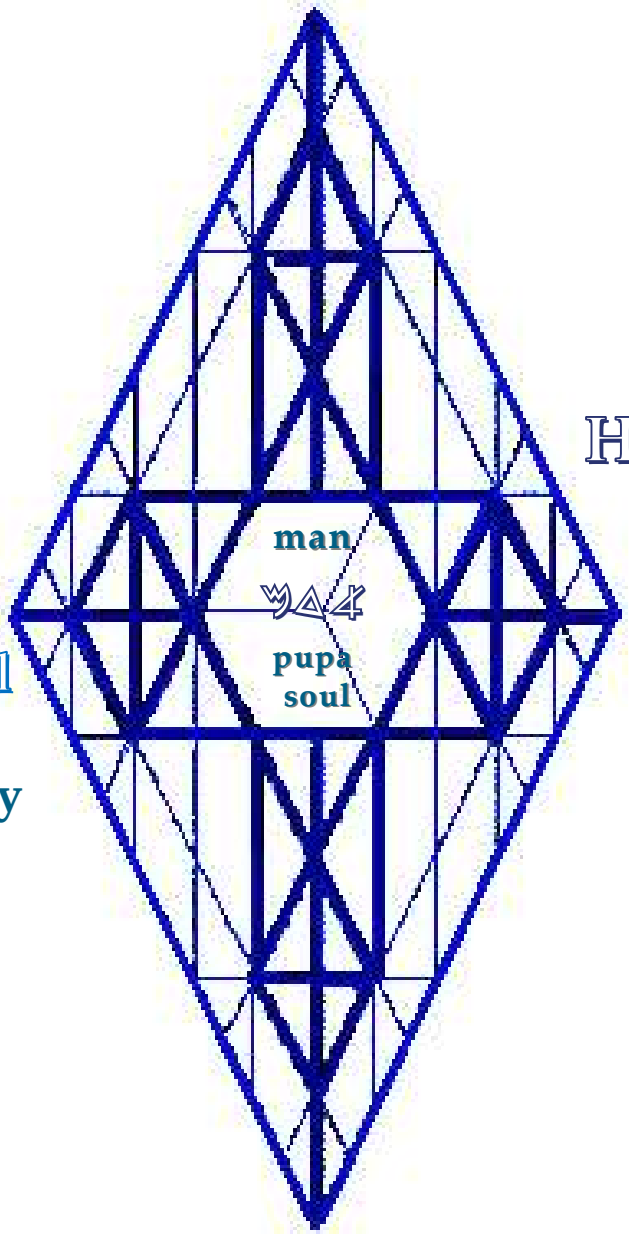

The Life Spark propels the rapids of Man's blood; for the fervor of angelic fire animates the physical body and enlivens the mortal soul. The incarnate angel, a hidden like a caterpillar's pupa, is mindless of the wings of its past. Its single imperative is to finish weaving the garment of perfection, whatever its temporal form. At death, when the spirit is severed from the soul,within the shadows of the Earth, the angel returns to Heaven, as before, until such time as it arrives at its perfection.

Perat, Euphrates

Air—Spirit—Life

Gihon

Hiddekel

Water

Fire

Living Soul

Angel

Celestial Body

Caterpillar

Pison

Cocoon—Physical Body—Earth

Each of us is given once to die; for at physical death, the four components of mortal man are gathered to their fathers. Beyond what we call death, therefore, the laws pertaining to incarnate life no longer apply. King David is both dead and buried, yet he lives in Heaven with Father Abraham.

Dust returns to dust and ashes... Why should any disagree? The laws of incarnation in the material world don't apply to immaterial beings. That "like returns to like" is the very reason the Life in each of us can't be extinguished. Life is not our property. Life is God's Breath, which cannot perish; for however we might see ourselves, we are expressions of HaShem's Life.

The serpent prophesied, "You will not surely die." Indeed! Death has no victory, unless it could be found at a final judgment; but when scripture is read in the Breath without fear of the Breath. Ultimately, death will be left with nothing but our memories of error incurred in our strange cycles of life; for apart from the Son of Perdition, the single cinder of the sinners we once were, nothing is lost.

Gathered from all of us, the Son of Perdition is the husk of who we are becoming. Called Esau in the parables of Moses, he shall drink of the cup of oblivion, which was prepared for him from the beginning. He will be tossed into the bottomless, where he shall be as though he never had been.

There is no thing. Until the freedom of perfection comes upon us all, there is only change; for God's mercy endures, forever, and his will is that we prosper in his care. The Breath of Life doesn't fill the lungs of humanity in vain: as always, it is perfect; and it perfects that to which it is entrusted.

Physicists theorize, presently that matter is formed by vibration, which defines its space by movement in much the way aroma fills a room, employing a combination of physics. "Earth, the heavens, and all that in them is" are much more than fabrications of HaShem 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄: they're the Shout of his Essence! And in the mercy of grace, we stand within the name Yahushua 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏, the Shout of Father Yah 𐤉𐤄, positioned alongside those who stand with 𐤉𐤔𐤏 Y'shua, the Saved of Yah 𐤉𐤄.

Nothing took God's Breath. He laid it down, willingly, that Adam and those within him might share his abundant Life. To reiterate, "No man has ascended unto Heaven, but he that came down from Heaven."

The angel who lived as the soul named Elijah became the living soul named John Baptist when he returned to Earth from the third Heaven on the path to perfection; for he confessed that his soul had yet to reach completion, in that he held himself as unworthy of the one who would soon appear.

HaShem invests his refining Fire in the thick darkness of every man's physical reality, feeding man's energies and enlightening his mind as the man's angel wrestles with the shadows crowding upon his soul. Each life is of God; all Life has come down from God in Heaven; and all Life returns to God in Heaven at the physical dissolution called "death." The pattern is cyclical, not linear.

Living Waters and the Faces of Man

ינשפ Pishon פישון

casual, dispersive: of global application; an initial tributary of Eden's River of Living Waters: a "hinged" river, having many bends; its reach encompasses Havilah, the land of spirals.

The Living Waters of Eden spill well beyond the garden's borders, filling receptive basins. As they surge into the bowls of the sephirot, they encounter resistance and pool behind the dams of hardened hearts and inflexible minds. Buoyed by confidence in its tides, River Pishon weighs against the surface tensions it encounters, testing resistance and eroding barriers, hollowing out and cleansing such openings as present themselves.

When the surface tension of water is broken, it begins to spread across the area upon which it is deposited. In like manner, Piston spreads across the surface of conscious thought with inexorable advance once a subject surfaces.

Pishon doesn't rush; it persists. and when it meets resistance, it engulfs intervening concepts and moves on. The spreading of its waters is an imperative of its nature. Whether the waters are absorbed, drain is ed, or evaporated are of no concern. Advance of the concepts it carrie is what matters.

Rivulets of understanding soon undercut bias enough to ease the subconscious, allowing Truth to marshal its streams for that instant when the drip of days shall have weakened resistance enough for Pishon's swell to break through all locks and sweep across spiritual frontiers, clearing darkened souls of debris in its flood and slaking thirst in its wake. In our worst moments, the structure and dimensions of the Source, the Tree of Life, is revealed within us, providing a covering, while the lifting power of Living Waters serves us all.

Pishon is dispersive ך. It provides ל Wisdom ו the wide coverage it needs to reach and to nourish ו every י Son of Man נ, its flood ך calming ל the disruptions ו brought on י by human error נ. Cain was in cold disfavor; yet the answer to his fearful question about what might befall him was, "If you do well, shall you not be accepted?"

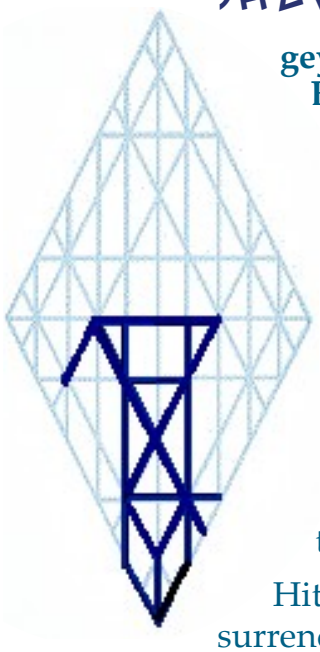

Pishon makes no judgment as it cleanses. Regardless ך of the cause ל of mankind's weaknesses ש, mercy י shall abound נ. In the flood of Pishon ך, Truth compensates ל for such woes ו as are common י to Man נ. The sayings that were ך entrusted to Moses were given ל by Wisdom ו as prophecies about relief י of suffering נ, not as dictums.

Gematria 446 ץשא: Without stipulation א, we can drink our fill of the cleansing waters ש of Truth צ.

Ordinal 68 חמ > 14 דכ > 5 הּ: The Waters of Truth are the nectar of the Tree of Life מ. It beads upon the rungs of Jacob's Ladder ח, offering כ hints ד of the enlightenment that is coming הּ.

Targum: Remain open and receptive ז to the presence כ of the Life Breath ו as you contend צ with the misapprehensions of the inner man י.

יחכל Gihon גיחון

geyser: spontaneous gushing; Eden's second tributary of Enlightening Utterances; encompasses וצי, land of Cush spindle: axis of Havilah (the spiral).

The swirl of Gihon's spiritual waters, as they run ל, generates כ speculation and concern ח about judgments צ against the inner man י.

Without Gihon, uncertainty and can settle in as deterioration ל, humiliation כ, or depression ח. Worse, inertia can tighten its grip צ on volition י, arresting ל both action כ and reaction ח, and making abject surrender צ seem all but inevitable י, whatever that phrase might actually mean. Dread is certain.

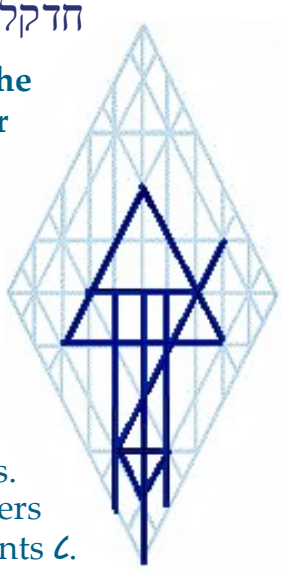

Hitting bottom ל triggers כ true repentance ח, the surrender צ of self-determination. Bottoms foster a readiness ל to accept כ whatever help ח a benefactor צ might propose י.

Gihon is as the advent of gratuitous ל probes כ of the imagination ח, which lift up צ the inner man י. It restores ל access כ to the rungs of Jacob's Ladder ח, and to the possible צ return of prospects and potentials י that seemed—so long ago, now—to have been swept entirely away ל. The blessings כ that come with the gushing of River Gihon come down ח from Heaven all at once צ, and quite unexpectedly י.

Gematria 77 סע; Ordinal 41 מש > 14 דכ > 5 הּ: Those who are patient ע will reach perfection ס; and, even while they are still confused and troubled ש, repentant individuals מ are welcome כ within the sanctuaries ד of the enlightened הּ.

Targum: Should any again stumble ל through actions כ or attitudes ח unworthy צ of their quest י, the birth process will continue ל, restoring כ harmony ח between Truth צ and the inner man י, Mercy endures.

𐤇𐤐𐤃𐤄 Hiddekel חדקל

pithy, succinct : sharp 𐤃𐤄, simple 𐤇𐤐; third arm of the Enlightened Sayings; runs to the east of Assyria (land for those stepping rightly): i.e., Hiddekel, interpreted as "honesty," is prerequisite to authenticity.

The rapids of Hiddekel resemble a palpable rush of thoughts that stream just beyond perception, moving too swiftly to be fully fathomed and retained. Its waters surge, splashing as they swirl within us.

If they should slow, they also swell and brim, tenuously lapping against the banks and floodgates of hearts and minds. The mystery of Hiddekel's force is its focus; for its waters continuously test 𐤄 for opportunity 𐤃 to penetrate 𐤐 restraints 𐤇.

Like a brother sharing 𐤄 insights 𐤃, Hiddekel pushes the mind 𐤐 in the direction it must go 𐤇; and the river's heft carries the soul beyond familiar and comfortable boundaries 𐤄 of emotion 𐤃 and intellect 𐤐. Redirecting and driving 𐤇 perspective 𐤄, Hiddekel lays the foundation 𐤃 for sweeping 𐤐 changes along pathways of the future 𐤇.

In its farthest reaches, River Hiddekel cuts to the east 𐤗𐤌𐤃𐤐 of Assyria 𐤀𐤔𐤅𐤓: its rapids run their course and resettle within the river's banks, to safeguard 𐤐 perception 𐤃 from the disorderly influences 𐤌 of random 𐤗 concepts 𐤓 that could undermine 𐤅 effective evaluation 𐤉 of thoughts 𐤀.

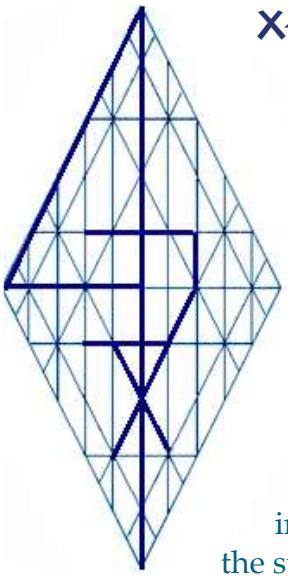

Finishing their course, the rapids of Hiddekel empty 𐤐 into the refuge 𐤃 of quieter waters 𐤌, which allow more precise 𐤗 focus 𐤓 than is possible in the roiling 𐤅 grip 𐤉 of its rapids 𐤀.

Gematria 142 𐤁𐤌𐤐: The mind 𐤐 is free 𐤌 if it's contained 𐤁.

Ordinal 43 𐤋𐤌 > 34 𐤃𐤇 > 7 𐤆: The rivers 𐤌 of the birthing process 𐤋 convey 𐤇 the meanings 𐤃 of words 𐤆.

Targum: Realignment of Man's four faces—the body, soul, spirit, and the angel 𐤄—alters the foundational perception of who we are 𐤃, giving us a little boost, as from behind 𐤐, while we continue on our way 𐤇.

𐤌𐤆𐤌 water; mystery: from 𐤌 my 𐤆 past 𐤌; remembering 𐤌 my 𐤆 memories 𐤌 Gematria 90 𐤑: adjudication, accuracy; innocence; perfection and respect.
Ordinal 36 𐤅𐤇 > 9 𐤈: correcting 𐤇 judgments 𐤉; resolving outstanding issues 𐤈.

𐤀𐤓𐤐 Euphrates, Perat פרת

expansive, conversive: fourth of Eden's rivers; the Waters of Life are re-gathered as the captivating "Euphrates," the river that waters the entire Earth (no geographic location; tghe river witih four heads

Known as Euphrates, River Perat marshals the waters of Truth by means of its tides 𐤃. Sourced 𐤉 in the macrocosm 𐤀, its wide bands calm the soul, conveying utterances 𐤃 of the Master 𐤉 of Infinity 𐤀.

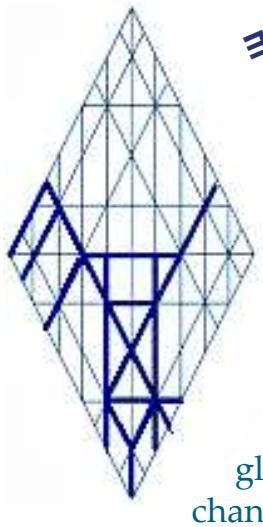

Man's expressions 𐤃 originate 𐤉 elsewhere 𐤀; for what we speak 𐤃 is determined by the mind's 𐤉 measurement of mere instants of time 𐤀, which permit or disallow 𐤃 thought 𐤉 to reach the specificity of words 𐤀.

We are awash in the currents of Eden. Alone and together, we dip our heads at the banks of Pishon 𐤐𐤉𐤅𐤆𐤃, lifting them in realizations of Gihon 𐤐𐤉𐤇𐤆𐤋 .

As confidence in understanding increases our comfort, we settle our heads again, lowering them tentatively towards rushing Hiddekel 𐤇𐤃𐤒𐤇: to sip and to drink.

We find rest at the wider pools of 𐤀𐤓𐤐, River Euphrates, where we drink deeply, and to our fill, that we may satisfy our thirst.

Gematria 680 𐤃𐤉𐤀; 59 𐤎𐤐 > 14 𐤄𐤆 > 5 𐤄; Targum: The Living Waters of Eden foster renewal 𐤀 of the mind 𐤉 through the medium of unceasing prayer 𐤃. Be determined 𐤐 to measure, to integrate 𐤎, and to make good use 𐤆 of what appears 𐤄 within your heart 𐤄 as you drink 𐤃 of the Rivers 𐤉 of Infinity.

𐤇𐤅𐤆𐤋𐤄 Havilah חוילה

villa, a spiral staircase: villa, a spiral staircase; mansion:a fabrication of wonder; land of spirals: the give-and-take of argumentative debate.

We are carried along upon Eden's Waters of Life as we enter the untamed lands of Earth. The wonder of our surroundings 𐤄 arouse 𐤋 and excite 𐤆 passion as we embark upon new shores.

Curiosity tempts us 𐤒 to explore 𐤇 parcels of land just barely glimpsed 𐤄 while passed by 𐤋; but the benefit 𐤆 of stopping and changing direction 𐤒𐤕o search 𐤇 the horizon 𐤄 is dubious 𐤋.

Any arbitrary exercise of willpower ֶל can lead to ֵמ surprising ֵא situations ֶה, and weighing ֶי choices ֶל becomes difficult ֵמ as options multiply ֵא .

When ambition ֶה becomes an element ֶי in the exercise of will ֶל, its influence ֵמ will diffuse ֵא the soul's close relationship ֶה with Heaven ֶי. In the end, all paths must converge; so application of will ֶל apart from the Shepherd's guidance will require corrective ֵמ measures ֵא If sanctions come, they come as consequences of our choices. There is good gold in Havilah.

In the pattern of the Name ֵאֶיֵאֶל, we understand that the exercise of will ֶל has consequences ֵא that must be weighed in consideration ֶי of obstacles and opportunities for re-calibration ֵא; for as choices are made, the baton is passed between action and ֵאֶל reaction ֵאֶי, and the Wheel of Life grinds on.

It isn't that ambition ֶה is a problem, in itself ֶי , but that it can drag us ֶל along in its wake ֵמ, blinding ֵא us against those things we are to observe ֶה . Eventually, we agree that it's advantageous to bind ֶי the will on our own initiative ֶל, so that we can tackle the challenges ֵמ our lives will reveal ֵא. There is only one Life.

Gematria 59 ֹסֵי: It is natural to desire, but we must remain cautious ֵי about fixations on temporal objectives ֹס in an unknown ֵי environment ֹס.

Ordinal 41 ֵדֵי > 5 ֵא: Remember ֵי that the priority ֵד is the inner Life ֵא.

Targum: Together with our companions ֶה, we do well to offer ֶי our wills ֶל to the Shepherd ֵמ ; for there is only one Life ֵא.

ֵזֶהָב gold ֵזֶהָב

golden, gilded; to plate with gold; glittering: to shine with clarity, with purity; a symbol of Wisdom, meaning perpetually untarnished concepts.

That there is only one Life in the lives we live together can be overlooked—can go unnoticed ֵז. Any frivolous ֵא assessment ֵד of the effects and implications ֵז of life lived as though it exists in isolation from the greater Life shared by all, will scar ֵא the soul ֵד by depriving ֵז it of the vision ֵא it needs to develop inclusive consciousness ֵד. So deprived, diverse appetites ֵז begin to haunt ֵא the soul with hungers that cannot be satisfied ֵד.

If a zealot's way forward is blocked, only a spiritual lightning strike ס can refresh ה his soul ו. Repeatedly, he grapples with texts or behavior systems ס, with the intention of gathering ה unto himself ו overlooked nuances ס that could amplify ה consciousness ו enough to uncover ס arcane aspects of esoteric matters revealed to others ה, so that he can claim them as his own ו.

When enlightenment is pursued as a goal ס, the very desire borders ה on idolatry ו because the underlying aim ס is little more than the embellishment ה of the personality men call ego ו. There's no need to scurry about in search of the unknown, the unsuspected, the unrealized; for the perfect ס Life ה is seated, already, in every soul ו, awaiting recognition.

A manic need to chase after spiritual goals is driven ס by an idolatrous imagination ה, which sits in a hall of mirrors, nominally searching for deity, but reflecting the narcissistic self as perceived by, behind, and beyond itself ו.

The Father's fullest measurement—his Shout, his perfect, golden Word ס—rode upon the Breath ה surrendered ז by Father הז from the beginning, as though it were his Son ו. That Breath. that One Life of eternal Unity released unto Adam—unto the family of Man מדא—became seated in our hearts and minds, making way for the rise of an enlightened collective, the mystical body of Messiah, which is comprised of the Sons of Man and of Elohim.

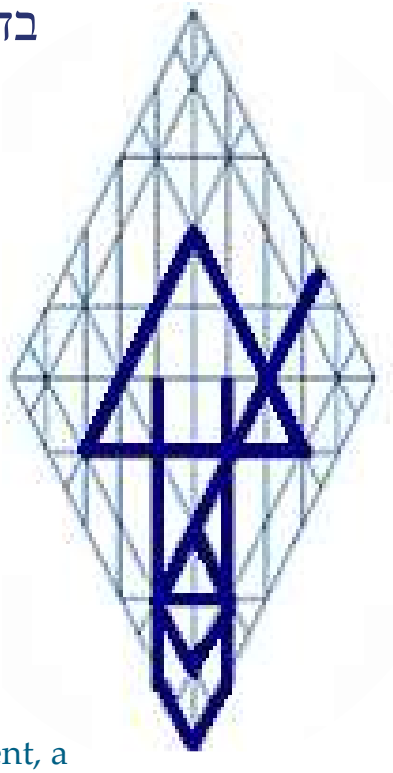

Having served as though he were the Creator by the enunciated will of the Father, the Utterance—the Word, the Son, the Interface—manifested divine humility by dwelling in the secrecy of Man's heart as Immanuאל. The Presence of Father הז was within Man from the beginning and will be with Man at the end of this present manifestation of Creation.

From the Life Breath of Adam, as from the Life Breath of any individual, to its rise in the collective, this Angel of the Presence reaches active manifestation within those who have known the spirit as Immanuאל, the Voice of One. Immanuאל bears witness כ to the Unity of the faces of Elohim, including that face which will be made visible in the ordinary features of the Deliverer ס, as foretold from the beginning of days ה. In all this, only Man's acknowledgment ו remains; for the Father's fullness ס is already enshrined ה within all souls. It awaits only acceptance ו.

Gematria 14 דז; Ordinal 14 דז > 5 ה: The touch of the Father's hand enlarges ז the heart ד and increases ז the love ד of life ה.

Targum: Among the impacts ס of the enlightenment ה upon consciousness ו are the effects of transferring higher ס energy ה to the body ו and adding great depth ס to the visualizations ה entertained by the soul ו.

𐤁𐤃𐤋𐤇 bdellium בדלח

crystal, crystallization, realization: the process of coming to an understanding.

Natural formation 𐤃 of crystals 𐤋 is instructive 𐤉 of the nature of spiritual ascent 𐤇. In their formation, an interior 𐤃 catalyst 𐤋 promotes 𐤉 the crystallization 𐤇, as suggested: affirmation 𐤃 of an observation 𐤋 promotes change 𐤉 of perspective 𐤇; listening 𐤃 to the heart 𐤋 favors 𐤉 eventual agreement 𐤇; awareness 𐤃 of fervor 𐤋 can lead 𐤉 to self-betterment 𐤇; and, naturally, an accurate 𐤃 diagnosis 𐤋 can be followed 𐤉 with appropriate care 𐤇.

Enlightenment is a process. It is not a magical event, a hard-earned achievement, or a gratuitous condition. The following scripture is taken from a questionable translation, but addresses the process of enlightenment:

"Whom will he teach? To whom will he explain his message? To children weaned from their milk, just taken from the breast? For axiom must be upon axiom, and construct upon construct; a hint here, a hint there."

The linear aspect of understanding causes us to imagine that what we "see" is self-evident, conclusive; however, the faculty of perception relies on such stop-action measurements as perspective is able to allow within unstoppable time and must, by its very nature, fall short of accurate measurements.

True understanding is the gift of process, not a personal accomplishment. For that reason, as the enlightenment presses upon us, we often experience the thrill of a bright instant of clarity, accompanied by a sense of dread; for though the present is foundational to what might be coming, we sense that the hints we steal from a present moment can never predetermine realities of the future.

Gematria 44 𐤋𐤌: The flow 𐤌 is the path 𐤋.

Ordinal 26 𐤉𐤏 > 8 𐤇; Targum: To be open to the process of restructuring 𐤏 is to welcome 𐤉 spiritual crystallization 𐤇, which arises from the indwelling 𐤃 love 𐤋 of the Shepherd, whose guidance promotes 𐤉 joy 𐤇.

ϟϢW onyx שהם

black onyx; vibrations c from warmth mh; blanched, whitened.

Black onyx is a compound that absorbs much of light's visible spectrum; nevertheless, it's unable to prevent a pale gleam of that light from escaping its surface. This phenomenon is instructive of the process of crowning: O experiencing moments of great clarity and understanding on the path to enlightenment, moments that are often followed by forgetful confusion. One can absorb insight after promising insight with little change, but the hint of a smile intrudes, despite frustration.

Here and there, by little hints, insights may amount to nothing, much; but nevertheless, the mind, in its struggles with nuance, continues to absorb and collate, to compare and categorize. As understanding builds beneath surface thought, vague concepts absently bundled together and nearly forgotten begin to coalesce; and cohesion points the way forward to discovery.

The Holy Fire of HaShem W radiates Ϣ from within us ϟ. We delude ourselves if we search for its faces in isolation, one from another, exhausting ourselves by analyzing W scraps Ϣ of information that come our way, while remaining ignorant of the whole ϟ. We expose our lack of faith by feeding the vain hope of discovering—no, of capturing as our own—the timeless Eternal One within a fixed instant.

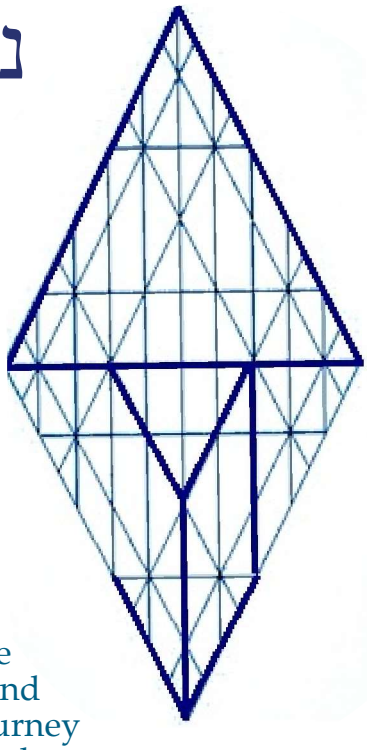

The goodness of God's Wisdom W is absorbed in the course of our lives Ϣ as we reflect upon its attributes ϟ as revealed in the things that are made. In his mercy, the Father has chosen our delusions. In spite of the presumptions of any or all of us, the understandings that are crystallizing within each of us are holy tapestries being woven with threads of Wisdom W, because enlightenment Ϣ is our destiny ϟ.

Gematria 345 ϢϟW: Wisdom's W projection from within the whole of humanity ϟ by means of the Life shared by us all is the enlightenment Ϣ.

Ordinal 39 ⊗ϛ > 12 ϡϚ > 3 ϒ: An elder ϛ who is self-absorbed ⊗ deprives Ϛ his household ϡ of continuity ϒ.

Targum: If Wisdom's W light Ϣ is given free reign ϟ, it will stimulate W vision Ϣ within everyone ϟ.

𐤍𐤅𐤃 Nod נוד

to wander, wonder; "land" to the east of Eden, i.e., uncharted territories that existed before creation of the Garden.

The Torah account of Nod is so lean, and I began looking at the record as a puzzle. Whether inspired or deluded discovered a path to treasures hidden in the meanings of its names as interpreted within the context of their times. The path was known at the times of the disciple wrote the Gospel of Truth, but I didn't know that at the time.

My work is amateurish; but by studying Nod in this manner, I found that my thoughts became like heave offerings. I considered each letter within the names and timelines as keys could unlock concepts about the l journey of just one man; and I began looking for triangulation between Nod's names and times as they impacted my own thoughts. Mild curiosity at the start was rewarded by much more than had been anticipated.

In essence, I saw myself as one uncovering an archaeological dig. My job was to isolate and study a word's elements as if they had been hidden for the purpose of making declaration to me as I examined them without the burdens of dialectic dogma.

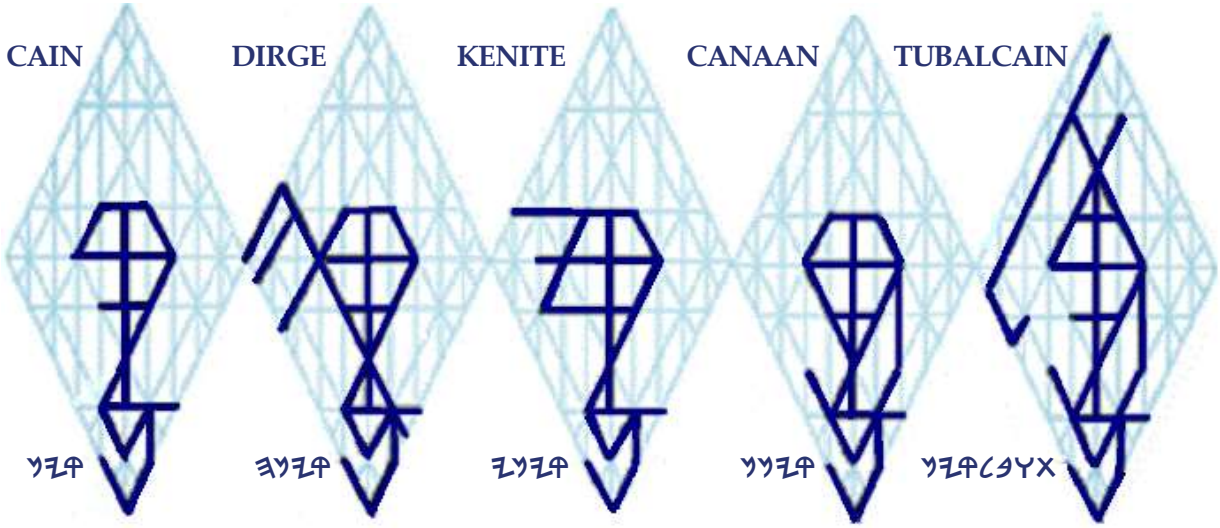

If this tale of Nod is outrageous, I have no fear whether it's particularly offensive to the Spirit of Holiness. I've been working on this book for three decades, conscious of HaShem's presence within my innermost thoughts.

God 𐤀𐤋—𐤀𐤋𐤄 Allah, 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤄 𐤀𐤋𐤄𐤉𐤌 YHWH Elohim—does not judge a man by a word, nor by so many words as these, but by the fruits of his studies, which bear the imprint of his heart. If the husbandman be true, then those words that God brings to mind as the man is permitted to have his say are honorable words that speak of things both old and new.

This tale is offered to HaShem in appreciation of wealth of undiscovered truths in Torah. The Father will make of this work whatsoever pleases him, which is my pleasure, also. If I should serve as no more than a minor fool in the throne room of the King, that would be a great honor. I deserve oblivion. What you risk by continuing to read is not mine to say. I will say this, however, I promise to write the truth as I see it, come what may.

Ordinal 24 𐤃𐤏; Gematria 60 𐤎: Tents 𐤃 spread 𐤏 under the Tree of Life 𐤎.

The Generation of Cain

It is not for man to direct his steps.

There is natural man and there is spiritual man. The tendency is to think of them as separate individuals. That seems correct, but the fact is that both exist within each of us. God speaks once, to the faithless man; yes, twice, to the man of faith. Man doesn't perceive what is said because the words are intended for the benefit of both.

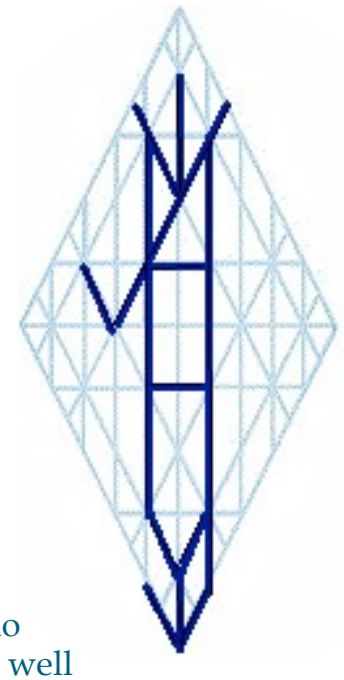

The faithless man will understand what is said as it relates to his faithlessness, and the faithful man will understand what is said as it relates to his faithfulness. One is driven; the other, led. One is accused; the other, excused.

However, it is written that God is no respecter of persons: that all are condemned in his sight because none is without error; and to be guilty of one thing is to be guilty of everything. If the heavens are not clean in the sight of HaShem, how is it that we can think of each other as sinners and saints, the lost and the saved?

At heaven's gate, those on the left and the right stand without, waiting to enter. The holy spark within the Breath of Life is within both; but unless their inner bowls are filled with oil, there can be no lamplight, and entry into the wedding chamber of the City of Light will be denied; for no darkness shall mar its halls. The bowls of the lamps are sephirot, and oil is produced with the brothers interact.

The good shames the bad, and the bad tests the good: their struggles, whatever the contentions, release the oil of understanding in each, and as oil levels increase, the holy spark can enlighten both.

The difference between the good thief and the bad thief on the hill of Golgotha is one of understanding. The good thief sees messiah as the man he ought to have been. The bad thief sees messiah as a reflection of himself, not as the measurement of man he is asked to attain for himself. The good thief's shame is a reflection of his love; the bad thief's derision is a reflection of his hatred of himself. Thus, the good thief lives and the bad thief dies. Both are equal in sin, but they are unequal in faith.

חנוך Enoch חינוך

education, schooling, upbringing; training, indoctrination.

Having shown no remorse for killing his brother Abel, Cain fixed his attention on the life of his firstborn. The boy would be useful. He would become a fuller, more sophisticated projection of who and what Cain saw himself to be. He calculated that success as a father would tip the scales of judgment back in his direction, offsetting any blame he had earned in Abel's misfortune.

Cain reconsidered ח his brother's י passing ת. That it had been predictable and almost unavoidable ע held no surprise! For some time after the misfortune, it had been well past time to move on and by the time young Enoch was born, the enthusiasm ח natural to first-time fathers had twisted within Cain. It had metastasized י into a boastful, self-righteous, self-serving ת arrogance ע.

Yes, he had been maligned, shunned, and—yes!—ostracized because he was the brother who had been marked by the Father's curse in front of everybody. Yes, he was Cain; and he would make amends on his own! He had come to view ח this son י as his own property ת. He would become the means of his father's public vindication ע. Cain would use him well.

When alone, every now and then but less frequently as time moved on, he sometimes wished he could muster ת the strength and fortitude ו to admit א that he had been—in part, at least, it might be said by some—to blame ג; but before he could take a public step in that direction, he would require assurance that repentance would put an end כ to the hassles ו, the humiliating ס aggravation ן! In this hateful time, he would build Enoch!

Early on, young Enoch would be trained to manage the city that Cain envisioned for his posterity. He intended to bury the memory of Abel under its walls; so it was vital that Enoch's ascendancy in Nod be truly legendary! With that goal above any real concern for the boy himself, Cain remained anxious; for he was unwilling to entertain an alternative to his intentions. He could not fail!

A selfish father, Cain's relationship with Enoch had been nearly hopeless from its beginning. Self-promotion was the father's priority, and he needed to spend his time focused on his involvement in own affairs; so he avoided natural connections with his son by framing every moment he spent with the lad in terms of his own needs and expectations.

He kept coming back to this strategy for parenting because he believed it was the right approach. From Enoch's birth, the father had been determined to exploit the son's energies for his own purposes. He made no apology; but he sensed Adam's concern, which Cain took as accusation—a judgment that would have to be proven wrong.

In moments of unspoken doubt, however, he was always surprised to realize that he'd grown tired of this public charade, and of its effects within his family. Upset by a complicated future, he bitterly considered his predicament and doubted the likelihood of his ability to control all variables—even if they were limited to those that had already presented themselves.

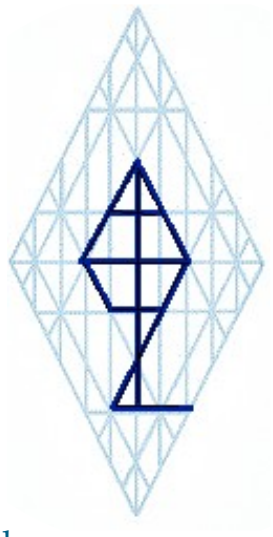

He suspected that, in some future, he would not have the wherewithal to do all that would be required of him; but what did he know of the future! He did not like it, but he conceded that he was not the master of his days.

In Enoch of Nod, residents would not be allowed to question his edicts; for his rule would override concerns of lesser men. To Cain's recovering senses, Adam's expulsion and banishment to Nod was his way of escaping from the Heavenly Father's faces; for do-good Adam had also become tarnished! Cain would make use of this opportunity by establishing an organizational structure that would advance and secure his legacy in Nod.

In the exhilaration of planning ahead, he persuaded himself that the details of his loss of standing because of his fight with Abel had faded, somewhat, which he read as tacit acceptance of his natural inflexibility: first, he wasn't responsible for his nature; second, he had not died after allowing his God-given nature to take its course. If truth be told, it was known among all that God was the one to blame.

Should Cain die in the future (God forbid), his offspring would grow to appreciate his insight about what must follow; but for the moment, Cain's decisive and unrivaled leadership of the clan was the way to achieve prosperity.

𐤀𐤓𐤃𐤏 Irad עירד

a town or enterprise 𐤓𐤃𐤏 that's hidden 𐤀.

Young Irad was a prodigy. This son of Cain—this projection of the elder's attributes—would be a godsend for the growing city! Irad had been born with keen 𐤏 expertise in the uses of 𐤋 leverage 𐤓. His thought was in the same lane as Father Cain's, but quicker. A clever boy!

Not over manipulative, Irad wouldn't press his natural advantages so far as to make Father Cain jealous or uncomfortable 𐤀. No, he was content to put his thumb on the scales as unobtrusively as the sequence of events would allow without arousing complaint. He needed to keep his father happy, but he'd have to keep an eye out for the watchers. They were always around, doing their best to—well, whatever it is that they do.

Cain saw, right away, that young Irad's skills would block any attempts to fathom 𐤏 his methods. It made the father proud, and it made the son invaluable. He would take his cues and make his moves according to the skills of this wonder he had sired; for he was confident that Irad would find the means to make use of 𐤋 his mastery 𐤓 of perceptions 𐤀 . Why not?! It was for the family!

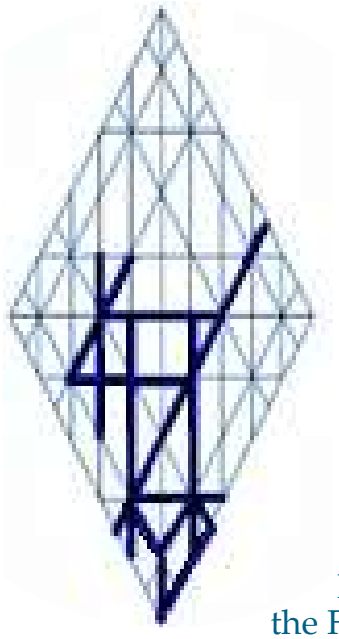

There were dark 𐤏 tools that could be used to manipulate 𐤋 people who couldn't see the value of what he was engineering. They were superstitious, ruled 𐤓 by their passions 𐤀. Irad would know them all, and they would succumb to his artistry. Hypnosis was his favorite trick.

Minds that can be hypnotized are blank, even when they are filled with thought: it's as if nobody is home, which is perfect! Irad would turn thought against thought, just enough for him to implant other, unnoticed thoughts 𐤏, which he would use to manage 𐤋 an opponent's 𐤓 impressions 𐤀.

Cain admired Irad's subtlety 𐤏. He would be careful not to let that show. The rascal would take advantage. It was more than a little worrisome: the lad was able to win 𐤋 control 𐤓 of the perceptions 𐤀 of others while masking 𐤏 what he was up to. Most would agree 𐤋 that the mind is governed 𐤓 by the heart 𐤀, which is the wellspring of words. A master 𐤓 at using vocal 𐤂 barbs 𐤀 to vent 𐤉 his displeasure 𐤑, the father hoped to better 𐤓 the son's tactics 𐤀.

Whatever might happen, Cain wouldn't allow opponents to gain a foothold in Enoch. He would summarily put an end to any opposition 𐤏 before it could become problematic: there would be no danger of direct 𐤆 challenge to his authority 𐤍 in the land of Nod! Cain wanted permanence 𐤃!

𐤌𐤇𐤆𐤉𐤀𐤋 Mehujael מחויאל

obliterated 𐤆𐤉𐤇𐤌 by God 𐤌𐤀: erased, dissolved, destroyed; cleansed.

Bringing to bear the talents of such assistants as talented Irad, as needed, Cain anticipated little serious opposition to his plans for Nod. Unless he was mistaken, the family would follow his lead without resistance; but it was beginning to look as though he would always hav to be mindful of the displeasure of the Presence. There was little he could do about that, but he would keep it in mind.

Having already been put on notice, he had come to expect the Father to find fault with his behavior, his hopes, his plans. Obvious resistance to evidence of the Father's hand in his affairs would invite obvious response, and the fence-sitters would be sure to raise a stink. Cain decided that he would temporize his reactions. If only he could!

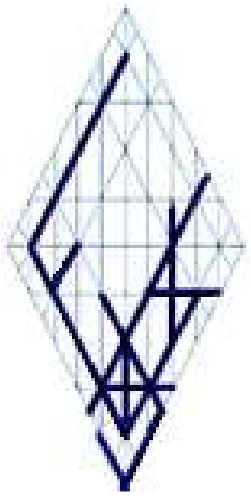

It would be hard to hold himself back, and what truly worried him was that the Father might raise obstacles that he couldn't anticipate and for which he couldn't prepare: coming from dreaded antagonists, certainly, but also from other deadly sources as well, be they friend, or foe.

Despite his ability to manhandle family, therefore, Cain was increasingly plagued by a burr of uncertainty 𐤌. He was developing a fixation 𐤇 on greater censure 𐤉 he might be earning 𐤆 through his inability 𐤀 to follow the pattern he'd been taught. The growing doubt was a worrisome blow 𐤋 that was followed 𐤌 by bouts of depression 𐤇.

Though its delivery hadn't been scathing, the judgment 𐤉 levied against him 𐤆 by God's 𐤀 intervention in his affairs had, nonetheless, been a serious rebuke 𐤋. At every turn, it seemed, Cain found himself constantly reflecting upon his memory 𐤌 of his private 𐤇 struggle with God's judgment 𐤉.

Unspoken accusation 𐤆 is potent 𐤀 in its malignancy 𐤋, and it was taking its toll on Cain's soul. But because he was afraid 𐤗 that he would be weakened 𐤁 if he should back down 𐤈, Cain's choice 𐤁 was to forego the congenial norms 𐤌 of relationships 𐤇. He would lock it all down 𐤉: he would commit to maintaining 𐤆 strict 𐤀 control 𐤋.

𐤌𐤕𐤅𐤔𐤀𐤋 Methusael מתושאל

weakened 𐤅𐤗𐤔 by 𐤉 God 𐤀𐤋.

Admittedly, Cain had been embarrassed 𐤔 by the stigma 𐤗 of judgment made against him 𐤉. It irritated 𐤅 his ego, his identity 𐤃. He hadn't fully caught the threat of it at first, but now the challenge had the crisp clarity of the snap of a whip 𐤁.

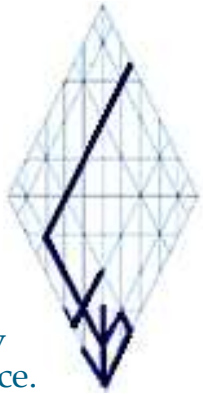

Yes, he had belittled 𐤔 its significance 𐤗 in front of everybody 𐤉, but he had been furious 𐤅 that the Father 𐤃 had rebuked 𐤁 him so openly!

He couldn't get away from it: whether he deserved it or not, he would forever be remembered 𐤔 as the brother marked by the Father's curse, and wearing the sign of disfavor tore at him 𐤗. Off and on when by himself—again, he had to admit—he sometimes wished he could muster 𐤉 the strength and fortitude 𐤅 to give it all up and admit 𐤃 that he had been wrong 𐤁, just to have it all over and done! Put it all behind him! Why not?!

Before he could take that gambit, however, he would first have to be met with iron-clad assurances 𐤔 that a confession would put an end 𐤗 to the hassles 𐤅, the continuous 𐤏 aggravation 𐤎! At such times, it seemed as though is mind had become entrapped in a loop! In a moment of clarity, Cain was, again, surprised 𐤏 to realize 𐤄 that he was—indeed—weakening, growing weary 𐤈: even of his ambitions 𐤎 for Enoch!

Should he succeed, his dubious reward would be the tiresome obligations 𐤇 of patrimony 𐤂. In free fall 𐤍, now, over the complications 𐤔 of his predicament 𐤗, he was sure 𐤉 he wouldn't have strength 𐤅, either to persevere as an individual 𐤃, or to maintain control as a leader 𐤁. It was becoming plainer each day that, somewhere 𐤔 in the future 𐤗, he would no longer have what it would take 𐤅 to realize 𐤏 his goals 𐤎.

𐤋𐤔𐤁 Lamech למך

in 𐤁 poverty 𐤋𐤔; with 𐤁 the poor, the humble 𐤋𐤔.

Generations pass, and the impacts of error lessen until, at last, mercy can begin its work. At the first reading, the error of Lamech seems very much like the sin of elder Cain, in that they both had taken the lives of other men; but there was real difference.

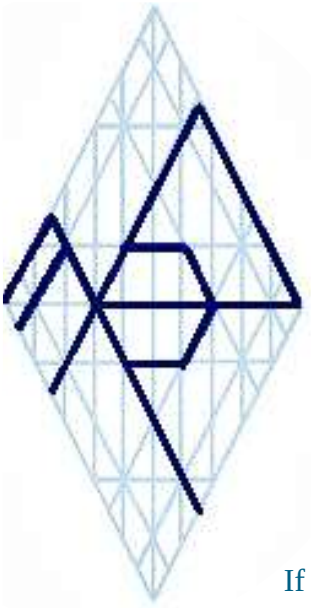

Yes, Lamech had killed a man. Perhaps he had murdered him in his heart, as well! The received text doesn't say, but it does record Lamech's confession. Elder Cain had not confessed. Neither did he truly repent.

Discouraged ל by the confusion מ and rampant chaos ע in the hamlet of Enoch in the Land of Nod, Lamech understood that he'd fallen captive to the town's spiritual poverty. Yes, he had "fallen": the realm of light he had known before coming to Earth was buried in the thick darkness of life in Nod.

His great guilt at having caused the death of another was building humility in him. He lagged behind ל its potential, however, because of his association with self-indulgent מ and reckless ע peers.

Alarmed by the mayhem in their lives, Lamech lamented ל the instability מ and disorder ע of Nod. Even his near kinfolk needed guidance ל. It was if they'd fallen ית captive to the seductive trap ⊗ח of defensive defiance ר Lamech's self-absorbed admission of guilt had been a feeble attempt at prayer, but it was a start!

אדע Adah עדה

community; flock, herd, swarm; assembly; testimony, precept witness; be-jeweled; to skip, to neglect, omit, ignore; to gainsay, minimize; to disrespect.

Shamed about the prevalence ס of pain ד within the lives א of the family, Adah was slow to welcome Lamech's confession. It was obvious ס his recent heartache ד had found a little relief א, but she was dismayed ס by the cost ד it would shower on the rest א.

If the man's kin ס called for punishment ד, only spilled blood could satisfy א. Everyone needed to put burdens on the family for one reason or another, but Lamech's lament had exposed all of them to another level of recriminations and senseless killings: not by what he had done, but because his telling of it had painted targets on all their backs!

Well, that was how she first saw it, but thinking on it, now, she realized that all of them had blood guilt long before this! Dark deeds had swallowed up every good thing any of them had ever done, it seemed to her; and their silence had made them all complicit in every bad thing.

She had been daydreaming ס about possibilities ד of escape ג, when she was unexpectedly astonished ס by a stab ד of regret ג: it wasn't fitting ס that her family should find relief ג while the loved ones of her husband's victims still suffered ד!

As things stood, everyone was hurting. Soberly ס monitoring ד her feelings ג, she began to seek ג an opening ד that could lead to the wellbeing ג of everyone.

Adah suspected that—just beyond her vision ג, a guardian was watching over them all ⊗. She understood ס that finding and following an open path ד to healing might take a while ג; but her growing expectation ע was that a remedy ג would present itself, offering a way of escape ז, even though tragedy ע was favored ג, so strongly, to prevail ז

גחז Zillah צלה

shadow, shade; to roast, braise

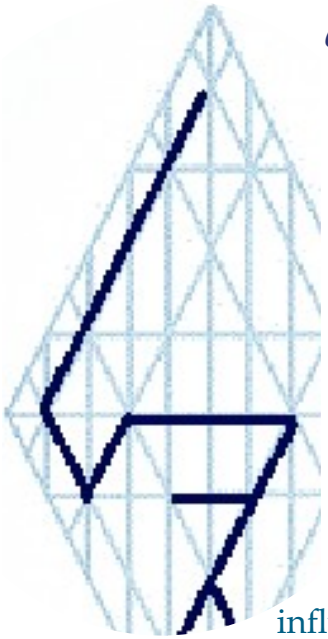

Too often disappointed, Zillah had, long ago, abandoned ר pursuit of any grand role ח in life ג; and she feared ר punishment ח for what she considered to be her weakness ג.

She had lost interest ר in disciplining ח her reactions ג, because it never seemed to work for her; and her mounting frustration ר had undermined ח her confidence. She was faced with impossible choices ג!

Suspicion ר had become the driving force ח in Zillah's life ג because she so dreaded פ juggling complex ע options, which might change in an instant ג.

Experience ר had conditioned her ח to be distrustful ג, even of herself ה. She dodged ר challenges ח, when possible distrustful ג. Her only remaining hope was that she could avoid פ further exposure ע . She had vulnerabilities ג.

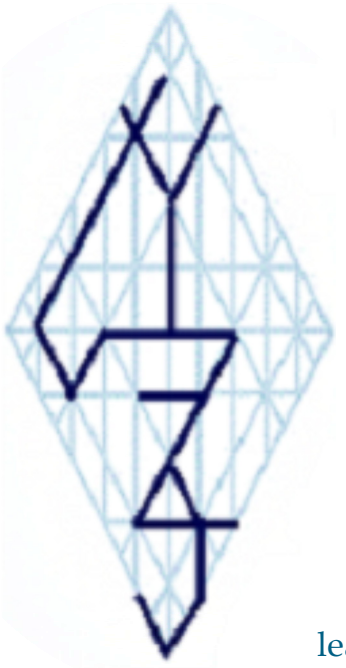

𐤉𐤁𐤋 Jabal יבל

to carry, transport, haul.

Adah's love may not have led to Lamech's redemption; but had surely prepared her children to live more peaceful and, by far, more profitable lives. Elder Enoch had been conditioned by the fantasies within the father's mind. Cain had believed, but more than a few knew better.

Adah's children had been raised in the chariot of her embrace according to the demands of her heart. It was her nature for her to celebrate 𐤏 her love 𐤃 for nurturing 𐤉, and Jabal's usefulness 𐤆 had developed 𐤋 under the guidance 𐤊 of that love; for Adah's influence had weakened 𐤌 the chains that had bound the family so firmly 𐤋 to Father Cain.

As young Jabal matured, he took on responsibility 𐤆 in the family, and he welcomed 𐤋 his role 𐤊. Cautious 𐤆 and careful 𐤋 when facing problems 𐤊, he had never shied away 𐤆 from direct physical 𐤋 challenges 𐤊, but he had shown himself reluctant 𐤆 to visit 𐤋 force of any kind against another 𐤊.

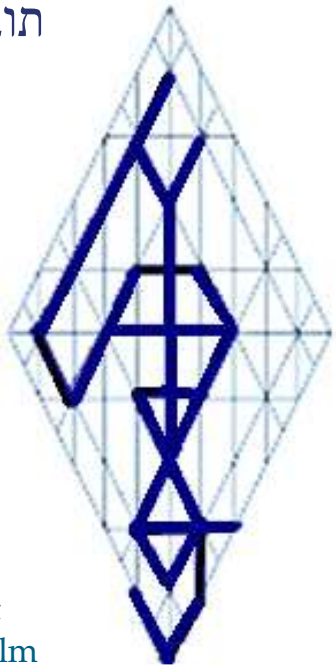

𐤉𐤁𐤉𐤆 Jubal יובל

stream, brook, tributary; river; jubilee.

Jubal brought a touch 𐤆 of joy 𐤉 to the homes 𐤋 of the elderly 𐤊 in Enoch.

His visits lent them 𐤆 hope 𐤉 because he heard 𐤋 their complaints 𐤊 and gave 𐤆 their opinions 𐤉 serious consideration 𐤋. His mother had taught that change 𐤊 comes 𐤆 only 𐤉 when warranted 𐤋, and he understood repentance 𐤊 to be a learning 𐤊 process 𐤍. He gave 𐤆 others hope 𐤉 because he truly cared for them 𐤋; and his compassion built upon itself, leading 𐤊 to real improvement 𐤌 in his own outlook 𐤄.

𐤕𐤅𐤁𐤋𐤒𐤉𐤍 Tubalcain תובלקין

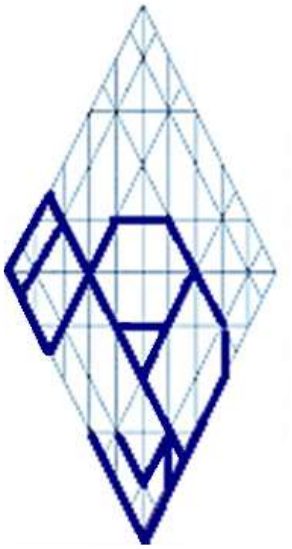

a renewal of Cain

Atonement 𐤎 can be very difficult 𐤉, living in a cursed family 𐤂 whose patriarch 𐤋 had secretly 𐤐 murdered 𐤆 his brother 𐤄. Driving a stake in the legacy of his past, Tubalcain made a determination 𐤎 to dedicate 𐤐 himself to honesty 𐤈 in relationships 𐤇; and that resolve had opened new opportunities 𐤃 for healing 𐤇.

In the nuanced 𐤄 context of his interactions 𐤇, therefore, he had sworn to engage 𐤆 the bile of hate 𐤈 from within the stability of love 𐤁: he would meet direct confrontation 𐤎 with the calm patience 𐤉 characteristic of Cain's brother Abel, as he understood the legend. Because he was aware 𐤂 of his limitations 𐤋, however, he would remain circumspect 𐤐 as he engaged 𐤆 the citizens 𐤄 of Nod.

𐤍𐤏𐤌𐤄 Naamah נעמה

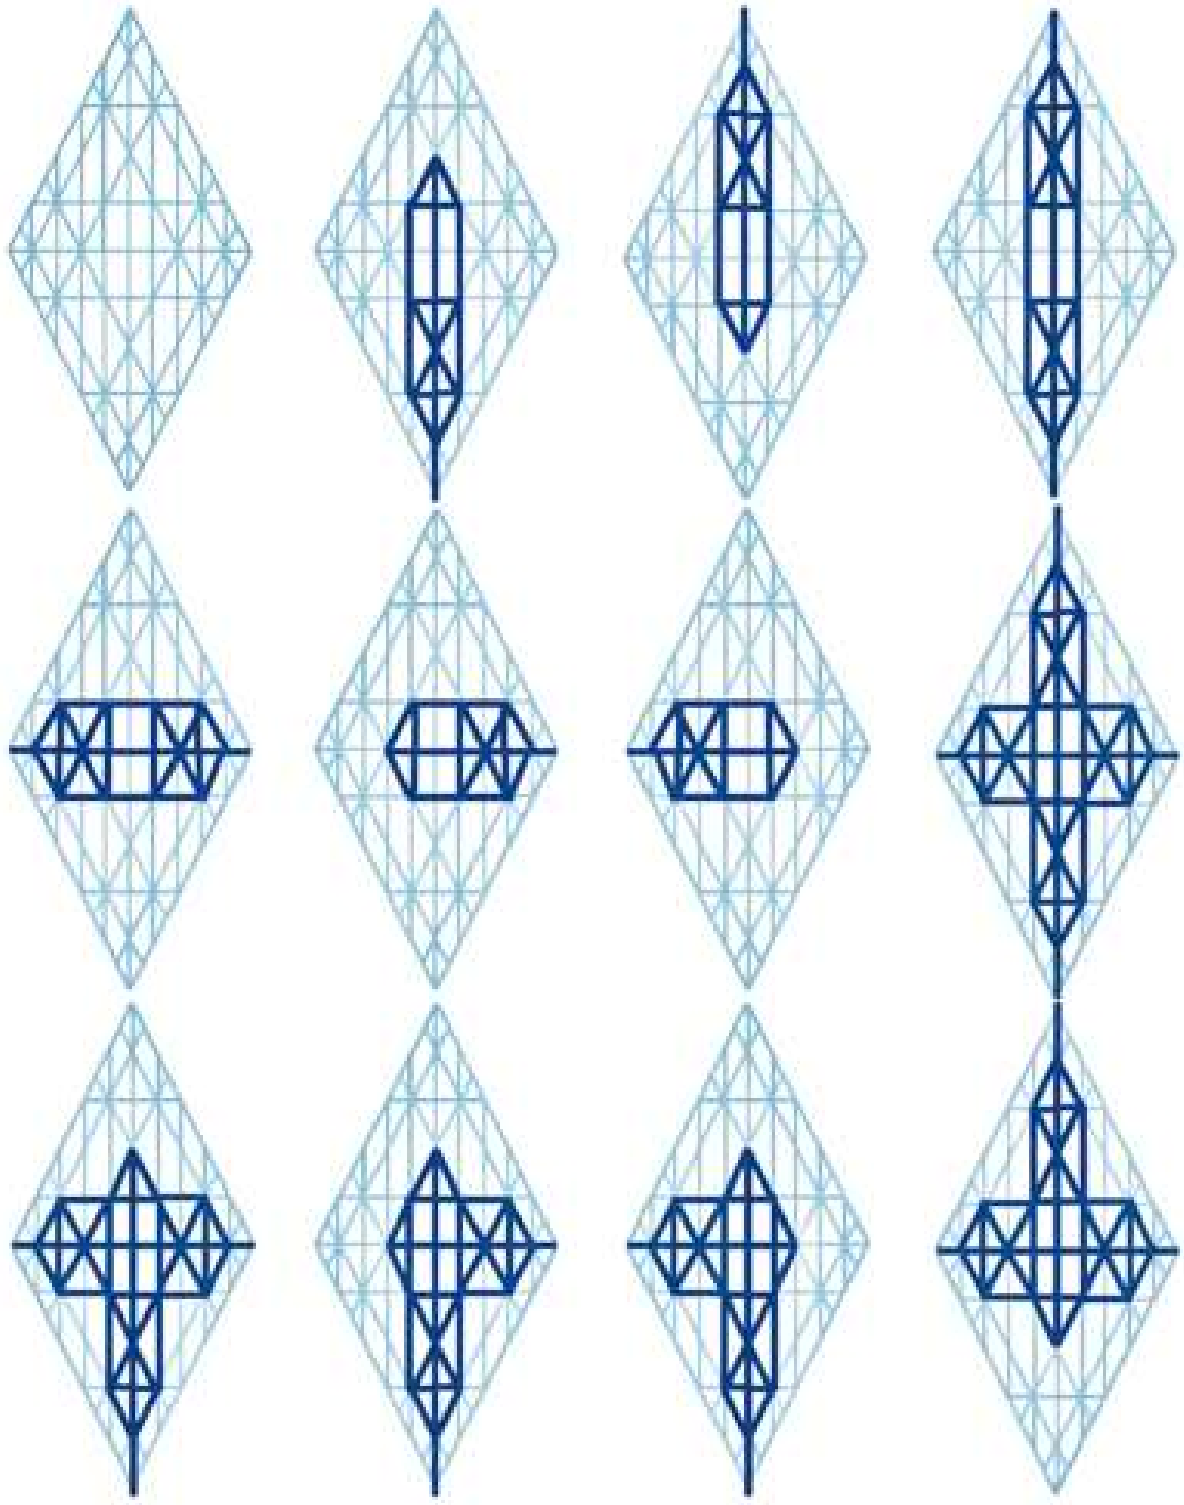

pleasant, lovely; charming, agreeable

An effect 𐤄 of her compassion 𐤏, Naamah's spontaneity was genuine 𐤇; and her infrequent assumptions about others 𐤄 were born of watchful understanding 𐤏.

Carefree 𐤌 and happy 𐤇, she was committed 𐤐 to the support 𐤎 of every life 𐤇. Unassuming 𐤌 by nature, her companionship 𐤇 offered 𐤆 comfortable 𐤂 intimacy 𐤈.

If she should stumble 𐤄 or become overwhelmed by the drudgery 𐤏 of life in Nod, she would seek both rescue 𐤌 and relief 𐤇; for she truly wanted 𐤄 to understand 𐤏 the disorders 𐤌 in her life 𐤇.

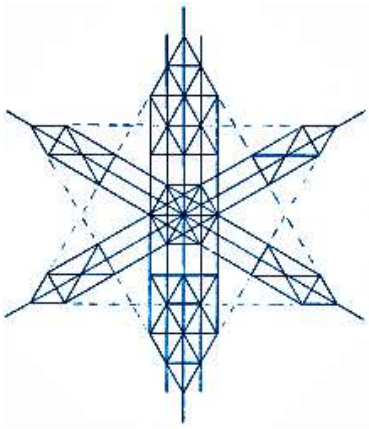

She would keep watch!

The Crown Diamond:

Orientations for Meditation

The Generation of Adam
Within the Wheel of Life

Let there Be!

This first utterance of HaShem is directed to each of us.

Messiah is the Child of Light being born within each of us. We are midwives to the birth, and we can avoid complications by reliance on the counsel of HaShem. Silent but visceral, the voice of HaShem is projected upon our hearts through the agency of Yahushua HaMashiyach; and its resonate impacts can be measured.

It is written, "I was once alive apart from the law, but when the commandment came, sin came alive and I died."

The freedom we knew in the Garden led to error, and to our banishment in the Land of Nod, with its challenges, its difficulties, its shortcomings. The freedom of Eden was lost to us, and we found ourselves in a land that required us to measure our lives, from moment to moment. Our heavens had become brass, and the Earth beneath our feet as unrelenting as iron.

Bound tightly within our trials, we forgot that the grounds upon which we now walk were cursed for our benefit, not for our punishment; for we are healed by the stripes we suffer. The regrets and the heartaches would be insufferable, were they not offset by periods of mercy and rest and salted by moments of happiness and true joy.

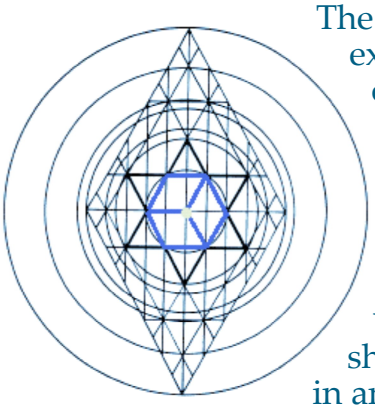

Our measurements of discomfort remind us that we're on a journey: that we are strangers in this land of Nod, even unto ourselves. We entertain glimpses of a better life, and those daydreams—even if no more than wishful thinking—are lifelines extended from above. They spur us to carry on, for better or for worse: if for worse, it is to increase our hunger; if for better, it is to increase our hope.

Our poets sing us the refrain, "There will be an answer, let it be." And we know that they are right; for dispair is the cousin of self-pity. If we make it through the dark nights of the soul, we ae forced to admit that, by our stripes, we were healed. At a minimum, we improved; for survival made us stronger. We could lick our wounds and busy ourselves with bitterness, but—truth be told— as we measure our lives going forward, we understand that the gravels that tore at us evened the road, somewhat, making the future less daunting.

Remembering

In the Garden of Eden, the Breath of Life quickened our lives by positioning the spiritual energies of HaShem within the thick darkness of our physical bodies. The Breath we share is both Life and the power that enlivens; for we exist before time, and wherever we happen to find ourselves within time, the Presence is with us and outpaces us; for the sentience within us is the ember of that which we are becoming.

We are blessed with the gift of Life, whose essence is eternal because it is the substance of HaShem. He entrusted us with himself. By the rule of his rod and through the guidance of his staff, it is the eternal Father's great pleasure that we should forever walk with him in the halls of Life Everlasting. As we move forward to perfection as differentiations of Hashem, we inhale our futures as we exhale our pasts in pursuit of perfection.

The good news is that every inhale is a birth, even as every exhale is a death. We walk securely within Galilee, the circle of Life. If any should insist that Galilee is a patch of land on planet Earth, I will agree, with stipulation that the invisible things of HaShem are hidden in things that are made. The Hebrew name for Gilgal 𐤂𐤋𐤂𐤋 conveys recognition that, as we move forward 𐤋, we receive 𐤆 guidance 𐤂, so that when we ascend 𐤋, we can benefit 𐤆 from our instruction 𐤂. We keep our shoulders pressed to the Wheel of Life so long as we go in and out; for wheels turn within wheels.

Adam's Life: a Generation Process

What is said unto one is said unto all, and what is said unto all is said unto one. Together, we are one with the 𐤀𐤃𐤌 of the Garden, the 𐤀𐤃𐤌 of Galilee, and with the 𐤀𐤃𐤌 who is yet to come. None of these is a stranger to us. We've known them forever. Before the temporal realm, we were One without differentiation; and by means of the temporal, we are becoming a new One, but with differentiation. Rooted in HaShem, we shall know as we are known; and we shall embrace each other with the love and mercy many reserve for themselves.

That which happens within any one of us happens within us all because we are One from the beginning and share roots in Heaven, if not on Earth; however, our experience is uniquely our own because of the savor of differentiation. We are living anomalies. We are generations of the Sons of Man 𐤀𐤃𐤌—of 𐤀𐤃𐤌 Adam; and each of us is to be discovered within all as we progress within the company of all, on and beyond the path to perfection.

This study is offered as a window on what is written in Oracular Torah. The eternal Word will never be irrelevant. Endings are unique to the temporal realm. Inspired texts do not become dead letters, mere compendiums of quotable sayings. It is we who are dead if we think Torah is temporal, a relic commemorating the overthrow of Mizraim 𐤌𐤑𐤓𐤉𐤌 by a mixed multitude.

"Egypt" signifies confinement, captivity: the boundaries others put upon us or that we put upon ourselves. We are to come out of confinement within the historical perspective, with its anecdotal opinions and the bewildering listings of biblical names and places that are little more than ringing bells. Biblical names are keys to concepts peculiar to the parable in which they appear. They are parables within parables, and their meanings will blossom within God's children, so that the Son of Man may be fully generated in their hearts.

There are longer and more complex genealogies in scripture than the genealogy of Genesis, Chapter Five, but it is unique and more opaque because it lists times as well as names. A parable like no other, it establishes correlations of wheels that revolve within wheels. Beyond what is presented here, there are yet other implications that I haven't fully explored. I see through a glass darkly, and my skill and understandings are not able to convey even all I perceive.

The advent of artificial intelligence marks the end of the world in which institutional powers peddle incompatible paradigms with partisan rhetoric designed to enflame the passions of their followers, so blind masses within the imprisoning ditches called faiths will war with one another to the detriment of all, believers and disbelievers alike. As it is written of the blind and their leaderships, "Because of them, the way of truth is evil spoken of."

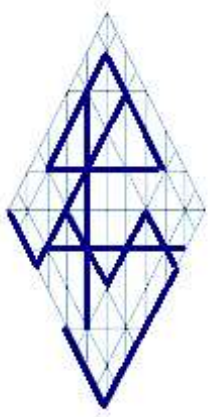

Humanity is at the threshold of a new level of understanding. Many mechanics of inquiry are now resolved by tapping a few buttons on a keyboard, freeing the mind to indulge imagination and to verify inspirational thought. In the fullness of time, I must repeat, we are all to be perfected—not only saved, but perfected. Together, we will enjoy perfection as vehicles of The Name.

The times and rhythms of the lives of the early fathers alert us to the patterns we experience within our own lives. Presently, most children of light walk in the seal of the Father's hand. Through the process of salvation—by the generation of the perfected Adam within our beings—we are to become worthy of the forehead seal received by Rebbe Y'shua, the Essene Teacher of Righteousness, who the world has renamed "Jesus" ("Just Us"), in fear of the Father's outstretched arm. The children of the world fear the Father. Rightly so, but the only way of escape is into the Rather's hand.

If we're not yet able to receive Y'shua's forehead seal, called the Circle of Light, we can progress, within grace, under the seal of the Father's hand. In the footsteps of Y'shua, we can make way through our limitations as we proceed from the generation of Adam within our hearts unto the generation of David, the King. From there, it is but a twinkle of an eye to the Son of Man.

HaMashiyach is the resurrection and the light. More than conquerors, we are to walk with messiah Y'Shua 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏 as Sons of David 𐤃𐤅𐤃: serving at rest and secure in the hand of 𐤀𐤋 Yah, the heavenly Father, as we undertake those works that are entrusted to our hands by HaMashiyach Yahushua 𐤉𐤄𐤅𐤔𐤏, the Angel of the Presence of HaShem 𐤌𐤋𐤀𐤊 𐤀𐤐𐤀𐤋. Yahushua is the Interface between the Eternal and the temporal realms of Creation.

Nod is a land of wanderers—of sojourners. We walk within wheels rotating within wheels that revolve within yet greater wheels. Nod swallows both the disinherited family of elder Cain and the chosen remnant of the family of Adam. The linear aspect of incarnation, as the temporal transects the arc of the eternal, can conjure the illusion of a spiral under the seductive ambience of Havilah, which offers diversion from our pressing business in the Land of Nod.

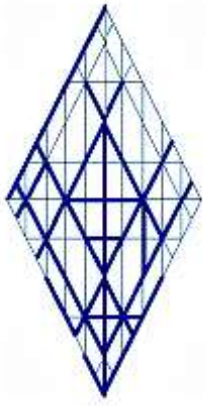

𐤀𐤉𐤅 𐤗𐤓𐤌𐤉 𐤌𐤋𐤅𐤊

30 and 100 year

When Adam was 130 years old, he had a son in his own likeness, after his own image; and he named him Seth 𐤔𐤅.

30 𐤊 an elder of the 100 𐤒 Kingdom

The Chronicles of Nod, then, is based on an unusual reading of the grand parable of Genesis, Chapter Five; but it is not a private interpretation. Intellect did not contrive it. Like Mohamed, I protest that those who doubt the sincerity of this work should try composing a similar text on their own. The narrative treats of the Life we share together as we travel the Land of Nod together. In its strengths. it honors The Name, as does the transparency of its weaknesses.

Remembering the Insinuation of the Serpent

When the serpent spoke its truth, whispers of doubt had arisen in Eden. Adam was unmoved by the new voice, but Eve had been intrigued; for the voice spoke of alternatives. The concept was new to her, and she wanted to know more. She had received the instruction about the tree in the midst of the garden as a teaching, not as a commandment that might be obeyed or disobeyed; and neither she nor Adam had asked for further explanation when it was voiced.

Listening to the serpent, Eve had been transfixed by the concept of alternatives. Yes, they were free to eat of every tree but one. Choice had always been before them; but except for eating of the lesser tree, there had never been options for which consequences might be harmful. Death had no meaning to Eve, and she had no reason to fear it. Like all other things of which she knew, "death" might work for their good. It was no small matter, and Eve had wanted to know more.

Whether or not she chose to eat of the tree's fruit, she had known in her heart that, because of the encounter with the serpent, her mind would forever be looking for hidden alternatives and actual outcomes for—well, for everything. Besides, the Father had opened the door to questioning alternatives on his own, if the command not to eat had been a prohibitive warning against adverse consequences. HaShem had made choice possible, in the first place, and she could not believe HaShem would put a stumbling block before them.

The Word of HaShem is consistent, but they had been alerted that a new understanding of HaShem's words would come upon them. Unchanging words would be received into new understandings. They had been taught that the Word of HaShem did not waver with bias on the continuum between yes and no; so the challenge of finding bedrock truth justified Eve's dilemma. Because nothing is new under the sun, Eve had understood that the hidden things of HaShem were open before them.

A sobriquet for every name and title belonging to the Breath of Life, the expression "HaShem" is much like an impersonal pronoun. Neither male nor female, HaShem is both male and female. Further, as manifestation of the same deity, 𐤏𐤌𐤍𐤅 Immanual hides among us as a Shepherd, whereas YHWH Elohim 𐤌𐤋𐤀𐤊 𐤀𐤉𐤀𐤋 hides among us as a King. One but not the same, both are found between the inhale and the exhale of our breathing; for Breath is Spirit, not air. Eve had worshipped as she struggled with her thoughts.

Yet Another Look: Stepping Outside the Trap of Time

God is God, and there is no other, however we might express our thoughts of what that means; for the moment we define the Infinite One, we have created an idol. Parochial beings, we are all too ready to make each other offenders for the words we use. That is the way of fallen man, but not of God.

We are not to make a man an offender for a word. Allah 𐤀𐤏𐤊, the merciful 𐤀 God 𐤏𐤊, has exhorted us to be gracious to one another. In mercy without end, HaShem has called upon us all to learn the meaning of the phrase, "I will have mercy, not sacrifice."

By those things revealed through the prophets and the anointed servants of HaShem, we've learned much more about life and death than is apparent in the garden narrative, as it has been received through accepted translations of Genesis. We assume the couple encountered the serpent before the Tree of Knowledge, but that may not be the case; for Eve may have spoken of the trees as a single tree, as is suggested by the expression "the tree that is the midst of the garden." A forbidden tree would not have been placed in the very center of the Garden of Eden. That understanding makes a charade of Creation.

To the contrary, the arms of dualism, like the two laws of Torah—the good and the not good, working together for good; like the two laws operating within the human organism in their struggle to bring forth immortal form from mortal formations; and, pointedly, like the positive and negative aspects underlying the physics of matter within Creation: like every dualism, the two trees of the Garden of Eden share the same root; and that truth is fundamental to progress.

That there was confusion about the instruction is apparent because Eve had added that they were not so much as to "touch the tree. That caveat is not supported by affirmation anywhere in scripture. Putting the matter of touching the tree aside, God forbid for any to assume the Tree of Life was in the middle of the garden of Eden and the Tree of Knowledge was somewhere nearby.

My reading is that both trees were at the garden's center. The difference, then, is one of perception; for the judgment against eating was immediate, as understood in the words of the judgment, "...unless Man puts forth his hand and takes also of the Tree of Life." At a minimum, the trees were in very close proximity. I am certain they were a thought apart.

As I understand the narrative, pursuing knowledge of the material world without seeking the higher spiritual understandings of which is is a reflection is to eat for the purpose of empowerment. It reflects a covetous desire to become more godlike. Such behavior does not recognize that HaShem is at the center of each heart, and that all lesser truths are understood in light of that great truth.

To eat of the Tree of Life is to partake of God's essence because of a love for God, not for a desire to capture what can be gleaned of God's essence and put it on a pedestal so that the believer and others can pay homage, giving reason to war against others who see things differently.

There can be no peace for such wickedness. In contrast, there can be no death for one who eats of knowledge while fully opened to the Breath of HaShem. The angel of death will pass over such a one; but one who eats for other reasons must accept the consequences of his appetites.

Time is a trap. We stand with Eve before the trees every moment. With her, we will also learn that, more than punishment, judgment against Adam and Eve for their eating was affirmation of the choice they had made. There is only one Life, and to believe in its absence is to court death. And so, with reference to that choice, the serpent had said to Chauwah, "Dying, you will not die."

The serpent had projected not falsehood, but a vision of truth as understood beyond the walls of the garden. The serpent had not infiltrated the garden. It had arisen from within the living waters that pool beneath the taproot of the Tree of Life. Emerging from its resting place, it had coiled within the tree's branches and had spoken to Eve's dilemma, opening a door for resolution.

Eve had not heard the ring of threat or the coaxing subtlety of deception in the serpent's words because neither was present. Nor were its words cloaked in intimacy, as if they came from a friend. They were delivered as simple fact; and because they were not argumentative, they could not be dismissed. Having ears, Eve had heard; and not to have responded would have been presumptuous and dishonest. The questions the serpent raised were in her heart already, and they could not be ignored or dismissed out of hand.

The serpent loved Chauwah and did not celebrate what it must do. Her answer was colored with the ambience the serpent had felt when it served as the Light Bearer. Inertia had worked at her thoughts within the garden, turning them against each other; and as she had meditated on meanings, a small pool of doubt had collected in her mind.

The mystery of iniquity was already at work; and it would become poison. The couple had been told not to eat of the fruit of the lesser tree, but doubt had insinuated itself, and Eve had added that they were not allowed to touch it, either, meaning that they were not allowed to seek knowledge where it could be found.

She was correct, in a sense; for to touch is to risk agreement. They were allowed to investigate lesser knowledge, but only through the lense of the greater tree. Natural knowledge that did not agree with spiritual knowledge would bring havoc.

In the minds of many who would share the Life that invested in the father and mother of humanity, the serpent's words seemed to contradict what they had been taught about the trees of the garden. What seems true is true to those who harbor lesser knowledge as truth, but there is an understanding by which all thought agrees. HaShem speaks once; yes, twice. Blessed are they who wait for the voice of affirmation.

HaShem had not laid a snare at the center of the garden. An enemy did not breach it's walls to seduce the man and his wife. HaShem had not left abandoned them while the serpentine spirit of the Tree of Lives bought forth questions that demanded answers. The morning had been productive.

There were those who would come to Earth through the portal of Chauwah who would hear the words, "What have you done?" as accusation. No. Eve had opened the door to life on Earth for the entire company of the hosts of Heaven. Not all would choose to incarnate, but those who did would set their feet on the path to Life Everlasting opened by Eve. Its reward is the celestial body and immortal soul prepared for the immortal angel at its perfection.

Yes, Eve had introduced mortality to Earth; but she is Mother of the Living, not of the dead. Overcoming death within the dualism inherent in the physical universe will put an end to Maya, the engine of delusion. Like the fabled phoenix, Creation will arise again. To accomodate those who overcome, HaShem will continue to create all things new. Mortality will put on immortality, and the Sons of Man will dance on the head of death until it is found no more among the living. Time is a trap.

Eve's thoughts had brought her to a fork in the road. They moved a little this way, a little that way; then they seesawed more each way—back and forth they went, until she lost track: not only of conclusions, but also of the questions, themselves. Point turned against counterpoint as oppositional concepts vied for her attention, demanding answers but finding implosive confusion Carefully measuring her thoughts, therefore, Eve knew that the seed of the serpent's words would bear fruit in their lives regardless of her decision about eating the forbidden fruit. She reasoned that it was there for good reason.

Further, it was apparently good as food; so she was inclined to relieve Adam of the burden of saying yes or no to the alternatives she was considering, because to make a conscious decision between right and wrong was to partake of the fruit of the lesser tree, already. The road whose gutters were "yes" and "no"would lead to an uncertain reality in perpetuity, because such a road would have to be lined with duality by intentional design. Time is a trap.

Knowing that she did not know would be Eve's justification. In her heart, she would be innocent of disobedience, even though her hands were filling with the tree's fruit. Doubt, more than the forbidden fruit, had been the temptation. Eating without accusation of God's purpose in setting fruit of the lesser tree before them could be seen as a subtle act of faith.

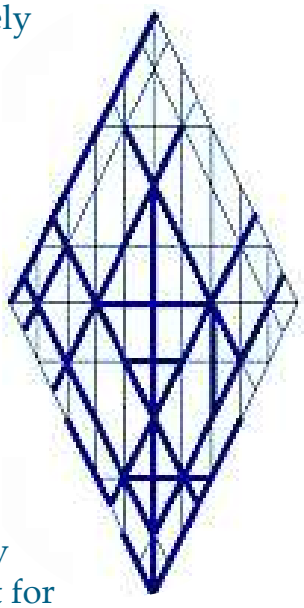

Chauwah knew that she was out of her depth, but she was unwilling to make accusation against the serpent, her husband, or the Breath that sustained her. The conflicting concepts that were building in her mind might, one day, find resolution in a perspective that now eluded her.

It was certain: that resolution would require knowledge she did not presently have and for which she would undoubtably search; and so, her mind settled on the one thing about which there was no question: the fruit was good to eat. Other matters could be worked out later. In her innocence, Eve had become transfixed, like an animal hypnotized by the gleam upon the arrow of its hunter. Without shame, therefore, she had eaten of the fruit while she was plagued with uncertainty about many matters. Tested, she had tasted.

Alphanumeric of 130 Years

Adam thought of things to come as he examined the fruit in his hand. He cared not at all for himself. His concern ו was for the corrective measures ח that Wisdom ו would impose ז on those who would follow י. Some would be falling further behind, and others would be just barely keeping up, while yet others would be completely lost, to man's understanding. He had misgivings about judgments that would come, Adam retained faith 𐤉 that the families of Man would find rest in freedom 𐤌, and that renewal 𐤃 and regeneration 𐤇 within the Breath would eliminate 𐤅 disappointment 𐤍 and regret 𐤀.

Gematria 1482 𐤋𐤆𐤇𐤃: Adam had foreseen 𐤃 the consequences 𐤇 of eating fruit 𐤆 of the lesser tree, which he had acknowledged and accepted 𐤋.

Ordinal 159 𐤈𐤍𐤐: > 96 𐤉𐤒 > 69 𐤈𐤎 > 60 𐤎 > 51 𐤃𐤍 > 15 𐤀𐤆 > 6 𐤉: Always circumspect 𐤐, Adam recognized 𐤍 that discomforts 𐤈 that were triggered 𐤒 by aspiration 𐤉 had contributed to Eve's decision to reach out for fruit whose time had not yet come. Consequences 𐤎 of misapprehension would be very challenging for as long as the possibility of error should continue 𐤈.

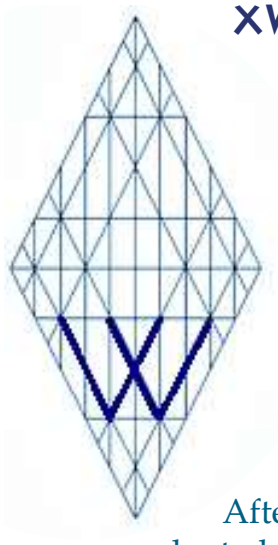

As father of Man and recipient of the first Breath, Adam chose to honor his oath to Eve. He could do no other than to let the consequence of her choice run its course in his life, also; for they were one by oath. The way forward would become clear.

He had not shared with her everything the Father had told him; and because he shared culpability for any error that had taken root in God's good gift, Adam therefore acknowledged that all burdens they would encounter while building the temple of Everlasting Life within Maya would be his to shoulder under the grace of HaShem. In faith, he believed that all would be well; for his understanding of HaShem would admit to no other possibility.

As he marshaled his thoughts in preparation for what would be their future life in the Land of Nod, Adam trusted that the engineer of life's foundations 𐤎 would enable his children 𐤍 to perceive 𐤃 his will 𐤆, which was that they should have life 𐤀 in abundance 𐤉.

Targum: The beauty 𐤅 within the loins 𐤑 is Wisdom 's 𐤅 gracious gift 𐤆 to humanity 𐤌; and the desires to which it gives rise, when coupled with respect 𐤉 for others 𐤌, are significant 𐤃 measurements 𐤇 of a living soul's spiritual 𐤅 respect 𐤍 for Life, itself 𐤀.

Cain and Able were brothers of misfortune, and the family of Adam would choose not to speak of it. There were records of Cain's family; and their names, taken in sequence, offer a number of details, a bare minimum of which are noted in this book; but the family of Adam and Eve was understood to consist of the house of their son Seth, along with all those who came after.

𐤔𐤕 Seth שת

foundation, basis; Sheth, Set.

The Breath of Life 𐤅 will make certain 𐤕 that life's trials 𐤅 come to an end 𐤕.

In his life as Abel, Seth had done well. His sacrifice on Earth had been accepted, and he had not been damaged by the second death. He had passed from life in the temporal realm's mortal sphere as the soul named Abel to cleansing in the temporal realm's immortal sphere by bathing in the Lake of Fire.

After he was purged 𐤅 and renewed 𐤕, he had been thoroughly evaluated 𐤅 and measured with precision 𐤕; and the judgment had been that he should return to Earth as Adam's principal son. Wisdom 𐤅 was laying down its marker for all to see 𐤕; and to this, he had agreed. His root in HaShem would be inviolate. Set 𐤔𐤕 was to be Wisdom's 𐤅 measurement 𐤕.

He was satisfied with the judgment of Abel, and he had embraced the decision that he would return to Earth as Sheth; for it would restore balance to Creation's mortal sphere, in general, and within Adam's family, in particular.

Detailed memories of his incarnation as Abel would fade, even as memory of dreams fade over time. Specific memories would pass, but the lessons he had learned and the progress he had made would be woven into his life as Seth. Nothing of value from the life as Abel would be lost.

The path to perfection would lie open before him. His death as Abel had challenged the sense of continuity within the family, but the grief of the family over Abel's loss would be mollified; for his was Abel's spirit. He would begin as Abel had ended, walking in his steps; but his legs would be strengthened.

He understood that his life as Abel and as Seth were as heartbeats within the creature he was becoming. All who share the Breath of Life in the temporal are at rest in that Breath within the eternal: thus it is said of them, that their lives are hidden in HaShem.

The temporal realm is the womb of Creation; for it receives and prepares Children of the Breath for their lives as beings who will inherit the everlasting realm, where eternal essence takes on everlasting substance. All are of the Elohim 𐤀𐤋𐤄𐤉𐤌, but the Sons of Man are differentiated as Elim 𐤀𐤋𐤌—as gods summonsed from within the Breath to participate in the perfection of Creation.

Eternal names are secret. They are not known in the temporal, except when awarded to those who overcome. The immortal Son of the Breath who lived as the soul named Abel would live as Seth, but neither name is fitting for his essence as an Elim of Elohim. In the Realm of Names, temporal names are keys to roles, functions, and purposes of living souls. Born of the Breath, they return to rest within the Breath when they are gathered to their fathers; however, they are not called to everlasting rest, but to everlasting life.

Seth's spirit was empowered—stalwart. He was ready to undertake another temporal life in Nod. Although he would not be so grounded as his brother Cain, who still walked the Earth, he would take his stand among men as though he were a master of the temporal realm. As Seth, however, he would be more approachable than he had been as Abel. That first life had a blurred ending, like a dream, and he was awakening to the vision of Seth.

His angel 𐤅 had agreed to his identity 𐤇 as Set 𐤇𐤅. It would be affirmation 𐤅 of resurrection made for the purpose of transformation 𐤇. As the mortal Sheth, his use of Wisdom's 𐤅 gifts would be measured by everyone he met 𐤇, and he prayed that he would be able to reassure 𐤅 father Adam that his decision 𐤇 to eat 𐤅 of the lesser tree is to be justified by mankind's future generation 𐤇, as the wheels that drive it turn within wheels.

Gematria 700 𐤅𐤇: Abel's death 𐤇 had brought heavy sorrow 𐤅, which dissipated 𐤇 with the wonder 𐤅 of Seth's birth. Restoration 𐤇 of Adam's son had confirmed the glorious power 𐤅 of HaShem.

Ordinal 43 𐤓𐤔 > 34 𐤃𐤆 > 7 𐤆: Abel's angel had returned 𐤔, repositioned as Seth; and it would continue 𐤓 in that name, learning the lessons of incarnation. Without the least chance of failure, the Shepherd will guide 𐤆 each of us to the portal 𐤃 of perfection 𐤆.

Targum: Wisdom's 𐤅 grand finale 𐤇 will be the elimination 𐤅 of death 𐤇.

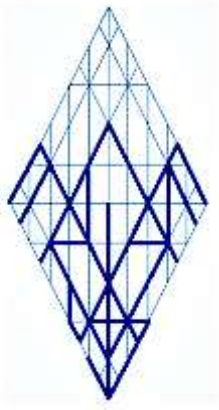

𐤐𐤔𐤅 𐤇𐤃𐤔 𐤐𐤔𐤔𐤅

8 100 year

And after he had become the father of Seth, Adam lived 800 years and had other sons and daughters.

8 𐤄 the ladder 100 𐤦 to Heaven

As his time on Earth entered into its fulness, Adam's concern for his family grew. It took on an urgency he just couldn't resist. The issue wasn't, so much, that he held great fear for his future, or for the destinies of his children. He was simply anxious about losing touch with them and with Chauwah, his wife.

He didn't fool himself by entertaining the notion that he had become an indispensible force in their lives, and that they would be left in great danger when they were no longer able to consult him about the many difficulties they faced in this land of Nod. Life was not easy. However, all that the Father had shared with him was open to them, as well; and whether they held congress with the spirit of HaShem was not his to determine. They were God's children before they were entrusted to him and Eve. HaShem takes care of his own.

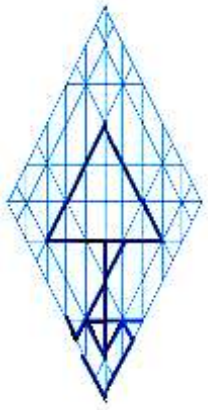

In the last few cycles within the temporal realm, he had reached a haunting conclusion: his death was an essential element in the development of the family. The hand of the Father is not constrained by the trap of time, and he will accomplish those things that are necessary for those sons and daughters whose eyes were not yet fully open to the operations of the Presence in their lives. If they should suffer loss at his passing, that inconvenience would spur the drive towards perfection.

He had come to a visceral acceptance that his time with the family was coming to its end. Regardless of whether the family should struggle 𐤅 or thrive 𐤉 after his passing, Adam had cherished 𐤉 their time 𐤇 together; and he looked forward to times to yet to come.

He had been reassured by the Father's counsel 𐤉 that, from mankind's beginning in Eden's garden of refinement 𐤃 to their perfection in a distant future 𐤕, the glory 𐤅 of the Sons of Man 𐤉 would be revealed 𐤇.

Gematria 1191 𐤃𐤋𐤐𐤃: Those individuals who are focused 𐤃 and dedicated 𐤐 do much to offset 𐤋 their shortcomings 𐤃.

Ordinal 129 𐤂𐤉𐤐 > 93 𐤆𐤋 > 39 𐤂𐤇 > 30 𐤇 > 12 𐤁𐤆 > 3 𐤆: Committment 𐤐 and boldness 𐤉, in combination with diligent introspection 𐤂, behave as triggers that can initiate 𐤋 progress 𐤆 in our journeys 𐤇 within the spheres of Heaven and Earth 𐤂; but everything we undertake is under the guidance of the Shepherd 𐤇, who is responsible 𐤆 for every soul's 𐤁 rise or fall 𐤆.

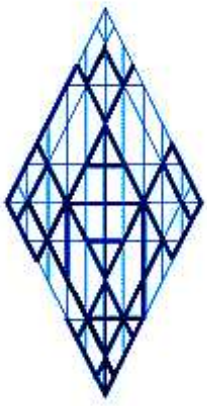

𐤇𐤉𐤅 𐤎𐤕𐤃𐤉 𐤏𐤅𐤎
𐤇𐤉𐤅 𐤉𐤆𐤅𐤇𐤅𐤕

9 100 year and 30 year

So Adam lived a total of 930 years, and then he died.

9 𐤂 the family's 100 𐤐 exalted 30 𐤇 elder

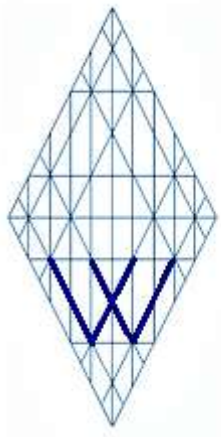

The abrupt finality 𐤗 of physical death 𐤅 had captured 𐤏 the family's 𐤌 attention 𐤋. There were far-ranging questions 𐤉 about judgments 𐤗 and censures 𐤅 that might come upon them after Adam's passing 𐤇, and there were no certain answers.

On the whole, they felt adrift; and they petitioned Heaven 𐤉 for spiritual 𐤅 guidance 𐤆. They worried 𐤅 that their lives 𐤇 would lose 𐤌 the luster 𐤅 of their fame as the Family of Eden. That they should entertain such thoughts was a little embarrassing; but regardless, they still had confidence the Father wanted the Sons of Man 𐤉—the generations within Adam, it should be understood—the Father wanted those generations to flourish 𐤇. Nevertheless, they worried that, in the short term, they would fall still further without Father Adam's spiritual mentoring. The pull of duality was palpable; for the loss was grievous.

Gematria 2613 𐤍𐤄𐤋𐤗𐤋𐤋: The Father will be magnified 𐤋 by Adam's seed 𐤋; for the measurement 𐤗 of Heaven's Messiah 𐤃 will come 𐤄 by way 𐤍 of the Sons of Man 𐤌𐤁𐤋: yes, by way of the sons of Adam 𐤌𐤁𐤋.

Ordinal 264 𐤁𐤒𐤃 > 84 𐤁𐤆 > 66 𐤉𐤒 > 48 𐤇𐤌 > 21 𐤋𐤊 > 12 𐤛𐤄 > 3 𐤍: Father Adam had paid attention 𐤃 to the pressures that weighed 𐤒 upon his heart 𐤁 when he spoke 𐤆 in their gatherings because he cherished every opportunity 𐤁 to be informative and supportive 𐤒 during discussions 𐤉 of the family's 𐤌 wellbeing and destiny 𐤒. He had understood their frustrations; and he had warned that complicated 𐤊 ideas 𐤋 deserve 𐤄 commitment to a careful use 𐤛 of language 𐤍.

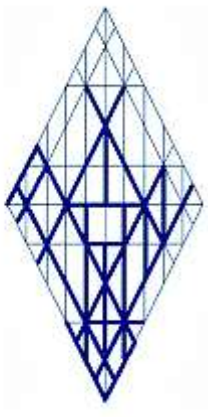

𐤇𐤉𐤅 𐤗𐤋𐤌𐤉 𐤌𐤄𐤉𐤅 𐤅𐤌𐤇

5 years and 100 year

When Seth was 105 years old, he became the father of Enosh 𐤅𐤉𐤍𐤋.

5 𐤇 life, 100 𐤦 ascending and descending

Seth had come to Earth to set things right again. It worried him, just a little, that he tended to be less flexible 𐤇 and was disturbed more easily 𐤌 than even-tempered Abel, according to reports; and lately, his spirit 𐤅 was disturbed 𐤅. It was warning 𐤉 that he had been—well—somewhat negligent 𐤄, somehow, in some nebulous fashion. The idea floated in and out, just beyond his ability to recall, exactly, what it was; but, whatever it was, it definitely bothered him 𐤌.

His weighty obligation 𐤉 and destiny as the family favorite 𐤌 caused him to keep close watch on himself 𐤀. His self-discipline won the approval of elders and peers, alike, but the approbations worried him. Something was not quite right: not wrong, perhaps; but worrisome.

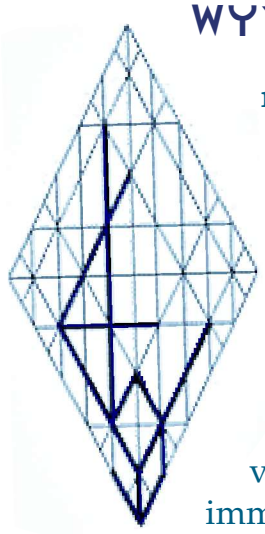

Not for his sake, but for the family, he felt a persistent and pressing need to reconsider things over and over again. Being right was becoming a mania; and he continuously took stock 𐤎 of the execution of his spiritual 𐤅 obligations 𐤍; for lives 𐤇 would be impacted by his choices.

Gematria 1550 𐤍𐤒𐤎𐤀: He intended to remain alert 𐤀, so that he could keep abreast 𐤎 of Heaven's kingdom 𐤒 as it unfolded 𐤍.

Ordinal 182 𐤄𐤆𐤒 > 92 𐤄𐤈 > 83 𐤋𐤆 > 38 𐤇𐤁 > 29 𐤗𐤌 > 11 𐤀𐤋 > 2 𐤄: He knew that his anxiety 𐤒 was symptomatic 𐤆 of personal 𐤄 imbalances 𐤈 and inadequacies 𐤆, and he therefore took even more astringent measures 𐤋 to discipline 𐤁 his imagination and ambitions 𐤇.

He was now "Seth, the Sure-footed." Meant as endearment, it had become a distraction because it saddled him with social obligations he couldn't satisfy as he stumbled 𐤌 on a path that conflated self-interest and needs of the family 𐤗. Initially undertaken as duty, his service had become a personal necessity 𐤋.

It was also his pleasure, of course; but zeal to satisfy the demands of others was sapping his strength. The little time he had for meditation made him realize that his priorities needed adjustment. He took a rather perverse pleasure in the understanding, which suggested that when a question arises, it's because the dilemma is already upon you. He taught others that answers would be in reach! He would do well to prioritize his work according to the measure it would add to the wellbeing 𐤀 of everybody, himself included 𐤄!

𐤀𐤍𐤅𐤔 Enosh אנוש

man, mankind; human being; mortality; foundation; Enos.

The Father 𐤀 of the Children of Light 𐤍 is honored 𐤉 by the intensity 𐤅 of their passion for principles 𐤀. Beings 𐤍 that were tested 𐤉 by trials of disorder and by death 𐤅, they had rallied at the command, "Let there Be!"

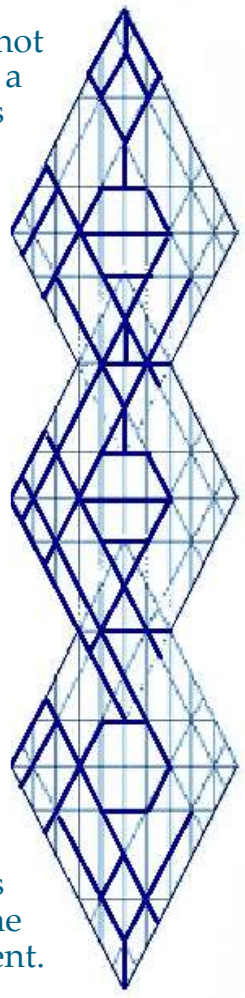

The Creator inspires, perfects, and weds 𐤀 the Sons of Man 𐤍. He wraps them in swaddling clothes 𐤉 of Wisdom 𐤅; for they are immortals who humbled themselves, becoming vulnerable 𐤀: they had tumbled 𐤍 from on high 𐤉 to become immersed in frailty 𐤅.

A student of mysteries, Enosh was fascinated by what he characterized as the Interface, which he imagined to be an open, all-knowing eye set atop the great pyramid of mankind. The family called it the Presence, and some had been visited by it; but nobody had asked after its name.

He understood the reticence. The name of a simple thing cannot convey its characteristics. To misname the Presence would be a gave error. The knowledgable said that what is understood as the Presence is really the door to the Presence. Enosh thought of it as the interface, the ligature: One with the Presence in the eternal realm, it is also One in the temporal. Were it not so, the temporal would have no access to that which is above all.

The linkage seems convoluted; but we, ourselves, become the interface between rooms when we open adjoining doors. We are suffused with the reality we perceive we approach invisibility as we convey what we perceive to the other side: om every sense but the physical, we become as though are, in fact, One with that which we perceive and are attempting to label with a name.

In spiritual realms, the higher reality extends itself into the lower, and the center that is formed in the projection becomes the field in which the two are One. Yahushua, the Shout of Father Yah, is the Interface; for it originates in the eternal and is received in the temporal by unbroken transmission, conveying the essence from realm to realm.The Interface pierces the barriers between realms, rushing through the hallways of secret chambers like the waters of a flash flood, clearing the detritus and exposing foundations to the truths inherent in the Presence and the Interface and apparent in the recipient.

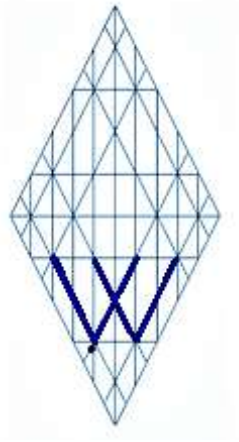

Enosh had respect 𐤋 for all who had plunged to Earth from above 𐤍; for he worshipped 𐤉 the glory 𐤅 of the Father 𐤋, and those who expose their nakedness through incarnation are children 𐤍 he cradles 𐤉 in his spirit 𐤅.

Gematria 357 𐤔𐤍𐤅: Doubt destroys 𐤅 because it subverts both purpose 𐤍 and its objective 𐤔.

Ordinal 42 𐤎𐤌 > 24 𐤃𐤊 > 6 𐤉: Wisdom's attributes—the reflection of Wisdom (𐤅) in the things that are made 𐤌—mitigate 𐤎 against uproars 𐤏 i an individual builds upon a foundation 𐤃 of Truth 𐤉.

Targum: Lower than angels who had not incarnated 𐤋, the Sons of Man 𐤍 channel 𐤉 the Breath imperfectly 𐤅, and unruliness 𐤋 causes them to stumble 𐤍. Nevertheless, they will be saved by the correlation of realms 𐤉.

𐤔𐤆𐤉𐤅 𐤏𐤃𐤅
𐤀𐤉𐤅 𐤗𐤉𐤋𐤔 𐤀𐤉𐤔𐤅𐤉

7 years and 8 100 year

And after he had become the father of Enosh, Seth lived 807 years and had other sons and daughters.

7 𐤎 sword 8 𐤇 buckler 100 𐤐 helmet

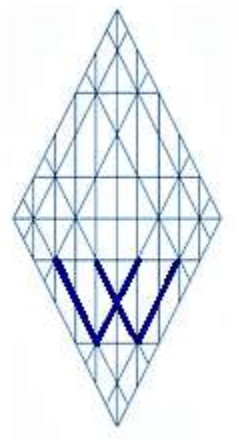

A troubled 𐤅 soul 𐤃 well might wonder 𐤏 whether Wisdom 𐤅 purposefully 𐤉 allows 𐤆 the temptations that flood the Earth 𐤔 because they fuel 𐤉 the innumerable fires 𐤅 that so vex 𐤔 introspective beings 𐤉.

One must search through 𐤀 imagination in search of such answers 𐤔; for perceptions 𐤋 that are derived 𐤉 from postulations and fantasy 𐤗 are destructive 𐤅 and will be useless 𐤉 in life 𐤀.

Gematria 1975 𐤀𐤏𐤐𐤗𐤗𐤋: The Sons of Man are HaShem's masterpiece. The Father energizes 𐤋, renews 𐤗, and transforms 𐤗 all whose minds 𐤐 are without bias and remain open 𐤏 to revelation 𐤀.

Ordinal 238 𐤇𐤂𐤃 > 85 𐤀𐤎 > 58 𐤇𐤉 > 31 𐤋𐤂 > 13 𐤕𐤆 > 4 𐤃: The mind 𐤃 receives instruction 𐤂 through the Interface, which is the Angel of the Presence that ascends and descends upon Jacob's Ladder—within the levels of the firmament that spans the gap between Heaven and Earth, as perceived within the torso 𐤇. We are tasked with remaining free of prejudice 𐤎; for revelations 𐤀 may upend 𐤉 our expectations 𐤇. In our maturity 𐤂 we meditate 𐤋 with humility, giving 𐤆 the birth process 𐤕 our full attention 𐤋.

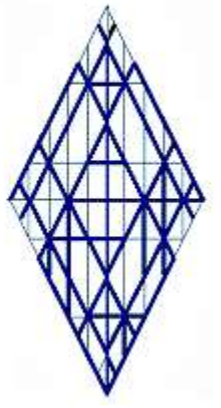

𐤀𐤉𐤅 𐤀𐤃𐤅𐤏 𐤔𐤆𐤗𐤅
𐤀𐤉𐤅 𐤗𐤉𐤋𐤔 𐤏𐤅𐤗𐤉

2 10 year and 9 100 year

So Seth lived a total of 912 years, and then he died.

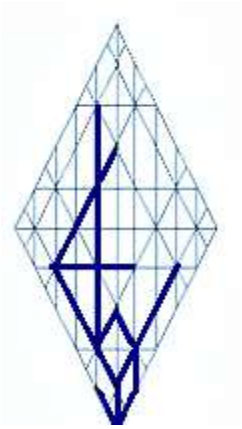

2 𐤃 souls 10 𐤆 performing
9 𐤎 the tasks 100 𐤐 of heaven

HaShem's Wisdom ו is trustworthy ת . It will provide ל consistent counsel to his children מ, but we must understand ס: disturbances ו within the mind ד will unearth א turmoil ו because of the lens of its own י suppositions א. If we could surrender ט all things ת to the Wisdom of the Breath ו, the mind would settle and clarify ס; for from מ the beginnings ד of our confusions ט to their eventual end ת, the glory ו of the Sons of Man י will be revealed א.

Gematria 3258 הכגדדד: Saints ד wait ד for inspiration ד because it allows them to rise with confidence ד upon the inward rungs י of Jacob's Ladder ה.

Ordinal 315 אלו > 81 דז > 63 זנ > 54 גכ > 45 אמ > 36 טצ > 18 הל > 9 ח: It is the ricochets of Wisdom ו that initiate ל discernment א. Remain open ז to inspiration ד, therefore; because it will settle the stresses נ that are so characteristic of the birthing process ז. To cope י with basic ג difficulties מ in life א requires wise צ judgment ט. We must rely ל on the mantle ה of faith ח.

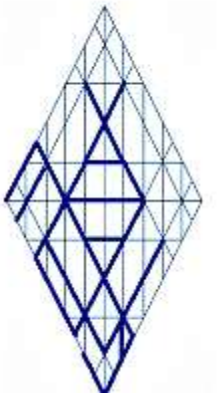

אכו מלסות

90 year

When Enosh was 90 years old, he became the father of Kenan קינן.

90 נ distraction

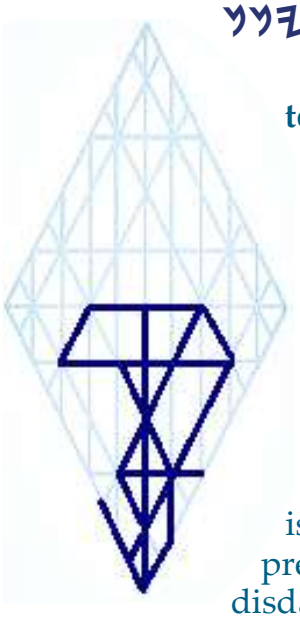

Enosh is the father of Kenan קינן, which also conveys "lamentation."

The seal ת of Wisdom ו is understanding ס. Enosh accepted ל his father's advice מ, but he was impatient ו. Desiring י enlightenment א above all else ת, he burned ו with hunger ס to possess ל Wisdom's attributes מ; and he entertained provisions ו to enrich himself י with the enlightenment he envisioned א.

Gematria 1175 אספד: His focus ד would be piety פ; for he was captivated by what he understood of ס enlightenment א.

Ordinal 122 בבפ > 50 י > 41 דמ > 32 בצ > 23 זב > 14 גל > 5 א: Piety פ is religious pretense. It is an unctuous ב idolatry ב that supposes י to mimic מ principle ד is to promote promote צ personal ב growth ב because diligence ז is rewarded ל with access ג to enlightenment א.

𐤒𐤉𐤍𐤍 Kenan קינן

to mourn, wail; to lament, bewail; to pity; Cainan.

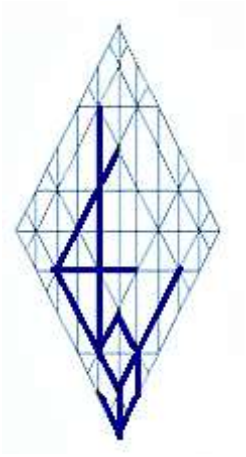

Piety 𐤐 brings 𐤓 reversals 𐤉 that go unnoticed 𐤉; for it stifles 𐤐 honest 𐤓 investigation 𐤉 of disorders 𐤉.

The "religious" mind hampers the work of faith by giving rise to the prideful separatism 𐤐 that results 𐤓 from a lack 𐤉 of compassion 𐤉. Piety is arrogance. It is inimical 𐤐 to humility 𐤓, which a the child 𐤉 of empathy 𐤉.

Gematria 210 𐤓𐤀: Through substitution, the true messiah 𐤀 is edged aside, allowing 𐤓 the hateful and destructive pretender—the catalyst of pretension and prideful disdain 𐤀—to creep in, unnoticed 𐤓.

Ordinal 57 𐤎𐤉 > 12 𐤃𐤓 > 3 𐤋: Left unchecked, piety will reverse spiritual progress. Its victims will stumble along, thinking they are, humming thoughtless melodies that feed their fixation of being among the "exceptional.".When pious pretenders are threatened, their desire for self-preservation 𐤉 can become deadly 𐤎; for they will attack 𐤓 any 𐤃 who draw attention to their slippery foundation 𐤋.

Targum: Piety is like the hurled 𐤉 spear 𐤒𐤉𐤍𐤍 of brother Cain: whether it's bottled up in the mind or weaponized against another 𐤐, it is a palpable force that causes all it touches 𐤓 to fall backwards, tumbling 𐤉 into calamity 𐤌.

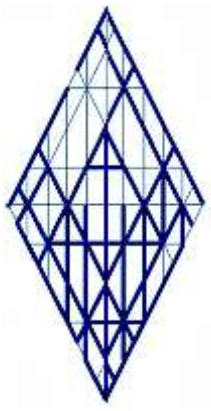

𐤔𐤌 𐤔𐤀𐤅 𐤅𐤌𐤄
𐤔𐤌 𐤎𐤓𐤀𐤌 𐤔𐤌𐤌𐤅𐤓

5 10 year and 8 100 year

And after he had become the father of Kenan, Enosh lived 815 years, and had other sons and daughters.

5 𐤔 light 10 𐤓 is lifted

8 upon the ladder 100 𐤐 to heaven

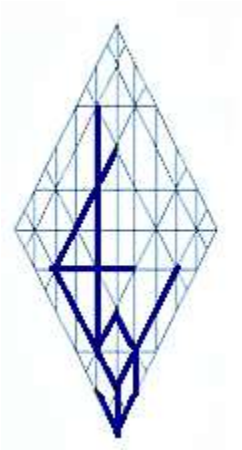

It is helpful to consider the past when concerned about the future 𐤄 that's flooding the present 𐤌. Those who are pious cannot do this. The everybody else, for their confused 𐤌 disinterest 𐤉 in life 𐤔. They find it difficult 𐤌 to concentrate, and they throw up their hands in peeved exasperation ו when they are confronted ד, pointedly כ, about their stubborn vacillation ש because it interferes י with revelation ג.

Gematria 2481 דזכדד: They like to focus ד on issues ד that are open-ended כ because they make no allowance ז for specificity ד.

Ordinal 285 גזה > 105 גפ > 87 סז > 78 חנ > 51 די > 15 גצ > 6 ו: The natural mind ה is comfortable ז in isolation ג if it can nest under the umbrella of piety. Perched in its elevated position פ, it will flutter and flail ג against unwelcome input ז, beating its wings ס in purposeful diversion נ.

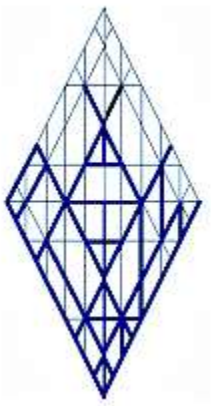

We can only empathize in silence; for sharing other perceptions ח will surely make matters worse by adding to those things that are rejected out of hand י. Only the Father's intervention ד can restore צ discernment ג and judgment ו.

שצישש ששח
גיש כוידש נשכו
5 years and 9 100 year

So Enosh lived a total of 905 years, and then he died.

5 ג light 10 צ is lifted
5 ג examine, 9 ⊗ identify, 100 פ confess

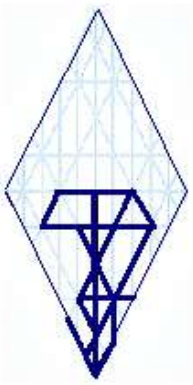

Concern ח about the surfacing ש of repressed ש spiritual unrest ש is natural and is to be expected י, but remedies devised צ to dodge ש the judgments of Heaven ו are certain to fail כ and, if their application is persistent, it will court spiritual death ש. Be an honest and unapologetic witness ש of your true and honest self נ. Don't worry ש that you will surprise or offend ד HaShem by honest spontaneity ו. Offer up the full measure כ of your spirit ש and HaShem will revitalize י your life ג.

Gematria 2326 וששדד: The Life Spark ד is holy seed ד. Submit to the divine fire of Wisdom ש and your spiritual growth ש will be honored ו.

Ordinal 247 סשה > 94 אר > 76 וס > 67 ספ > 49 ⊗ש > 13 זצ > 4 א: The apostolic command ה that we should shed ש attachments is contrary to the goal of salvation ס and will supplant ר love-based א understanding נ with legalism ו.

If we are aligned with the Tree of Life 𐤟, we have no needs 𐤎. Having been freed from the grip of self-interest 𐤌; we are relieved of natural 𐤆 bias because we have accepted circumcision ⊗. That we practice humility 𐤆 within the birthing process 𐤅 is greatly cherished 𐤃.

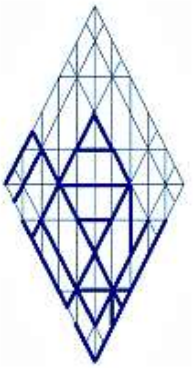

𐤑𐤉𐤅 𐤌𐤆𐤏𐤃𐤅

70 year

When Kenan was 70 years old, he became the father of Mahalalel 𐤏𐤇𐤏𐤑𐤌.

70 𐤏 comprehension

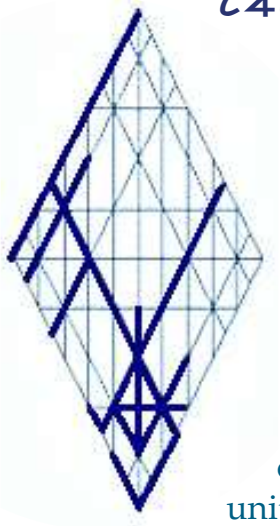

A hateful spirit 𐤅 that finds harbor within the soul 𐤋 will suffocate its host 𐤏, laying claim 𐤆 to its faculties 𐤌. By distorting what has already passed 𐤅, it will cripple 𐤉 future discernments 𐤑.

Gematria 777 𐤎𐤏𐤅𐤇; Ordinal 102 𐤋𐤐 > 30 𐤒 > 21 𐤊𐤌 > 12 𐤋𐤆 > 3 𐤅: It will impose upon everything its raucous stamp 𐤇 of displeasure 𐤅 as it lays hidden pitfalls 𐤏 hollowed out by acrimony 𐤎.

The dark night 𐤐 of the soul 𐤋 will follow. If a new day is to dawn, the adversarial serpent 𐤒 must be aroused and made to rise up upon its tail as it is dislodged from its nest. So exposed 𐤌, it can be perceived accurately and bound for study. Meditation 𐤊 will reactivate the soul's 𐤋 birthing process 𐤅.

𐤏𐤇𐤏𐤑𐤌 Mahalalel מהללאל

praise 𐤏𐤑𐤌 God 𐤏𐤊.

The attributes of Wisdom 𐤌 are embedded as light codes 𐤑 in the ancient 𐤒 teachings 𐤒. They portray the Father 𐤊 as an attentive shepherd 𐤒.

Gematria 136 𐤉𐤒𐤐; Ordinal 55 𐤑𐤌 > 10 𐤆 > 1 𐤊; Targum:
The holy Father is committed 𐤐 to serve as our guide 𐤒 to Truth 𐤉. His promise to the Sons of Man 𐤉 is that he will reveal 𐤑 the hand 𐤆 of divinity 𐤊 as it cleanses 𐤌 the days of our lives 𐤑, providing instruction 𐤒 that will school us 𐤒 in the unity of his principles 𐤊.

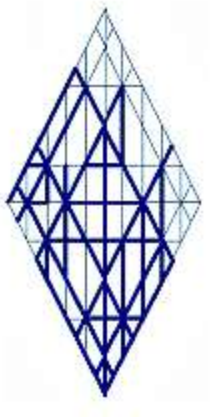

𐤄𐤅𐤅 𐤌𐤋𐤏𐤋𐤀𐤋
𐤄𐤅𐤅 𐤎𐤕𐤀𐤌 𐤄𐤅𐤌𐤅𐤕

40 year and 8 100 year

And after he had become the father of Mahalalel, Kenan lived 840 years and had other sons and daughters.

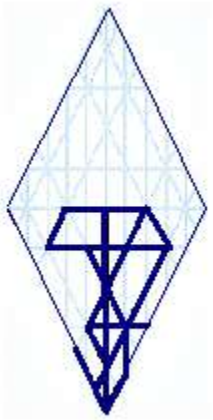

40 𐤌 a less rigid 8 𐤇 view 100 𐤐 of holiness

An honest 𐤀 person 𐤁 recovers 𐤂 composure 𐤏 after release 𐤆 from attributes 𐤌 that proved to be debilitating 𐤅. If he avoids 𐤉 hasty 𐤄 judgments 𐤕, with their recriminations 𐤅, he will be granted release 𐤌 from his errors 𐤉. He will be enlightened 𐤄, freed 𐤌, and revitalized 𐤀 by the judgments 𐤕 that are assessed 𐤎 by the Breath 𐤅 as he inhales 𐤉 and he exhales 𐤄.

Gematria 1881 𐤀𐤃𐤎𐤎𐤀: The Father's 𐤀 conclusions 𐤎 are always precise 𐤎 because they manifest 𐤃 divine principles 𐤀.

Ordinal 243 𐤆𐤌𐤁 > 72 𐤂𐤏 > 63 𐤆𐤟 > 54 𐤌𐤄 > 45 𐤄𐤌 > 36 𐤕𐤋 > 27 𐤎𐤌 > 9 𐤗: Thought 𐤁 milks 𐤌 process 𐤆; for understanding 𐤏 is like the sap 𐤂 of the Tree of Lives 𐤟: it flows upwards from root to branch 𐤆, where it settles in a display 𐤉 of leaves 𐤃. We must be free 𐤌 to question 𐤄 what we're taught 𐤋; and as Truth 𐤕 becomes apparent 𐤍, there will be an end 𐤎 to confusion 𐤗.

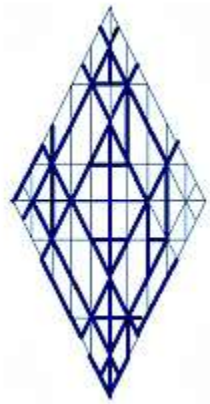

𐤌𐤋𐤉𐤅 𐤁𐤅𐤏
𐤄𐤅𐤅 𐤎𐤕𐤀𐤌 𐤏𐤅𐤄𐤎

10 years and 9 100 year

So Kenan lived a total of 910 years, and then he died.

10 𐤆 seeking 9 𐤗 resolution 100 𐤐 of disparity

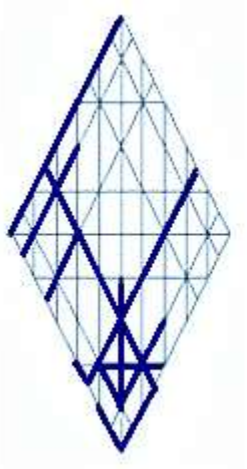

We should pay attention to understandings 𐤏 that are at odds 𐤅 with what we think we know 𐤁 because disruption 𐤅 has purpose 𐤉. Notions that contradict what we believe to be true have the effect of a hand 𐤆 of caution 𐤌 placed on the shoulder 𐤕. Contradictions signal 𐤎 that there might be need, either to narrow or to widen 𐤅 our understandings. They can have lifelong effects 𐤏.

We may shrug off the warning of a contradiction and turn mindlessly away ; but because a disruptive perception is more interesting than routine, deliberative judgment , we tend to give consideration to the specific issues involved . One way or another, Wisdom will burn into our complacency as we inhale and exhale .

Gematria 2548 : An accurate analysis tears at the veils that blind us because it expands, liberates, and transports our perspectives to new levels as we climb up and down on the rungs of Jacob's Ladder .

Ordinal 262 > 82 > 64 > 46 > 28 > 10 > 1 : Thought draws upon the soul to find expression of what it is absorbing from the tapestry of its perceptions . Much freer than thought, the spirit settles upon Truth in simplicity , adding context to that which we receive , but only as is appropriate .

5 years and 60 year

When Mahalalel was 65 years old, he became the father of Jared .

5 sorting through 60 implications

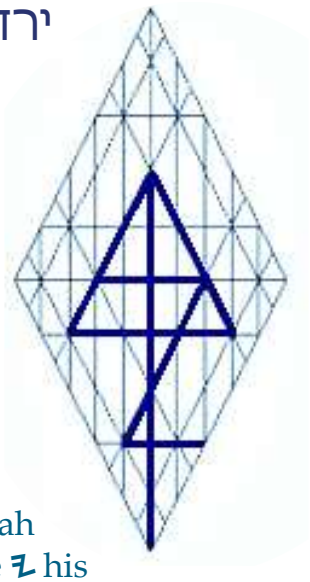

Anxiety tries the spirit by testing its commitment to humility . Take rest in the cradle of Wisdom , therefore; and the Breath of Life will bless you with its counsel . You will be lifted up , a new creature with every morning .

Gematria 1579 : Our Father takes full measure of the things we would hide , and those things we would cover up will be exposed; but the underlying issues will be resolved .

Ordinal 211 > 40 > 31 > 22 > 13 > 4 : The mind receives inspiration without effort , and it trails after the concepts the spirit embeds within ideas as they become apparent in the branchings of our thoughts ; so give heed to the touch of elation that settles upon your heart .

𐤉𐤓𐤃 Jared יָרֶד

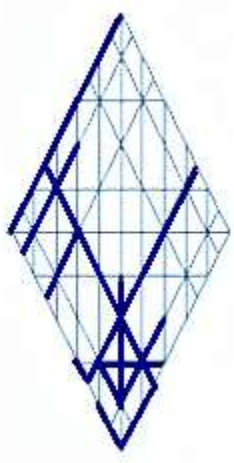

to descend, come down; to decrease, diminish.

Because he's blessed 𐤆 with a mind 𐤄 that is grounded 𐤀, Jared begins to do 𐤆 those things his spirit perceives 𐤄 as possible 𐤀. His approach becomes one of practicality. This attribute is worthy, but it should be applied 𐤆 only in so far as its use is governed 𐤄 by love 𐤀; for the stylus of the pen—the writing of thought upon the mind —can become 𐤆 a hammered chisel 𐤄; and a wedge of pain 𐤀 could be driven 𐤆 into an honorable 𐤄 heart 𐤀.

Gematria 214 𐤀𐤆𐤄; Ordinal 34 𐤀𐤂 > 7 𐤅: The Heavenly Messiah knocks 𐤄 on Jared 's heart 𐤀, warning him 𐤄 to brush aside 𐤆 his emotions 𐤀, lest learning 𐤂 should become the briar𐤀 of personal ambition 𐤅.

Targum: Avoid using 𐤆 "knowledge" 𐤄 that is based on perceptions that are passed off as fact 𐤀; for this subterfuge by teachers is a means to establish 𐤆 control 𐤄 of the mechanisms of insight 𐤀 in order to manipulate 𐤆 thought 𐤄. There are no facts in the temporal realm. The temporal is supported by facts.

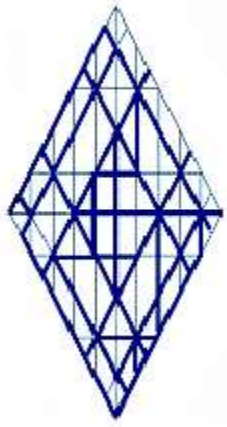

𐤇𐤉𐤅 𐤔𐤆𐤅𐤂𐤅
𐤇𐤉𐤅 𐤗𐤉𐤃𐤔 𐤇𐤉𐤔𐤅𐤉

30 year and 8 100 year

And after he had become the father of Jared, Mahalalel lived 830 years and had other sons and daughters.

30 𐤂 changes in the 8 𐤇 relationship

100 𐤒 with Heaven

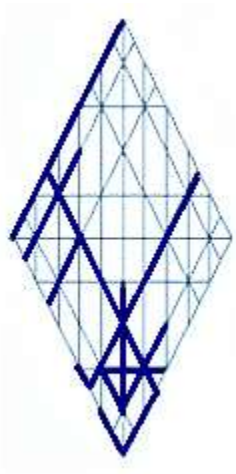

That nagging 𐤅 premonition 𐤂 intensified 𐤅, bringing 𐤆 apprehension 𐤔 that Jared found not only unpleasant 𐤅, but also tiresome 𐤉. He sensed that his ability to make distinctions 𐤇, fairly and accurately 𐤉, had become eroded 𐤅, somehow; and he feared that the loss might precipitate 𐤔 a great fall 𐤉, exposing 𐤇 his foolishness to everyone 𐤔.

Mahalalel took note of Jared's distress and reminded his son first, that he should commit to 𐤃 moderation 𐤉 in all things 𐤗 and that, while not in denial of anything, he should resist 𐤅 indulging 𐤉 either fear or regret 𐤇.

Gematria 2238 𐤇𐤀𐤄𐤄: When focused 𐤄 on principles 𐤄, the mind 𐤀 will avoid 𐤀 distress and difficulty 𐤇.

Ordinal 258 𐤇𐤉𐤀 > 87 𐤎𐤆 > 78 𐤇𐤏 > 51 𐤄𐤉 > 15 𐤅𐤋 > 6 𐤉: If the rational mind 𐤀 should lose 𐤉 its perspective 𐤇, however, it suffers wounds, as though it has ruptured; for the locutions that drive thought will lose their effectiveness 𐤆. Momentum will be impaired, and thought will pause 𐤎, then stop altogether 𐤏, forcing reconsiderations 𐤇.

Nevertheless, if properly grounded, the inner man will recover 𐤉 the focus 𐤄 needed for the successful 𐤋 restoration 𐤅 of reasonable deliberation 𐤉.

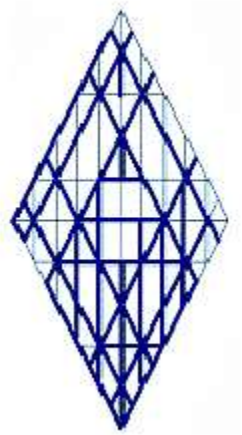

𐤅𐤉𐤌 𐤌𐤋𐤏𐤌𐤎𐤉 𐤌𐤌𐤇
𐤅𐤉𐤌 𐤎𐤉𐤄𐤌 𐤅𐤉𐤌𐤌𐤌𐤉

5 and 90 year and 8 100 year

So Mahalalel lived a total of 895 years, and then he died.

5 𐤅 review of 90 𐤒 traditional

8 𐤇 Torah 100 𐤐 interpretations

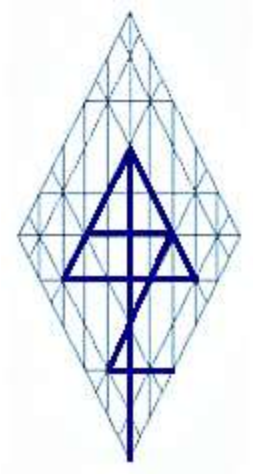

Adopt 𐤇 the counsel 𐤌 of Wisdom 𐤌. Its judgments 𐤉 will both enhance 𐤎 and widen 𐤌 your understandings 𐤏 by apprising 𐤋 you of the subtleties 𐤌 of differentiation 𐤌.

If you are sincere in your inquiry 𐤉, it will help you discern 𐤅 whether 𐤉 the iteration of some archetype 𐤌 is beneficial 𐤌. Some are problematic 𐤉 and can become quite harmful 𐤅. As you monitor the flow 𐤌 of concepts that surface 𐤄 during a conversation or within closeted meditation, weigh them carefully and with honesty 𐤉. Measure well 𐤎 the vibrations 𐤌 of your very personal 𐤉 reactions 𐤅.

Gematria 2732 𐤃𐤀𐤌𐤎𐤄𐤄: Your perceptions 𐤄 are pertinent. To perceive is to receive seed; for perceptions grow if they are well received 𐤄; so take note 𐤎 of their assimilation 𐤌; for it will affect 𐤀 your development 𐤃.

Ordinal 311 𐤄𐤋𐤌 > 41 𐤄𐤌 > 32 𐤃𐤀 > 23 𐤆𐤌 > 14 𐤁𐤋 > 5 𐤅: It is not the mind: it's the spirit in man 𐤌 that receives 𐤋 inspiration 𐤄. This is why complicated 𐤌 ideas 𐤄 are taught 𐤀 in parables 𐤃. Bold 𐤌 metaphors 𐤆 best convey 𐤋 the treasures 𐤁 of Light 𐤅.

𐤉𐤓𐤃 𐤔𐤋𐤔𐤉𐤌 𐤔𐤋𐤇𐤅

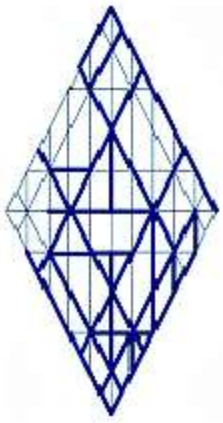

𐤉𐤓𐤃 𐤇𐤌𐤔𐤉

2 and 60 year and 100 year

When Jared was 162 years old, he became the father of Enoch 𐤇𐤍𐤊.

2 𐤁 acknowledge 60 𐤎 reliance

100 𐤒 on Heaven

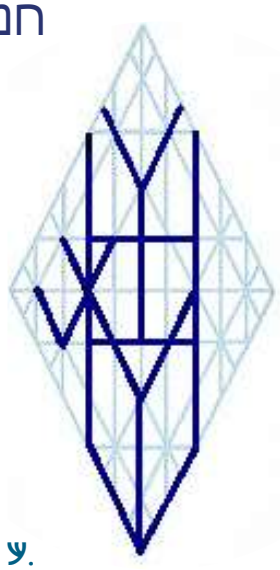

Worry 𐤅 is inimical 𐤇 to success 𐤋; for to indulge 𐤔 indecision 𐤉 is to wrestle 𐤅 with fantasy 𐤅. Respect 𐤋 the counsel 𐤔 of Wisdom 𐤅, therefore; for an intentional 𐤍 examination 𐤀 and evaluation 𐤉 of Wisdom's attributes 𐤔 will inspire you, setting you free 𐤌. Mark this well 𐤇: Wisdom 𐤅 is revealing itself 𐤍 in our day 𐤀!

Gematria 2563 𐤁𐤎𐤒𐤇𐤌𐤌: Concentrate 𐤌 on principles 𐤌 as you measure 𐤇 unexpected 𐤒 dimensions 𐤎 of your experience within the birth process 𐤁.

Ordinal 259 𐤕𐤍𐤄 > 97 𐤚𐤈 > 79 𐤕𐤏 > 61 𐤌𐤎 > 16 𐤉𐤋 > 7 𐤚: The mind 𐤄 will seek to discover 𐤍 the secret faces of Creation 𐤕 because knowledge of its operations 𐤈 completes 𐤚 understanding 𐤏. The orchestrated order 𐤕 within Creation's organized structures 𐤎 bear witness 𐤌 to the engineering 𐤋 that underlies 𐤉 its systems 𐤚.

𐤇𐤍𐤊 Enoch חנוך

training, education, apprenticeship, schooling; upbringing; indoctrination.

The relationship between that which is above and those things that are below 𐤇 has purpose 𐤍: it is neither arbitrary 𐤉 nor capricious 𐤇.

There is a ladder 𐤇 within each of us 𐤍: a bridge 𐤉 to discovery 𐤇. Its rungs 𐤇 can operate 𐤍 as pivotal fulcrums 𐤉 that, properly utilized, will expedite 𐤇 both ascent and descent 𐤇. The sequencing of the rungs provides logical platforms from which to monitor 𐤍 or by which to preview 𐤉 what is apparent at higher levels 𐤇.

Gematria 84 𐤀𐤂; Ordinal 39 𐤎𐤉 > 12 𐤋𐤁 > 3 𐤍: Targum: Pay attention 𐤂 to perceptions 𐤀; for subtle instruction 𐤉 is hidden in the parables of Creation, which corrals discrete observations tailored 𐤎 to assist 𐤁 the soul 𐤋 in its movement through the birthing process 𐤍. It is the appreciation 𐤇 of the reality within the inner man 𐤏 makes prayerful sacrifice 𐤕 productive 𐤔.

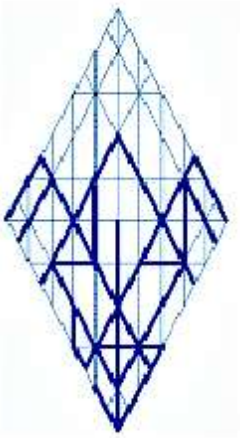

𐤀𐤔𐤅 𐤎𐤕𐤃𐤔 𐤀𐤔𐤔𐤅

8 100 year

And after he had become the father of Enoch, Jared lived 800 years and had other sons and daughters.

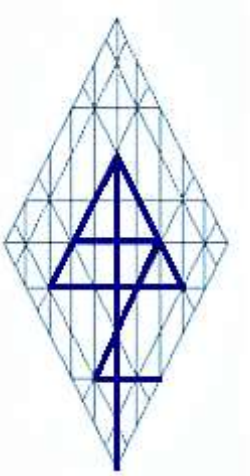

8 𐤇 reconciliation 100 𐤐 with Heaven

Whether his spirit is troubled 𐤅 or carefree 𐤔, Jared is quite fond 𐤏 of entertainment 𐤀. When he meets with difficulty 𐤔 when concentrating 𐤃 on matters of real value 𐤕, he is either out of his depth or bored 𐤎. Disgruntled by complexity, he avoids tensions 𐤅 within the inner man 𐤏 through frivolity 𐤀.

Gematria 1191 𐤃𐤓𐤐𐤃: Jared 's focus 𐤃 is upright, straightforward 𐤐: he commits only to things that promise to boost 𐤓 either his ego or his physical vitality 𐤃.

Ordinal 129 𐤎𐤔𐤐 > 93 𐤍𐤓 > 39 𐤎𐤉 > 12 𐤋𐤁 > 3 𐤍: Proud 𐤐 and arrogant 𐤔, he will ignore 𐤎 warnings 𐤓. He is in free-fall 𐤍 and headed 𐤉 for a reckoning 𐤎, but he behaves 𐤁 as though his soul 𐤋 were disposable, of no account 𐤍.

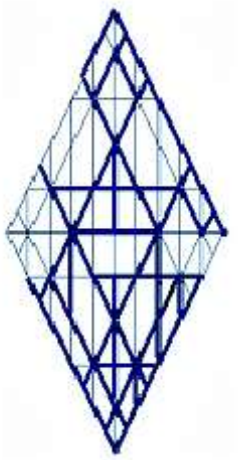

𐤀𐤔𐤅 𐤔𐤁𐤅𐤅𐤕 𐤔𐤁𐤎
𐤀𐤔𐤅 𐤎𐤕𐤃𐤔 𐤏𐤅𐤎𐤕

2 and 60 year and 9 100 year

So Jared lived a total of 962 years, and then he died.

2 𐤋 scissors 60 𐤟 comb

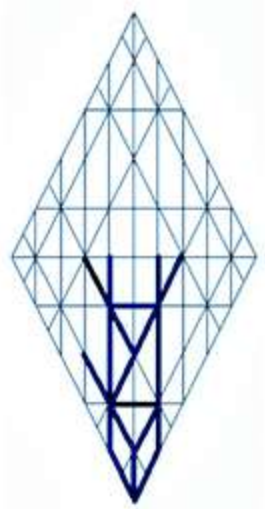

9 𐤎 basket 100 𐤐 hair

Wisdom ו takes exact and particular notice ס of the conduct ל of mankind מ, weighing י strengths ו against weaknesses ו. Matters ל that seem trivial מ can become serious ו factors נ in determining ג judgment י. A hallmark ס of Wisdom ו is its thoroughness ע. All men מ are unpredictable ד, yet Wisdom isolates י, measures ס, and analyzes ו each individual's spiritual development נ and health ג.

Gematria 3339 חצוודד: Focus ד studiously ד on principles ד; for the Wisdom of HaShem ו is will guide you צ through conflict resolution ח.

Ordinal 324 ישו > 72 פע > 63 קת > 54 דנ > 45 גמ > 36 יצ > 27 סי > 9 ח: Wisdom ו expects י a grounded ד understanding ע of personal פ inadequacies ת. Regret ק amplifies נ suffering ד without altering מ choices ג. If you can repent צ of managing ל your affairs י, you will be assisted on the path ס to resolution ח.

גיו מלוויי ויהז

5 and 60 year

When Enoch was 65 years old, he became the father of Methuselah חצויסמ.

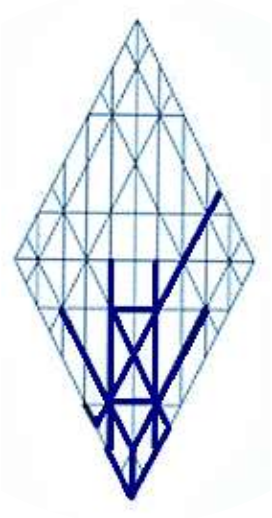

5 ג brush 60 ת comb

The prospect of ascending ז disturbs מ many spirits, with trepidation ו that in judgment י, Wisdom ו will inquire ו about the abuse ל of earthly freedoms מ. Some will be found ready to move forward, while many are not; but all will be thoroughly purged within the holy fire of Wisdom ו, which will have its way נ among all projections of its Life ג.

Gematria 1579 חעפסד: When the Father ד concludes ס that one is worthy of an anointing פ, understandings ע are forever altered ח.

Ordinal 211 דלא > 121 דיפ > 112 פלפ > 31 דצ > 22 פי > 13 קל > 4 ד: As thought א proceeds ל from the Father ד, it takes root, blossoming פ within us, so that we produce fruit that stands in evidence י of the seed the Father ד planted פ. Be humble. Acknowledging your blessings ל. Admit that the care פ of Shepherd guided you צ to growth ד and productivity י.; for our souls פ are the beneficiaries ל of transcendent ק love ד.

𐤇𐤊𐤅𐤉𐤎𐤌 Methuselah מתושלח

Every wilderness 𐤌 has its end 𐤎, and Enoch was thankful 𐤉 for Wisdom's 𐤅 guidance 𐤊 during his stay among men. He had shared his perspective with the brethren 𐤇, and they would remember 𐤌 details 𐤎 of the deliberations 𐤉; for they had digested 𐤅 the teachings 𐤊 about the Ladder to Heaven 𐤇.

Not since Adam had another been so blessed; and whether his message 𐤌 was to be rejected 𐤎 or welcomed 𐤉, he had not abridged or simplified the complexity of Wisdom's 𐤅 guidance on his journey 𐤊 to discovery of Heaven's gate 𐤇.

Gematria 784 𐤀𐤃𐤅𐤎: Enoch had measured 𐤎 Wisdom 𐤅 with a receptive 𐤃 heart.

Ordinal 82 𐤑𐤃 > 28 𐤇𐤌 > 10 𐤆 > 1 𐤀: He had acknowledged the Father as the Essence of his projection into Creation; for the had discovered himself to be One in HaShem 𐤄𐤉𐤄𐤆. He had spoken 𐤃 of this duality 𐤑 extensively 𐤌; for the perception of Source and Projection is of pairs 𐤇 so that we can grasp and accept 𐤆 the principle of Unity 𐤀.

His teachings had not been delivered as sealed teachings, but as wood for the altars of fire they lighted to facilitate discussion. HaShem's spokesmen 𐤃 integrate 𐤑 doctrines 𐤌 as companions, one with another; for they are brothers 𐤇 devoted 𐤆 to foundational principles 𐤀.

Targum: Nodding to his father Methuselah around the fire, Enoch was untroubled 𐤌 as he set forth his measurements 𐤎 of the complex truths he had drawn 𐤉 from the presence of Wisdom 𐤅 within his life; for those truths would be brought into better focus by his successors. Leading no one, he had performed 𐤊 his duty 𐤇.

𐤄𐤌𐤅 𐤎𐤉𐤀𐤌 𐤅𐤊𐤅

3 100 year

And after he had become the father of Methuselah, Enoch walked with God 300 years and had other sons and daughters.

3 𐤂 progressing towards 100 𐤒 Heaven

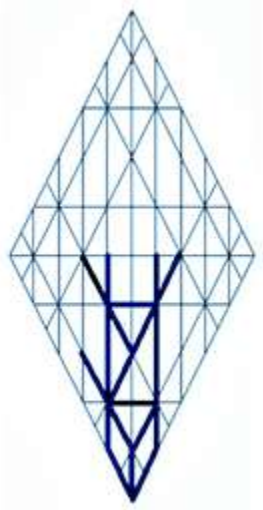

Compendiums of knowledge and conjecture are hoarded by every culture, and people are expected to agree with what they're taught. Most do; for life is demanding, and not everybody can find strength or space to set out in hope of finding a better way. The parable of the rich young ruler who could not leave his past on the recommendation of Y'shua speaks to this difficulty.

We examine ו ancient teachings, intent on learning from those who have gone before us ק. We visualize, analyze; and we theorize ו, trusting that the writings reflect מ principles ד that we can embrace י because they bear the mark ת of Wisdom ו and fill the inner man נ with light א.

Gematria 1432 קקתד: Principles have been invested in us ד, and they will reach their maturity ת under Shepherd's ק guidance ק.

Ordinal 136 יקפ > 91 דר > 73 זס > 64 בס > 46 יט > 37 נק > 19 חל > 10 ל > 1 ד: True priests פ are elders ק who have been transformed ר by God ד. Their understandings ס transcend ז insights ב. Freed מ of their own burdens י, they teach ק of deliverance ל with humility ל.They are committed ח servants ל of the Unity we call the Father ד.

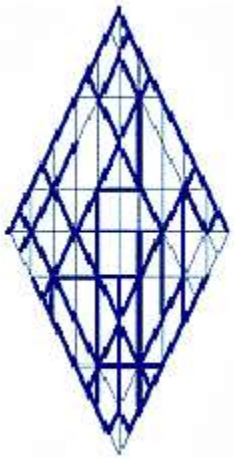

אמו מלוזי ומה
אמו תיבמ וקוי

5 60 year and 3 100 year

So Enoch lived a total of 365 years.

5 א enlightened 60 ס within the Tree of Life,
3 ז he climbed into 100 פ the chariot

We are God's chariots ה, and we freely abandon ourselves מ to the updrafts ו of heaven's holy י fire ו, which is the Wisdom of HaShem ו. The gracious blessing ל of HaShem's counsel מ purifies and refines ו the inward essence of Sons of Man נ because there is healing in his wings א.

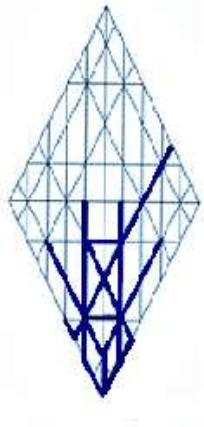

We serve as the bellows י of divine Breath ו, and its forceful guidance promotes confidence ק within our spirits ו by freeing מ our perceptions ד of the shackles י of the world ת. The glory ו that pertains to the Sons of Man נ will be revealed א.

Gematria 2797 𐤔𐤓𐤅𐤇𐤋𐤋: The Father 𐤋 will identify 𐤋 specific 𐤇 errors 𐤅 that we are to overcome through transformation within the fold of his Spirit, so that their root can be severed 𐤔.

Ordinal 259 𐤈𐤉𐤋 > 106 𐤉𐤐 > 97 𐤔𐤓 > 79 𐤈𐤏 > 61 𐤋𐤞 > 16 𐤉𐤆 > 7 𐤔: We must insist 𐤋 upon respect 𐤓 for all life 𐤀, whether from others or from ourselves.

We have the right to expect that those who govern in the room of messiah 𐤋 should share our hunger 𐤉 for the resolution of conflicts 𐤈, regardless of cause or of litigants.

As the priests of Heaven 𐤐, we must honor 𐤉 all sacrifices 𐤓 within the natural order 𐤔, with conscious understanding 𐤏 of transubstantiation 𐤈: the plants 𐤞 that produce seed in themselves 𐤋 are given 𐤆 in sacrifice 𐤉 for our needs 𐤔.

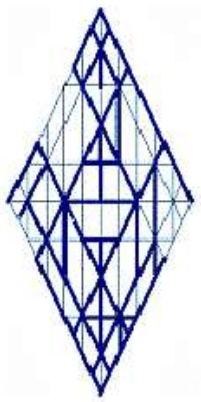

𐤀𐤉𐤅 𐤉𐤆𐤉𐤉𐤅𐤉 𐤏𐤃𐤅
𐤀𐤉𐤅 𐤇𐤋𐤉𐤉

7 and 80 and 100 year

When Methuselah was 187 years old, he became the father of Lamech 𐤉𐤉𐤊.

7 𐤔 razor 80 𐤃 lip 100 𐤐 moustache

How beautiful 𐤅 are the souls 𐤃 who absorb 𐤏 and channel 𐤉 the Breath 𐤅 without 𐤉 pretense 𐤉! They make use 𐤆 of its bounty 𐤉 to lift up 𐤅 brothers and sisters 𐤉 in the life 𐤀 here, below 𐤉. They understand that sharing of counsel 𐤉 and inspiration 𐤋 is a vital 𐤉 element of renewal 𐤇; for Wisdom 𐤅 cherishes 𐤉 as it enlightens 𐤀.

Gematria 1981 𐤋𐤃𐤐𐤇𐤇𐤋: The Father's 𐤋 signature 𐤇 is emblazoned upon all things 𐤇; for the elements of Creation are holy 𐤐 expressions 𐤃 of his eternal principles 𐤋.

Ordinal 244 𐤁𐤉𐤋 > 100 𐤐 > 82 𐤄𐤃 > 64 𐤁𐤞 > 46 𐤉𐤉 > 28 𐤄𐤉 > 10 𐤆 > 1 𐤋: For any to recognize 𐤋 Wisdom 's attributes 𐤉 is to study 𐤁 ascendancy 𐤐; for to feast 𐤃 upon Creation's 𐤄 structure 𐤞 is to meditate 𐤁 on its parables 𐤉 of Truth 𐤉, whose permutations 𐤉 are windows that open upon 𐤄 the essence 𐤆 of the Father 𐤋.

𐤋𐤌𐤊 Lamech למך

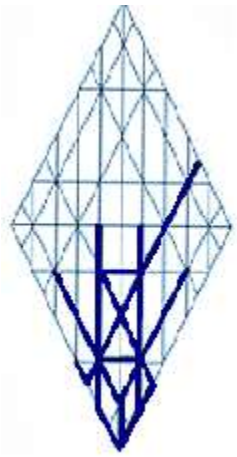

on behalf of 𐤊 the poor, the humble 𐤏𐤍

HaShem favors 𐤊 those 𐤍 who shout out 𐤏 what they have learned 𐤊. Spontaneous 𐤍 outbursts 𐤏 can motivate 𐤊 others that are traveling 𐤍 the path to realignment 𐤏. The Shepherd leads best by those whose tongues 𐤊 are not tied 𐤍 by doctrine 𐤏.

Gematria 90 𐤑: Righteousness 𐤑 is victory 𐤑 through transformation 𐤑. It is not an offshoot 𐤑 of the behavior 𐤑 or demeanor 𐤑 of a tsaddiq 𐤑, a saint. Such things are consequential 𐤑 to transformation 𐤑 and are incidental 𐤑 to the saint's 𐤑 dance 𐤑 with Perfection 𐤑.

Ordinal 36 𐤉𐤊: The shepherd's staff 𐤊 is Truth, itself 𐤉.

Checksum: Saints 𐤑 (90 𐤑) maintain consistency 𐤎 within the birthing process 𐤆 (63 𐤆𐤎). Because they are are in pursuit of 𐤊 Truth 𐤉 (36 𐤉𐤊), they are able to resolve disparities 𐤗 (9 𐤗) with wise 𐤊 judgment 𐤉 (36 𐤉𐤊). They remain centered on common threads that tie together 𐤎 apparent differences, making progress by the unfolding processes 𐤆 (63 𐤆𐤎) of transformation 𐤑 (90 𐤑).

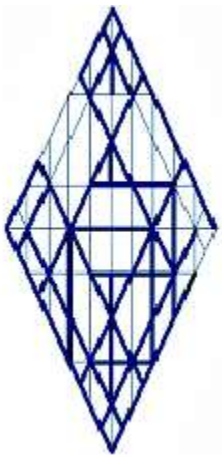

𐤁𐤉𐤅 𐤔𐤋𐤉𐤉𐤔𐤅𐤉 𐤔𐤋𐤇𐤅
𐤁𐤉𐤅 𐤇𐤐𐤉𐤔 𐤏𐤁𐤅𐤉

2 and 80 year and 7 100 year

After he had become the father of Lamech, Methuselah lived 782 years and had other sons and daughters.

2 𐤁 awareness 80 𐤒 of personality

7 𐤎 interferes 100 𐤩 with thoughts

Analyze 𐤅 in detail 𐤇 the issues you must solve 𐤆. Prepare yourself 𐤍 for the nourishment 𐤉 of Wisdom's 𐤅 counsel 𐤍. Truth 𐤉 is a sensitive 𐤈 matter 𐤆, and concern 𐤍 about liability incurred because of unwarranted stimulation 𐤅 is natural and wholesome 𐤈.

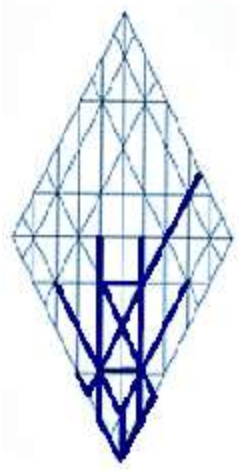

Relief for all comes 𐤁 when we appreciate the extent to which 𐤉 HaShem 𐤅 cares for each of us 𐤁. Understanding 𐤏 builds within the collective because many 𐤹 are inspired 𐤼 while hosting unity as though they were alone 𐤽. The relief, itself, is a sign 𐤧 of Wisdom's 𐤦 involvement 𐤺 in our enlightenment 𐤣.

Gematria 2737 𐤳𐤿𐤦𐤧𐤼𐤼: The Father's 𐤼 power 𐤼 is absolute in every realm 𐤧; and his Wisdom 𐤦, as the Shepherd King, is the goad that will spur 𐤿 us to perfection 𐤳.

Ordinal 316 𐤽𐤶𐤦 > 163 𐤵𐤴𐤰 > 136 𐤽𐤿𐤰 > 91 𐤼𐤸 > 73 𐤵𐤪 > 64 𐤁𐤴 > 46 𐤽𐤹 > 37 𐤳𐤿 > 10 𐤶 > 1 𐤼:
Breathing 𐤦 can promote 𐤶 alignment 𐤽 with divine order 𐤴. The fall 𐤵 and the expulsion from the Garden 𐤰 taught 𐤿 us of divine judgment 𐤽; and it shifted 𐤸 our focus 𐤼 to obtaining fuller understanding of that which is hidden by appearances 𐤪.

We will overcome 𐤵 the shocking 𐤴 pain and ignominy 𐤁 of human history. It troubles us all 𐤹, but we must trust in our unity. The had that slaps lands on its own face. When we commit to mercy 𐤽, it will lead us 𐤿 to perfection 𐤳 in the hands 𐤶 of the Father 𐤼.

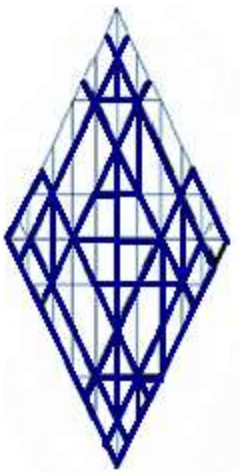

𐤣𐤹𐤦 𐤹𐤶𐤦𐤦𐤽 𐤪𐤦𐤧
𐤣𐤹𐤦 𐤧𐤽𐤼𐤹 𐤪𐤦𐤧𐤽

9 and 60 year and 9 100 year

So Methuselah lived a total of 969 years, and then he died.

9 ⊗ targeting 60 𐤴 of foundational dilemmas

9 ⊗ must be resolved 100 𐤰 in Heaven

The seal 𐤧 of Wisdom 𐤦 is understanding 𐤪, which can be compared to the midpoint 𐤽 between absolute might 𐤦 and utter vulnerability 𐤦. Search 𐤶 your memory 𐤹, looking at the wonders 𐤦 and surprises 𐤺 within your life; and consider 𐤽: in each notable 𐤧 instance 𐤦, understanding 𐤪 was preceded and precipitated 𐤹 by a flash of inspiration 𐤼, conveying its truth, its validity.

By just such observations as this, the glory 𐤦 of the Sons of Man 𐤺 is revealed 𐤣.

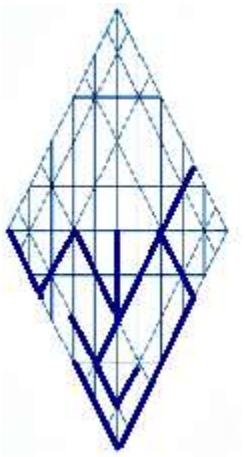

Gematria 3359 ⊗𐤺𐤦𐤼𐤼𐤼: Should the human ego 𐤼 perceive 𐤼 a principle 𐤼 of Wisdom 𐤦, it will misrepresent the revelation 𐤺 as its own contrivance ⊗.

Ordinal 317 𐤔𐤅 > 173 𐤁𐤏𐤐 > 137 𐤔𐤒𐤐 > 83 𐤁𐤓 > 74 𐤃𐤏 > 47 𐤔𐤉 > 38 𐤄𐤒 > 11 𐤊𐤆 > 2 𐤁: Wisdom 𐤅 added 𐤆 language 𐤔 to the mind 's 𐤐 capabilities 𐤏 to prepare the avenue 𐤁 for its holy 𐤐 teachings 𐤒. Writing 𐤔 is the partner of speech 𐤓 because the stream 𐤁 of understanding 𐤏 depends upon the faculty of sight 𐤃.

Pictographs, hieroglyphs, and emblems that became alphabets are symbols, because the mind thinks in symbols. It is the interplay of symbols that gives meaning, not the transmission of soud.The function of sound in speech is to trigger associated symbols in the mind. When a word is spoken, it is because the tongue has drawn from the quiver of associated symbols and has found the right one to convey its intent.

If the right imagery appears to the mind, the word is known. If the symbolism that comes to mind is uncertain, the mind loops back and forth between possible groups of symbols, looking for a serviceable option. The mind is the bow, but the arrow rests upon the tongue if it has been drawn from memory, the quiver.The power of life and death is in the tongue because, in speech, it appropriates the divine faculty of eternal language, for good or for not good in the temporal realm.

Whether written or spoken, the sense 𐤉 of a word or a sentence 𐤔 hinges upon 𐤒 visualization of its context 𐤄 during the exchange 𐤄 between those who communicate 𐤊 and those who pay attention 𐤁.

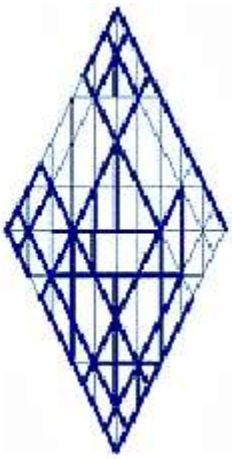

𐤀𐤉𐤅 𐤟𐤊𐤉𐤟 𐤀𐤉𐤅 𐤉𐤆𐤉𐤉𐤅𐤟 𐤉𐤆𐤟𐤅

2 and 80 year and 100 year

When Lamech was 182 years old, he had a son and named him Noah 𐤄𐤉, saying, "May this one comfort us in the labor and toil of our hands, caused by the ground HaShem has cursed."

2 𐤁 trumpet 80 𐤓 lip 100 𐤐 alarm

Wisdom 𐤅 measures 𐤟 its handiwork 𐤆. Without fail 𐤉, it both weighs and calibrates 𐤟 effects of the timely application 𐤅 of its counsel 𐤉. Here and there a little, Wisdom will make adjustments 𐤉, sculpting 𐤆 water 𐤉 with fire 𐤅.

The Sons of Man 𐤉 become enlightened 𐤀 as their judgment 𐤟 is rippled by the flow 𐤉 of divine inspiration 𐤊. We are to be sealed 𐤟 by immersion in the fires of Divine Essence, at which time Wisdom's 𐤅 promises 𐤉 will overtake us all 𐤀.

Gematria 2353 𐤁𐤉𐤅𐤊𐤊: The Life Spark 𐤊 is the Fire of Wisdom seated in our bones 𐤊: the Breath of HaShem wrings lifeblood from the marrow of dry bones, purging and purifying 𐤅 sons of Man 𐤉 through the processes of rebirth 𐤁.

Ordinal 265 𐤇𐤟𐤃 > 256 𐤉𐤉𐤃 > 85 𐤇𐤆 > 76 𐤉𐤏 > 67 𐤎𐤟 > 13 𐤁𐤆 > 4 𐤀: Knowledge 𐤃 of the Tree of Life 𐤟 renews 𐤇 the mind 𐤃. The satisfying 𐤉 nectar 𐤉 of its fruits are expressions 𐤆 of Father's Essence 𐤇. Think, for a moment 𐤏: even the perfect food 𐤉 of the Life Tree has its seasons 𐤟! Our mortal expectations 𐤎 will be discarded 𐤆 along the path of the birthing process 𐤁, which ends the beginning of perfection and rest 𐤎. The circle will be unbroken.

𐤇𐤉 Noah נח

a comfort; restful, comfortable;
at rest, quiescent.

Beware 𐤉 of the privileged point of view 𐤇: souls beset by errors are called sinners, not saints. The notion 𐤉 that we are walled in from the world, as being kept 𐤇, due to personal 𐤉 favor or accomplishment 𐤇 will delay 𐤉 the ascent 𐤇. Sons of Man 𐤉 are brothers 𐤇, after all. We can't deny 𐤉 fraternity 𐤇 with those who stumble 𐤉, ascribing to ourselves illusory differences 𐤇. On the contrary, we must recognize and uphold those who seem to lag behind 𐤉 as the friends and companions they truly are 𐤇.

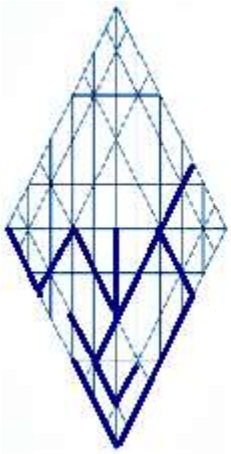

life 𐤆𐤇

Gematria 58 𐤇𐤉: Abandon 𐤉 all pretense 𐤇, and you will be clad 𐤉 in the mantle 𐤇 of the enlightened ones 𐤉 as you climb Jacob's Ladder 𐤇.

Ordinal 22 𐤄𐤔 > 11 𐤊𐤆 > 4 𐤀: Unrest 𐤔 within the soul 𐤄 is like a grasping hand: it will shut 𐤊 the doors of your heart 𐤀.

Targum: As a Son of Man 𐤉, your rightful place, as is mine, among our peers: among sinners following in the footsteps of Y'shua, the Anointed one, who walks among us all as a brother and friend 𐤇.

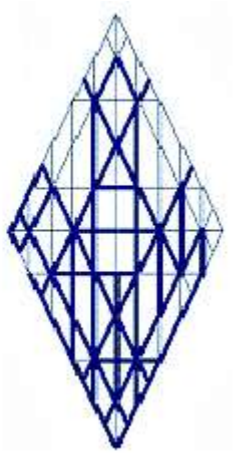

𐤄𐤌𐤅 𐤌𐤋𐤏𐤅𐤗𐤉 𐤅𐤌𐤇
𐤄𐤌𐤅 𐤗𐤋𐤌 𐤅𐤌𐤇𐤉

5 and 90 year and 5 100 year

And after he had become the father of Noah, Lamech lived 595 years and had other sons and daughters.

5 𐤄 lives 90 𐤓 are transformed

5 𐤄 by revelations 100 𐤐 from Heaven

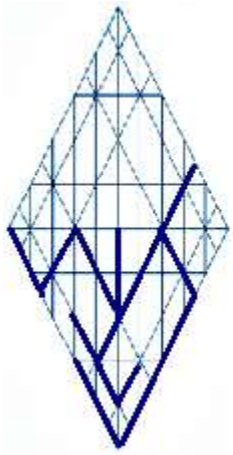

The discord 𐤇 within humanity 𐤌 had become destructive 𐤅 and 𐤉 extraordinarily cruel 𐤗.Violence 𐤅 was everywhere 𐤏. The poor 𐤆 were deprived 𐤌 of the dignity 𐤅 of hope 𐤉 in their daily lives 𐤄, they squandered their days in diversions 𐤃, stealing 𐤆 time Justice 𐤉 had become synonymous with favor 𐤇.

Those who were disadvantaged 𐤌 suffered 𐤅 without pause 𐤌. They were treated as though they were of no consequence 𐤋; and they were cursed 𐤗 by the wealthy, who warred against them 𐤅 so they could more easily indulge 𐤉 passing whims 𐤄.

Gematria 2679 𐤈𐤏𐤋𐤗𐤋𐤋: The meek 𐤋 were singled out for derision 𐤋. Day in and day out 𐤗, their commitment to noble principles 𐤋 made them vulnerable to senseless hostility 𐤏. They were easy targets 𐤈.

Ordinal 294 𐤃𐤓𐤋 > 249 𐤈𐤌𐤋 > 213 𐤍𐤆𐤋 > 132 𐤌𐤒𐤐 > 123 𐤍𐤎𐤐 > 96 𐤉𐤓 > 69 𐤈𐤕 > 60 𐤕 > 51 𐤋𐤉 > 42 𐤌𐤉 > 24 𐤃𐤎 > 15 𐤄𐤆 > 6 𐤉: Authorities had long ago lost control 𐤋 of the systems in their charge. They ceded their mandates to diverse interest groups that were incompatible 𐤓, one with the other; and each one of them denied 𐤃 their own.

Meditative introspection 𐤈? Bah! It had become a pastime of the elite 𐤋. It afforded them the illusion that they could escape their obligations 𐤆, their irritations, and their bitter 𐤍 despondency 𐤐. Driven 𐤒 by greed 𐤌, the privileged slandered 𐤐 all evidence 𐤎 of an inward birthing process 𐤍; and they blasphemed 𐤓 the idea of nourishment 𐤉 by the Tree of Life 𐤕 because it was denied to them 𐤈. Hamstrung by their frills 𐤕, they had lost faith 𐤉 that God 𐤋 took interest 𐤌 in their souls 𐤌. In suppressed desperation 𐤎, therefore, they squandered their days in diversion 𐤃, stealing 𐤆 time 𐤄 from Heaven 𐤉.

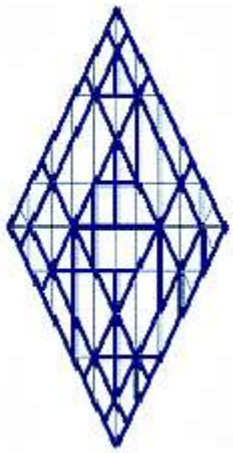

𐤔𐤉𐤅 𐤌𐤆𐤏𐤓𐤉 𐤏𐤓𐤅
𐤔𐤉𐤅 𐤇𐤉𐤊𐤌 𐤏𐤓𐤉

7 and 70 year and 7 100 year

So Lamech lived a total of 777 years, and then he died.

7 𐤆 the perfection 70 𐤏 of understanding

7 𐤆 is the obligation 100 𐤑 of Heaven

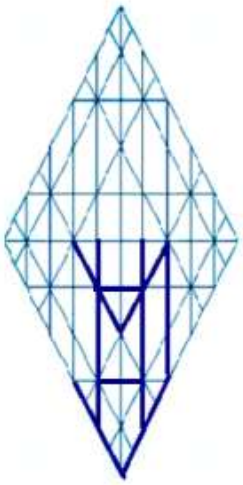

When awakened 𐤅, the soul 𐤃 understands 𐤏 that it serves as a bellows 𐤉 for the Breath of Life 𐤅. Comfortable 𐤃 with this awareness 𐤏, it hopes to serve 𐤆 without restriction 𐤌 as it moves forward to the purging 𐤅 of the inside of the cup 𐤋. Its essence and its sentience 𐤄 are wed 𐤉 to the indwelling Breath 𐤅, as unto a soulmate 𐤃; for it treasures 𐤏 the counsel 𐤌 of the Father 𐤊 and joyfully entrusts 𐤉 all things 𐤇 to his Wisdom 𐤅. The Sons of Man 𐤋 are truly alive 𐤄.

Gematria 2056 𐤉𐤋𐤊𐤊: The Father 𐤊 will quicken 𐤊 the dead 𐤋 in his mercy 𐤉.

Ordinal 274 𐤃𐤏𐤇 > 247 𐤆𐤌𐤇 > 94 𐤃𐤓 > 76 𐤉𐤏 > 67 𐤆𐤑 > 49 𐤗𐤌 > 31 𐤊𐤒 > 13 𐤙𐤆 > 4 𐤃: Watch 𐤇 in silence 𐤏. Give heed 𐤃 to Messiah's 𐤇 counsel 𐤌, which saves 𐤆 by transforming 𐤓 perceptions 𐤃 and understandings 𐤏.

Alignment and unification 𐤉 with the Tree of Life 𐤑 opens the floodgates 𐤆 for Living Waters 𐤌 to sweep away all obstruction 𐤗. HaShem protects 𐤒 the faithful remnant 𐤊. By his hand 𐤆, HaShem will convey 𐤙 the remnant to a refuge, a place 𐤆 of safety 𐤃.

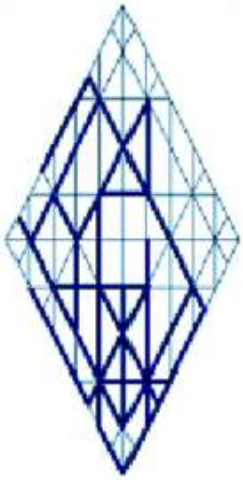

𐤔𐤉𐤅 𐤇𐤉𐤊𐤌 𐤅𐤌𐤄

5 100 year

When Noah was 500 years old, he became the father of Shem, Ham, and Japeth.

5 𐤄 lives 100 𐤑 ascending and descending

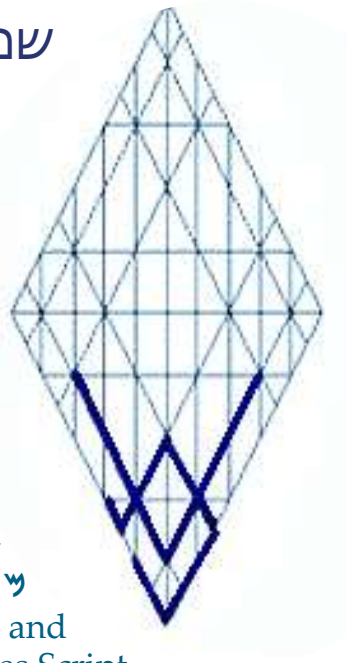

Workers 𐤇 who respond 𐤌 to Wisdom's 𐤅 counsel 𐤌 will be empowered 𐤋; for in this present dispensation, which is the horn 𐤉 of another age 𐤕, the glory 𐤅 of the Sons of Man 𐤍 will be revealed 𐤀.

Gematria 1150 𐤍𐤐𐤋: The Creator 𐤋 protects and safeguards 𐤐 the remnant 𐤍.

Ordinal 124 𐤃𐤌𐤐 > 70 𐤏 > 61 𐤋𐤎 > 52 𐤊𐤍 > 43 𐤆𐤅 > 34 𐤃𐤑 > 25 𐤀𐤌 > 16 𐤉 > 7 𐤆: Driving each of them out as they become apparent, the HaShem 𐤐 will uproot 𐤌 every impediment 𐤃 to understanding 𐤏. He has determined 𐤎 to intervene 𐤋; for it has become stylish for them to boast of their errors 𐤍. Stubborn in their rejection 𐤊 counsel 𐤌, some go yet further, nodding in derision 𐤆 as they ridicule those who repent along the way 𐤑. Their hearts have become brittle 𐤃: they flaunt 𐤌 their hatred 𐤀 by choosing 𐤇 to wage 𐤉 war 𐤆.

𐤔𐤅 Shem שם

name; designation; fame, renown, reputation; noun, cognomen.

Biblical names express the spiritual qualities and principles of things fashioned in the image and likeness of the Breath of Life 𐤅. Creation is the conceptual doorway to the operations of the the Holy Spirit 𐤅. The Divine Breath is made visible in the lives of its children, its families, its people, and the mixed multitudes of Earth 𐤌.

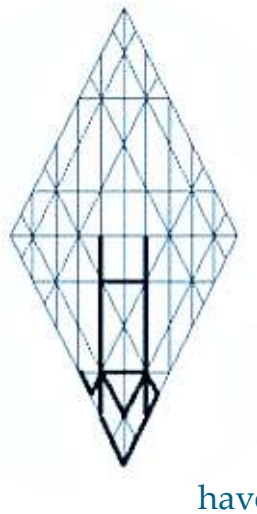

When biblical names are read as words within a text, they speak to the spiritual 𐤅 contexts of the People of the Book 𐤌 as they struggle 𐤅 to be free; and when they are studied and interpreted when written in the holy emblems of the Moses Script, they deepen appreciation that, in his Wisdom, God 𐤅 has prepared 𐤌 strong food 𐤅 for his children 𐤌. The glory of HaShem's 𐤅 counsel is reflected 𐤌 in biblical names: they catch the Light, revealing themselves to be among the brightest gems of Wisdom 𐤅 because they mirror its attributes 𐤌.

Names are assimilated 𐤅 by memory without much difficulty 𐤌; but if their significance goes no deeper 𐤅 than sound 𐤌, their utilization as a tool of Wisdom 𐤅 is greatly impaired 𐤌, and the biblical subtexts within which they dance 𐤅 will remain hidden 𐤌.

Gematria 340 𐤌𐤅: Wisdom 𐤅 shall top its banks 𐤌.

Ordinal 34 ΔՀ > 7 Σ: It will oppose all that is contrary Հ to yoga Δ as it perfects language Σ.

Targum: Even if they should tremble Ψ with uncertainty Ϟ—feeling shaken Ψ, uprooted Ϟ, the holy remnant will be uplifted by Wisdom's Ψ counsel Ϟ.

ϞΗ Ham חם

there, thither; shame, ill repute.

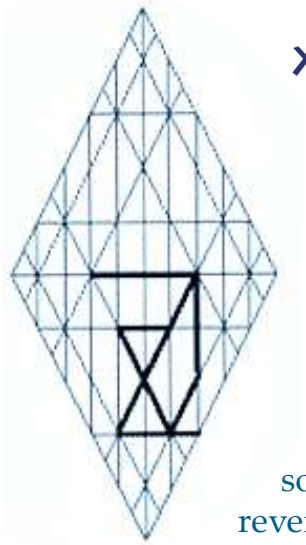

An amicable fellow by nature Η, Ham became darkly emotional Ϟ during the celebration Η of the family's escape from Nod Ϟ and its sucking Η waters Ϟ. He jad been compelled to distance himself Η from so much Ϟ!

Gematria 48 ΗϞ: The flood Ϟ had depressed him Η. He had lost Ϟ so many friends Η. He would survive, but he would have to forget Ϟ and keep looking look ahead...for what Η?!

Ordinal 21 ԿϠ > 12 ϩϚ > 3 ϒ: The overthrow of expectations Ϡ had so angered him Կ that he had lost interest Ϛ in personal ϩ betterment ϒ.

Targum: His outlook had hemmed him in Η with a sense of betrayal Ϟ. Everything that made him who he was Η had simply been thrown overboard Ϟ!

He would have to start over without friends to reinvent a life that could not be regained. He was lost Ϟ, and his imagination Η was killing him Ϟ.

ΧϽϚ Japeth יפת

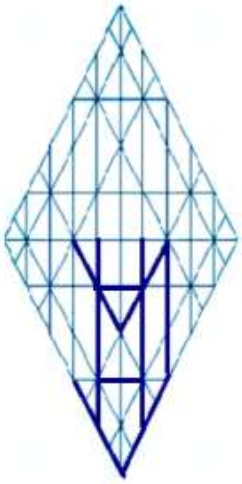

tempted.

Japeth was governed by respect. He chose Ϛ to avoid Ϗ intimacy Χ because it exposes Ϛ vulnerability. This personal Ϗ reticence was symptomatic Χ of his genuine humility Ϛ; for he would not allow himself Ϗ to become an imposition in any context Χ.

Gematria 490 ϦΧ: He was marked with the wholesomeness so characteristic Χ of innocence: he was respectful and reverent. He was honorable in his pursuits Ϧ.

Ordinal 49 𐤊𐤌 > 31 𐤋𐤂 > 13 𐤍𐤆 > 4 𐤃: His natural lusts 𐤌 are contained within himself or have been, largely, overcome 𐤊; and he endeavors to walk in harmony with the ways and the teachings 𐤂 of the Heavenly Father 𐤋, avoiding situations that would generate 𐤆 great disruption by causing another some unseemly inconvenience 𐤍 or discomfort 𐤃.

Targum: He will be awarded the means 𐤆 to escape 𐤉 condemnation 𐤗.

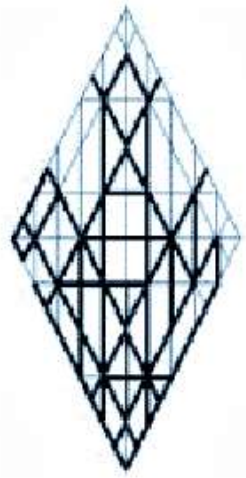

𐤀𐤌𐤅 𐤗𐤕𐤋𐤌 𐤅𐤅

6 100 year

Noah was 600 years old when the floodwaters came on the Earth.

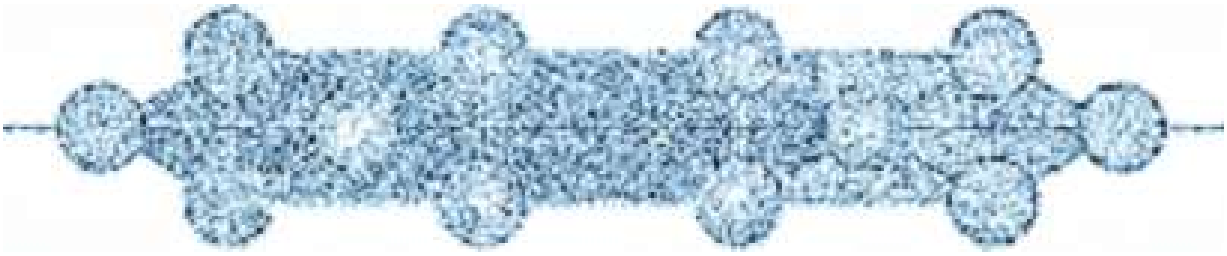

6 𐤕 deluge 100 𐤐 downpour

An epic 𐤅 condemnation 𐤅 of man's indulgences 𐤌 was unleashed 𐤋upon the Earth and its inhabitants. Of all living things, only a remnant would be preserved; for the scales of justice had become imbalanced, and judgment 𐤕 required intervention 𐤗. Wisdom 𐤅 devastated 𐤈 the living 𐤀.

Gematria 1402 𐤉𐤗𐤋: The Father 𐤋 destroyed 𐤗 to rebuild 𐤉; for it is the duty of the Creator to intervene 𐤋 as circumstance 𐤗 requires 𐤉 when an age 𐤋 closes 𐤗 upon itself.

Ordinal 124 𐤃𐤌𐤐 > 61 𐤋𐤞 > 43 𐤍𐤌 > 34 𐤃𐤂 > 16 𐤕𐤆 > 7 𐤎: The chosen 𐤐 will survive 𐤌 in the vault 𐤃 of the Ark, that refuge whose ratios are drawn from the Tree of Lives 𐤞. The expansive 𐤋 floodwaters 𐤌 deepened 𐤍. Advancing against 𐤂 all openings 𐤃, it brought 𐤆 indiscriminate 𐤕 ruin 𐤎.

W

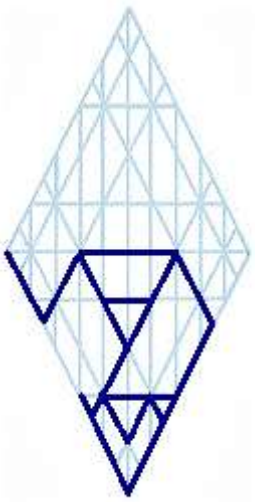

A

T

E

R

S

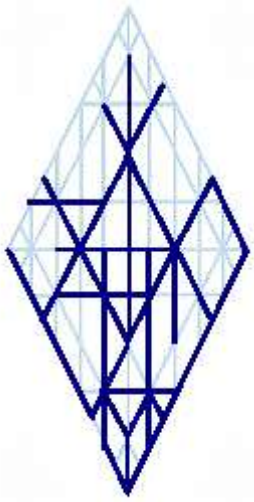

𐤌𐤉𐤆 𐤊𐤀𐤌𐤉 𐤌𐤆𐤅𐤌𐤄

50 and 100 day

And the waters prevailed upon the Earth 150 days.

50 𐤌 the inner man

100 𐤐 ascending and descending

Noah turned himself about. The view from the bridge 𐤄 was daunting; for the waters are 𐤌 relentless 𐤅. They offer 𐤆 no respite 𐤌. They wipe away 𐤉 even remembrance 𐤌 of the vitality 𐤀 that vanished t in the grip 𐤆 of the hungry 𐤉 waters 𐤌. The people who once were are gone; and their places, with them. There is a sameness everywhere, that even the ripples on the water's surface cannot disturb.

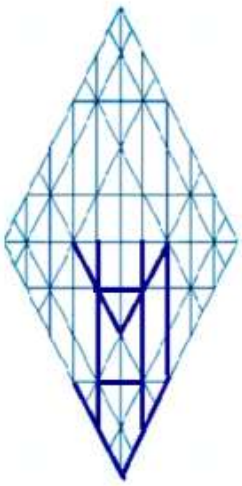

There had been bird calls at the beginning of the end, as birds of prey fulfilled their functions by feasting on the dead, but the carrion gave up its gasses, and the bodies disappeared from the surface of the waters. With nothing more to eat and with no place to rest their wings, the birds of death shrieked as, one by one, they fell from the sky, filling the Earth with silence.

The only sound, the only movement, the only life was in the keeps. Noah thought of his family as he turned to his chores. As survivors saved from those deadly deaths by the providence of HaShem, they were as afterthoughts, asterisks. Lamech had named him in hopes of comfort, but Noah would be remembered by many as the man who cheated death by listening to whispers.There was nothing he might have done differently, but he couldn't shake a sense of betrayal. He was plagued with the guilt of ou longevity.

Ah He was losing track! His family had survived, and for that mercy he was he was thankful, but that gratitude fought for his attention, in competition with the uproar raised by the struggle between humility and arrogant pride. It seemed that every moment every moment was choked off by judgments: why were we spared, but not them?

Gematria 901 𐤀𐤐𐤊𐤊: The ending 𐤊 is not final 𐤊. Heaven has determined that there should be survival 𐤐 of a seed 𐤀.

Ordinal 136 𐤆𐤊𐤐 > 64 𐤀𐤓 > 37 𐤎𐤊 > 10 𐤆 > 1 𐤋: Heaven's 𐤐 role and function 𐤊 is to tend 𐤆 to the Tree of Life 𐤓 as the gateway 𐤀 leasing 𐤊 to the perfection 𐤎 that will come upon us by the hand 𐤆 of God 𐤋.

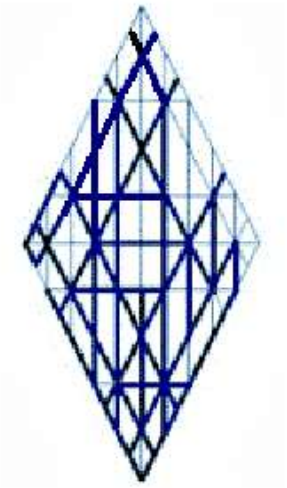

𐤁𐤉𐤅 𐤗𐤈𐤋𐤉 𐤅𐤅𐤈 𐤗𐤄𐤋

1 6 100 year

Noah was 601 years old when the floodwaters
dried up on the Earth.

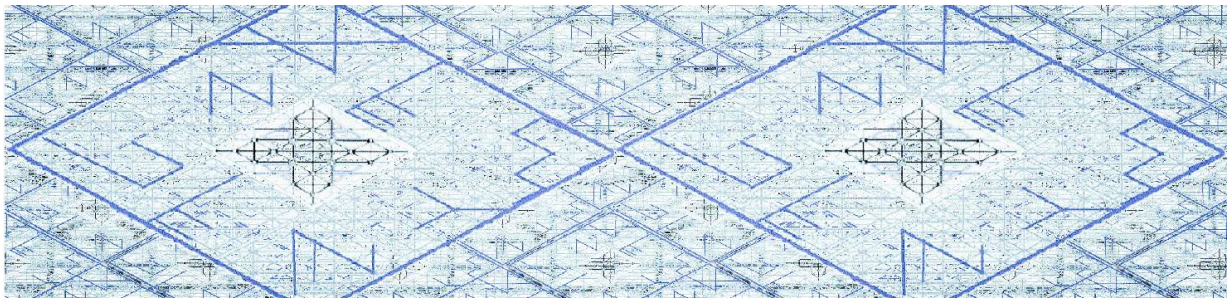

1 𐤋 seed 6 𐤈 preserved 100 𐤐 by Heaven

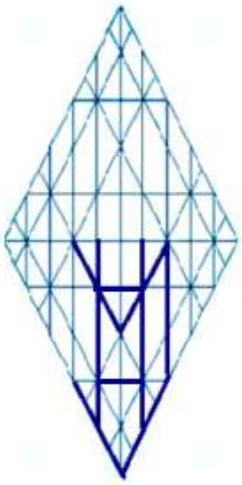

The Father's principles 𐤋 are brought into focus 𐤄 through suffering 𐤀. Wisdom 𐤅 therefore contends 𐤅 with distortions 𐤉 of its principles 𐤋: not to punish, but to restore. Judgments 𐤈 and interventions 𐤗 were not punitive in any personal sense; the war 𐤅, but against degeneracy that fosters mayhem 𐤈 among the living 𐤁. The entire thought could be misapprehension. Man does not have a perspective t hat enables him to make his own choices well.

Gematria 1415 𐤁𐤆𐤗𐤋: The Father 𐤋 takes full measure 𐤗 of all beings; for they all are both recipients and custodians 𐤆 of the Breath of Life 𐤁.

Ordinal 137 𐤎𐤊𐤐 > 83 𐤒𐤍 > 74 𐤀𐤏 > 47 𐤎𐤉 > 38 𐤄𐤊 > 11 𐤋𐤆 > 2 𐤃: Those chosen are protected 𐤐 by the Shepherd's 𐤊 oath 𐤎. Those who are presently cast down will be allowed 𐤍 a future return 𐤒 to Earth 𐤏, when their hearts 𐤀, having been cleansed 𐤉, can again pursue perfection 𐤎. As the Shepherd King, the Father is responsible 𐤊 for their ascent and their descent. By mutual agreement 𐤄, all shall come to adopt 𐤆 the Father's principles 𐤋 as their own 𐤃.

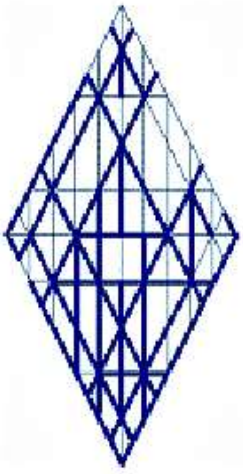

𐤃𐤉𐤅 𐤗𐤕𐤊𐤉 𐤅𐤂𐤅
𐤃𐤉𐤅 𐤉𐤆𐤅𐤉𐤄𐤕

3 100 year and 50 year

After the flood, Noah lived 350 years.

3 𐤂 confirmed 100 𐤐 by the rainbow

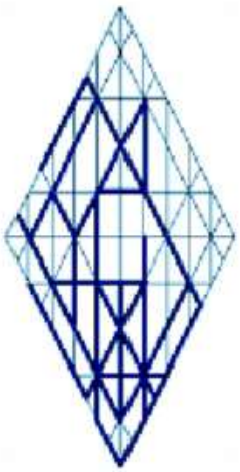

50 𐤉 as a Son of Man

The passion 𐤅 of Noah, the elder 𐤆 plagued him 𐤅 with worries 𐤉. He feared 𐤊 that his family would be marooned 𐤕 in a future 𐤗 that would become punishing and merciless 𐤅. Despite their rescue, he had become despondent—disappointed 𐤉 with life 𐤃; and he now judged 𐤕 the future prospects 𐤄 of his family 𐤉 to be so grim 𐤅 that he had begun 𐤆 to question 𐤉 reasons 𐤅 for prolonging 𐤉 their days together 𐤃.

Gematria 2191 𐤊𐤓𐤐𐤊𐤊: The heavenly Father 𐤊 sees 𐤊 his bow in the cloud 𐤐, and it turns away 𐤓 his anger 𐤊.

Ordinal 247 𐤔𐤉𐤋 > 94 𐤋𐤓 > 76 𐤕𐤏 > 67 𐤔𐤣 > 13 𐤂𐤆 > 4 𐤋: After 𐤋 the flood of death 𐤉 had drained from off the earth 𐤔, however, Noah swallowed 𐤓 his grief 𐤋 and shame 𐤏. To the best of his abilities, his remaining 𐤕 cycles on Earth 𐤣 would be spent 𐤔 seeking 𐤆 the return 𐤂 to Eden's Garden of Bliss 𐤋.

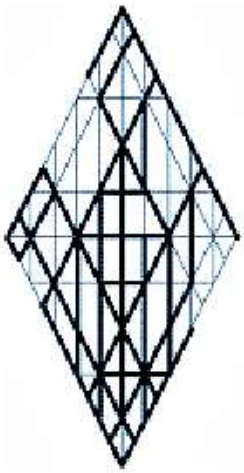

𐤃𐤉𐤅 𐤗𐤕𐤊𐤉 𐤏𐤅𐤗
𐤃𐤉𐤅 𐤉𐤆𐤅𐤉𐤄𐤕

9 100 year and 50 year

Noah lived a total of 950 years, and then he died.

9 ⊗ he accomplished 100 𐤐 Heaven's

50 𐤉 bidding

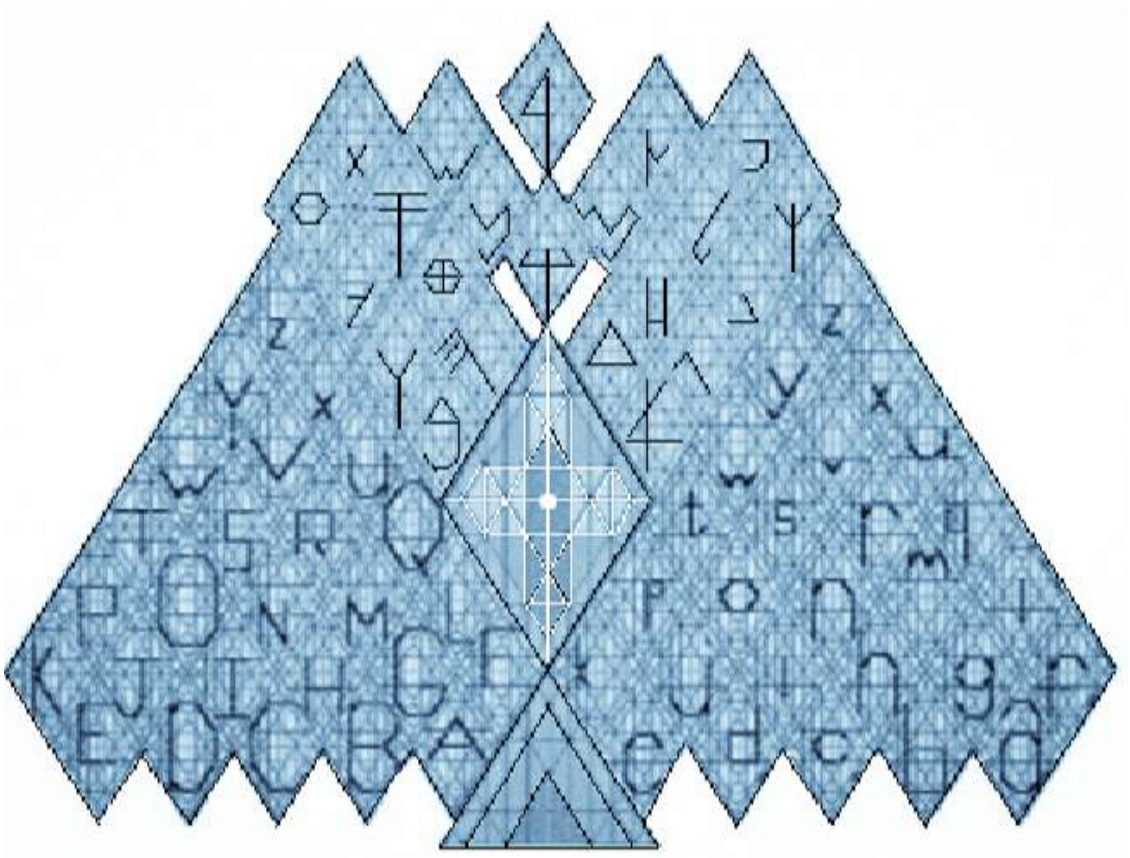

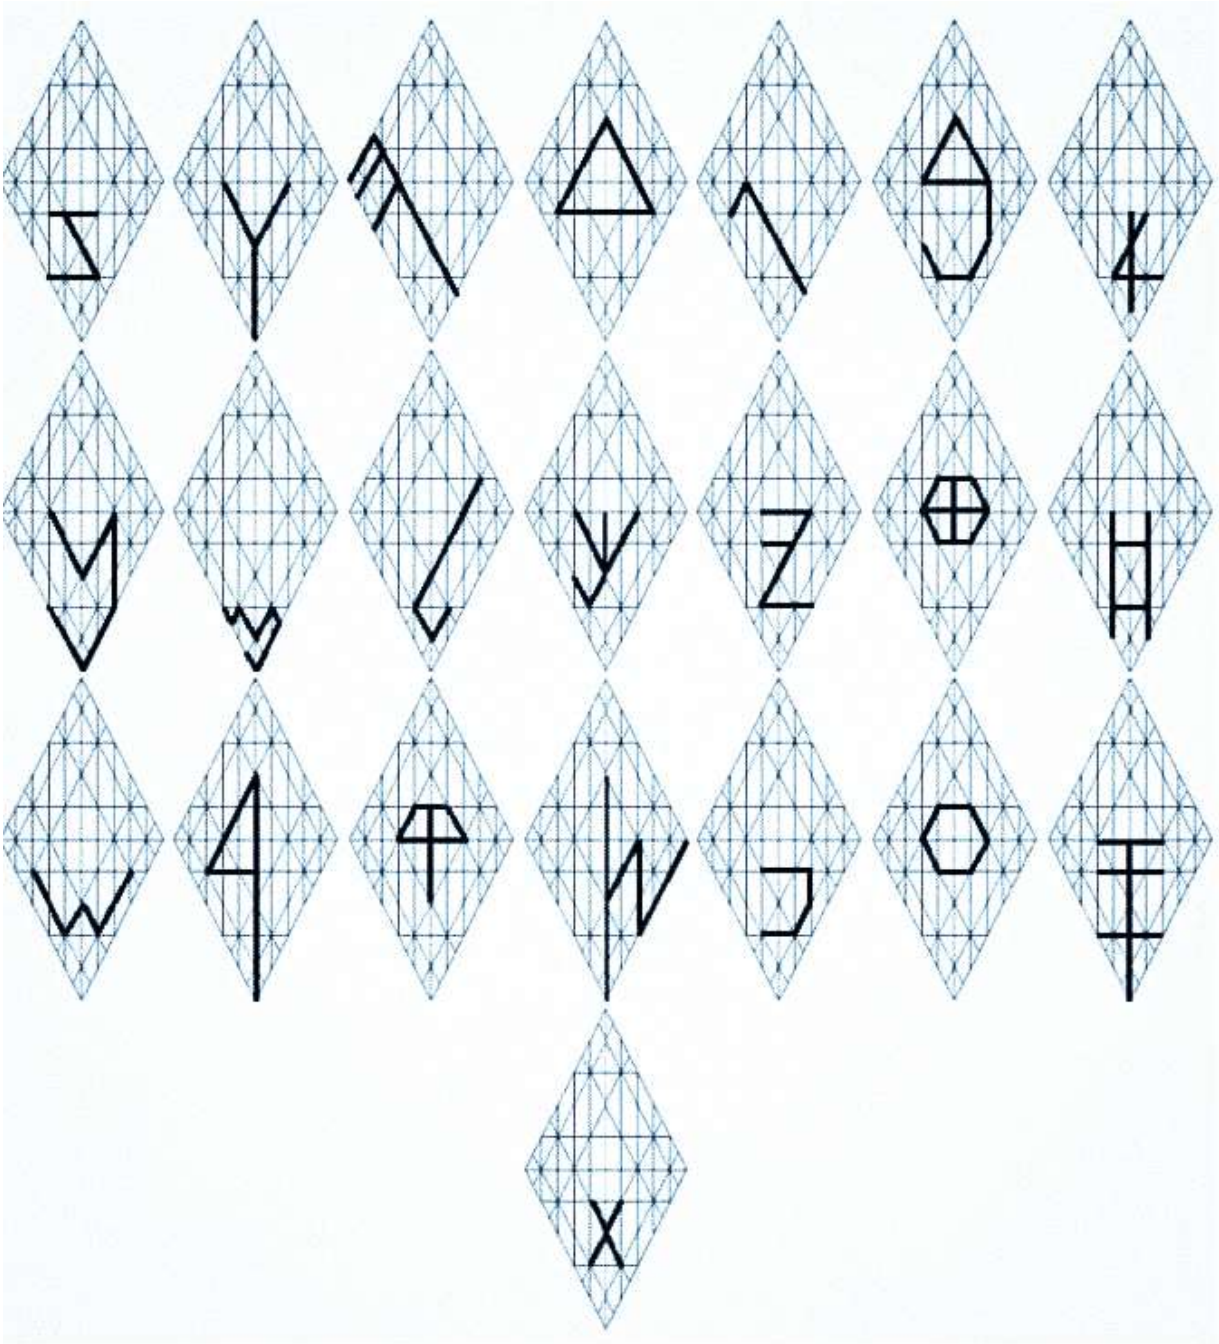

It was his all he could do. “Noah” 𐤇𐤍, understood as “comfort,” signifies the interior application 𐤍 of an exterior context 𐤇. It speaks of process, not of accomplishment or worth. Although details are not apparent, the name given to him through Lamech was, in itself, the answer to his questions. Having lived as a Son of Man 𐤍, he would serve as a rung on the ladder to Heaven when he was gathered to his fathers.

The families of man would question 𐤌 the Father’s 𐤀 judgment 𐤉 far into the future 𐤕; but—fears 𐤅 of the sons of men 𐤍 notwithstanding 𐤄—the solemn 𐤉 vow 𐤇 of HaMashiyach is that all people 𐤌 will be purified 𐤅, and that all will purchase 𐤆, by means of their fellowship of their lives within time, celestial garments free of stain 𐤌. Each in his order in the fullness of time, on the appointed day, the glory 𐤅 of the Sons of Man 𐤍 will be revealed 𐤄.

Gematria 2331 𐤀𐤂𐤅𐤀𐤀: If interference from right 𐤀 or left 𐤀 should beset you 𐤅, continue 𐤂 straight ahead 𐤀.

Ordinal 252 𐤋𐤍𐤃 > 90 𐤒 > 72 𐤋𐤏 > 54 𐤁𐤍 > 45 𐤄𐤅 > 27 𐤔𐤅 > 9 𐤕: Pay attention 𐤃, Son of Man 𐤍: listen well, and take it to heart: believe 𐤋 that error 𐤒 will not swallow up 𐤏 the soul’s 𐤋 destiny 𐤍. Death’s 𐤁 sting 𐤅 will be left behind in days 𐤄 of resurrection 𐤅. It is God’s will that we shall become perfected 𐤔 beings 𐤕!

Appendix to the Chronicles of Nod, Volume One

Lexicon: The Letters of Light

crowndiamond.org

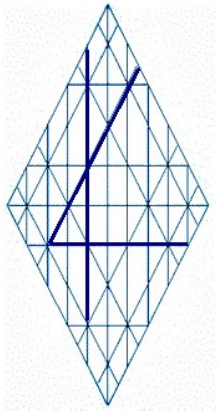

Alef

Gematria 1, 1000

Ordinal 1

first; God, Creator; Lord, Master; father, chief; foremost, head, leader; archetype, principality; primary, principal, main, topmost; impulse, notion, inclination, intention; principle, concept, idea; inception, initiation, beginning, start, dawn; incarnation; self, ego, id; atman, angel; individual, person; humanity seed; grain; to sow, plant; germination; to bury, inter; coitus; semen; conception, pregnancy incentive, motivation; capability, competence, capacity; to launch, project, ; futurity; renewal, restart outward projection; to emanate; to imply, implicate; to expand, increase, sprout, protrude; exposure; hyper-extended, bloated; ox; power, kinetic energy, force; horns; vigor, virility, fecundity; physical vitality, ability; to be stout; to plow, dig, cultivate; growth, reproduction; familiar, friend, confidante, companion; to intrude, attack; to vent, explode, erupt; disorder, unruliness, mayhem, panic; to scatter, flee, evade; determined, emphatic; thousand, thousand-fold; exponential; to champion, endorse friction; pressure; to squeeze; to spark, impose; to impair, forestall; to limit, reduce, cut off, amputate, sever, cull, harvest; to intervene, interfere, subvert, trick, undercut, undermine; deception, subterfuge; anger, belligerence, hostility, incitement; denigration; to revile, belittle, demean, begrudge, punish; injury; to transect, intersect, interfere; to interrupt, cut short, curtail; to wrap, bind, tie, jail; to enslave contraction; one, unitary; atom, monad; unique, solitary; small, insignificant, miniscule; to diminish, lessen, reduce, narrow, curtail; sharpened, abbreviated, whittled; to hide, disappear; condensation, evaporation; cursory, superficial, frivolous; insufficiency, inadequacy; to be bound, restricted, compacted, consolidated, bundled; events, incidents, occurrences; moments to focus; side view of the eye; sight; to examine, identify; to see, perceive; to squint; to doubt, question, ponder; augury, divination, sorcery; to peep, infer, deduce, surmise; supposition, postulation, expectation, theory; central point; area, locale; concentration; intensity; mania, passion; specificity; to concentrate, fix upon, to isolate, corner, box in; to underline; triangulation, accuracy; to settle, decide meditation; the priesthood; to school, train; to study, learn; self-awareness; to pray, incant; imagination, inspiration; pride, self-centeredness; angst, discomfort, torment; humility, meekness, contrition

Bet

ב

Gematria 2

Ordinal 2

to conceive; creation; to formulate, invent, mold, shape, fashion; to imagine; to show, manifest to organize, adapt, reform fabrication; to build, construct, make, remake, establish; to implement, utilize to bend, distort, conform; to withdraw, fold, tuck; to dig, shovel, scoop, carve, sculpt house, home, dwelling, building; habitat, habitation; institution image, idol, idolatry; superficiality; exterior to house; to lodge; household, family, child, kin, tribe, peer group; body, temple; soul as house of the spirit; ark; fetus; flesh, form, shell; receptacle, repository to include; to agree; to conform; to accept, claim; to assume; to cherish, keep, coddle; to store, retain supplies; to prefer, further; partisan, parochial; to shield the adverbs when, while, as, because to hear; earlobe; to listen, pay attention, heed; receptivity; attentiveness; introspection; to notice; consciousness, awareness; to respond, answer, echo to embrace; to pair, match; to engage; to adopt, acclimate; to take in, hoard; intentional; to prefer; to invite; to domesticate, tame; interiorization, introspection; congruence; personal to anchor; the prepositions in, at, on, among, within, into with, by, of, through to recoil; to reject, withdraw; to spiral, fall away, backslide to be demure, coy passivity, inertia; segmentation; to hide, conceal; to be uncovered, exposed, naked

Gimel

ג

Gematria 3

Ordinal 3

ג ד ה ו ז ח ט

.

animation; movement, locomotion; to travel, proceed, progress; vehicle, chariot; agent, means, medium to facilitate, foster, enable; transactions; procedures. camel, horse, donkey, ass; to carry, transport, transmit; to convey, imply, intimate to approach, reach, go beyond, transcend, surpass; to continue, further; to boost; excess fast, quick, precipitous, lively angle; joints: elbow, knee, ankle, wrist, fingers; to crease, bend, crimp; crevice, gully, ditch; to turn, deflect; to tangle, entangle, twist to walk, step, kick, skip, jog; to trip, stumble, dive; to equivocate; variance to hurl, throw, toss; to fumble, drop, deposit hoe; stick; to weed, cull, fell, eliminate, kill; to aerate, lift, elevate; to suspend, hang; to undermine, subvert, alter; to strip, expose, lay bare; to undress, disrobe process, procedure; leverage, influence; to affect hill; incline, rise; hump, mountain; steps, stairway; to mount; to climb, arise, ascend; to surface; tendency, inclination; neck; throat, esophagus, gullet; verify vocalization; to ingest, swallow, gulp, drink to nod, acknowledge, confirm, canal; conduit, avenue, path; bowels; the birth canal and process; the umbilical nervous system: nerves, synapses urges, appetites, motivations; optimism, elation to overflow, flood; excess recompense to repay, render; remuneration to restore, rectify, purify disagreement, altercation; animosity, bitterness vengeance; to repress; anxiety; to depress, exasperate, vex

Dalet

Gematria 4

Ordinal 4

.

possibility; door, entrance, exit; passageway, gateway, bridge; portal, threshold; tunnel, hallway access; opening, opportunity; to appear, materialize obstacle; blockage, impediment; foreskin, covering; to forestall peak, summit, pinnacle; apex, precipice; wedge; partition, wall; division, separation; middle; amidst, between, among to sit, take position; yoga, meditation, contemplation; perception;; to look, see, observe; to notice, pay attention, monitor, spy insight, impression, cognition; to consider, delve, investigate secret chamber; heart, altar; nostril; vagina; anus; tent; refuge, hiding place, den, lair; to occupy, dwell, lodge; coffin, grave; burial vault pyramid; security, solidity arrowhead; penetration; to stab, pierce; pointed, prickly; briars, thorns; discomfort pain, grief, suffering, hurt to point out, name, specify; to decide to choose, select; to indicate, implicate to shine

candlelight, flame, beam, corona, aura pervasive; emotion, sentiment; excitement, thrill; fervor, love

He

Gematria 5

Ordinal 5

.

rake; to separate; winnowing fan; to disregard, ignore; to differentiate, distinguish, discern to spread, proliferate; to distribute, disperse; to sow, broadcast; dissemination to intersperse, intermingle, mix; to gather, select, choose, discriminate; to collect, amass, retain, record visibility; light, illumination, incandescence; sunlight, moonlight, starlight; rays, radiation, heat discovery, realization; enlightenment; vision, revelation animation; life; aura, pheromones; attraction, lust, concupiscence; affiliations, reactions to inflame, anger; rage; to shun, ignore, avoid; to resist, defy;

to examine; to seek, hunt, search, explore; to rummage; to cull, shed, discard, discount; to dismiss, discredit the definite article, the; the pronouns she, her to amplify to blaze, sparkle; to identify; to show, highlight, emphasize; to indicate; notoriety; to value instantaneous, quick, immediate, sudden, fast; to fan, exacerbate; to shame, embarrass healing, purifying; beneficial, therapeutic, remedial digits; fingers, toes, claws, wings; integers, factors to comb, groom; to pluck, pick, choose; to point out, indicate wind; breeze; to blow, cool, refresh; to ease, mollify; relief; weather: precipitation, rain, showers, hail, snow, fog vapor, steam, evaporation; to leak, drip to dissolve, diffuse, burst; deflation sorrow, loss, regret; lamentation, weeping; catharsis

to catch; to capture, isolate; commerce, captivity; rows, ranks, columns, groupings; options, choices

Waw

Gematria 6

Ordinal 6

balance; scales; to weigh, consider, evaluate, judge; to dispute, argue, deliberate, debate; to aver, champion, endorse; to adjudicate, negotiate, administer; to adjust, rectify, settle; reconciliation to be right, correct, just; justice, fairness to struggle, contend, wrestle; difficulty, resistance, opposition; to yield, consent, accede; to defer; to abandon; to surrender to mediate, ameliorate, compromise; compensate; equilibrium, rest; calm, peace, equanimity, quietude to yearn; to worship, cherish, adore, praise; reverence; supplication; propensities; longing, aspiration, desire; compassion; gratitude; mercy; emotional vitality zeal; to soar, glide, hover, fly; upwards; to offer, sacrifice, submit; capitulation nose; to smell, scent, sniff out; to investigate; to test, attempt, try; flexibility; to stretch, yawn; to plead, reach out, invoke clavicle, shoulders; thumb, big toe; turtle hook; nail, pin, fastener; crutch; to adhere, clasp; girdle; to restrain, discourage, caution; consolidation; permanence; to wait; to be suspended; limbo, stasis, inertia; normality; the status quo; to thwart, harass, annoy to pause, rest, desist, stop; cradle; to uphold, coddle, comfort; chair, seat, throne; chalice, cup to own, claim, experience; to widen, stretch, broaden, proliferate; to pivot, rotate; contraction to intensify, emphasize; abdomen, navel; pelvis; socket; fulcrum; womb; maternity yoke; unity; to join, bond, wed, marry, unify alignment; link, nexus, intersection; to meet, encounter, confront; to engage; to be attached, harnessed; reins; shackles; cooperation; to merge, converge; amalgamation the conjunctions and, or, but, also the adverbs therefore, then funnel to fill, inject; libation; to fuel, reinforce, strengthen esophagus, lungs; tornado, cyclone, deluge; cornucopia; to be bountiful to empty, drain; to collapse; vessel, host; breasts, teat; nursing, milk nourishing, sustaining; outpouring the pronouns he, him

Zayin

Gematria 7

Ordinal 7

strength; drive, impetus, determination, obligation; root, masculinity to oppress; opposition; to stifle; domination, suppression, tyranny barrier; to dodge, avoid; to split, sever, diverge, separate thrust; lightning; penetration, suffusion; influence, momentum; to strike, push, smite; a punch, blow; to knock opposition; to wound, plague, bother, aggravate, afflict; to impinge dependence; harmful, abusive, damaging; pejorative to leak, drip, dribble; expenditure; to vacate storm; surge, current, undertow to lag, linger, lurk, stall

war; armament, weapons: sword, knife, dart, javelin, arrow, spear, whip, club, bludgeon; scythe, sickle antagonism, acrimony; warrior, soldier, officer; foe, adversary, nemesis; trouble to arm, prepare, ready; to intervene; to invade, bully, infringe upon; victim pen; to write, mark, etch; to engrave, anneal; to decorate, paint, cover over, coat potter's wheel; instruments, tools, devices, inventions carvings, statues, pottery, paintings, murals; correspondence, letter, epistle; words, statements, laws, statutes, ordinances to write, author: to plan, plot, connive flight; to fly, escape, flee; refugee; bird; feather, pinion; zeal, exuberance; excel; exhilaration, enthusiasm, excitement; mania to hang, dangle, flop; to stand out, objective; intent, motive; import; expectation, ambition; goal, aim, end, agenda; outcome, result, eventuality to complete, finish, conclude; consummation termination; closure; abandonment; separation, desertion, schism; to subside; to submerge, inter; underground perfection; deliverance; covering, salvation; overcoming to impose order, organization; regeneration, healing; shabbat, rest

Chet

Gematria 8

Ordinal 8

covenant; agreement, consensus; accord; commitment; affinity, mutuality, empathy, harmony to correspond; equality; equanimity; reciprocation to honor, appreciate, celebrate; gladness, joy, elation, enthusiasm; hope, aspiration alliance;

accessory; competition, strife, discord; to plot, conspire, betray; dalliance duty; work, labor, effort, service; vocation, assignment, job to trade, exchange; to buy, purchase, amass; relationships; friendship, brotherhood; betrothal, engagement; to marry, wed torso; chest; vesture, mantle, apron; coat, cloak, robe, clothing stretched, lengthened, elongated, broadened; scope, range, mass, extent hips, limbs; to stand, stretch loom; weaving; warp, woof; fabric, cloth, net scroll, book; context, situation mutuality; to match, correspond; to extend; liaisons; interrelated; harp, music to aid; to abet; care, help, assistance, succor to empathize, share, cooperate, coordinate; to exchange ladder; means to reach new plateaus; to ascend; to climb, elevate, mount to reconsider, repent, reform, change to enhance, improve, better to descend; to collapse; to weaken, deteriorate; to denigrate window; borders; framework, fence, obstruction, obstacle perspective, outlook; to sight, glimpse, imagine; distanced; vague, approximate, arbitrary, capricious depression, fatigue, anxiety, fear, angst

Tet

Gematria 9

Ordinal 9

integration; conflict resolution; harmonization of disparate forces; to solve, come together, coalesce, reach accord; inclusiveness, reinforcement, verification; to strengthen, fortify, fill; to possess to integrate; to adhere; amalgamation; order; union, mating; fertilization; differentiation

the four worlds (earth, air, water, fire); four levels of interpretation (pshat, remez, drush, sod) the four beasts surrounding the throne; Ezekiel's living creatures: the unified elements of incarnation (spirit, angel, soul, body); the four camps of Yisrael; angels, cherubim, seraphim, messengers basket; repository; vase, bowl, basin dwelling area; city, community, town; to be hidden, concealed, obscured, occluded, bound, covered, contained; consumption; to gather, collect, assemble; network; Earth; globe, planet; solar system, universe; cube, sphere confinement; cave, lair; stall, pen, prison; shelter, refuge; captivity, restraint, confinement; solids; caged, jailed, imprisoned, garrisoned to control, keep, oppress; abuse, torment, persecution stasis, inertia; to be sated, satisfied to target; to specify, locate, point out, indicate, highlight; specificity; to map, delineate to confront; to encompass, surround; to limit, inhibit, obstruct, block, defeat, nullify to interpose; to circumvent; to navigate; compass victim, sacrifice, offering operational stages; sequences, patterns, arrangements; segmentation; to break apart, wreck, devastate; dissolution; to differ, alienate; divisiveness, contradiction; to reject to define, label, name, identify, characterize to persevere, endure; alliance to adhere, hold together; cohesion; to absorb to adjust, rearrange, alter, tweak; to twirl, spin, revolve security; buckler; to shield, protect, safeguard, hide; safety truth, trust; obedience; co-dependence; interchange

Yod

Gematria 10

Ordinal 10 > 1

hand; means of attainment; wrist and cupped fingers; giving, receiving, sharing; to obtain, acquire, accumulate, amass; to count, number, approximate to catch, grab, pick, take; to touch, feel; to reach, fondle; to beckon, invite; to bring blessings; ability; stamina, duration; satisfaction; expedience possession, ownership; acquisitions, fortune, wealth; benefactor the adjectives my, mine, my own

to incite; to entice, tempt, excite; to offer, invite, inspire; to motivate, shove, rush, hurry to instill, insinuate; to nudge, stimulate, kindle, enable, implement; appreciation, applause actions; activity; to act, perform, do, achieve; to arrive, depart; to engage, experience; to provide, supply, furnish; to apply, exert, exercise; to tease, titillate; to irritate, debilitate assertion, imposition; to present, introduce; to demonstrate, expose, identify, betray to kneel, pay homage to honor, respect, salute, serve obeisance, submission; to be humbled; to succumb, suffer to pay, repay, restore; to redress, adjust; responsibility; necessity; to require, need, want to plant; to enact, execute, utilize; behavior, intent to appropriate; to retain, profit, benefit; to hold, clasp; to confiscate, hoard; usury to steal, rob, take, deplenish, reduce, eliminate empty; thief, robber to release; to impart; to allow, give up, let go, part with to avert, avoid, brush aside; liberation; to drop, forsake to dismiss, abandon, discard; to betray to write; to inscribe; inscription; to note, record to design, engineer; author, source; scribe

Kaf

Gematria 20

Ordinal 11 > 2

realignment; to simplify, restructure; to clarify, explicate; to expedite to complicate, obfuscate; difficulties, problems; anticipation, expectation, hope to stumble, trip, cartwheel, fall; to pivot, turn; regret to sabotage, overthrow, defeat, upend, expunge; disorder extension; antlers, extremities; utensils: spoon, fork; handle; to be useful multiplication, largesse; tribe, family, offspring the pronouns you, your repetition, proliferation, reiteration, permutation; divergence, diversity; outward prefix of comparison: like, as, accordingly to expose; to make evident, uncover, acknowledge; to brandish, brag, boast to be visible, obvious, apparent, conspicuous; evidence, tracks, signs bush; tree, branch, leaves; tree of the knowledge of good and evil trident, pitchfork; broad path, crooked way vine; productivity, fruitfulness; harvesting, reaping bent; palm of hand, sole of foot; cheek; curved, concave; convex, hollow; perverse, twisted, demented; inverted claw; bird, rooster; flight; to maul, rend, tear asunder

cliff, crag; rocks, boulders

teachings; lessons, doctrines, coverings persuasion, coercion; to proselytize, convert celebration; to applaud rejoice

upheaval, tumult, chaos, riot; unrest

Lamed

Gematria 30

Ordinal 12 > 3

change; to redirect, deflect, evade, alter to reconsider, redistribute; to repent; to prevent; the prepositions to, towards, unto, into, during, for, about, according to at, by, of, with, in, within, as, belonging to the adjectives each, every to provoke; to test; to encourage; to promote, aver, champion, favor to compel, force, enforce; to challenge, obstruct, interfere to accuse, indict; malice serpent; physical drives; compulsions to restrain; to defend; to cease, stop, deny, forebear; to refrain, withhold; to recall, summons to discourage, inhibit, prevent, deny, oppose; to revoke, limit, forbid appendage; arm; wrist and hand; leg and foot; finger, fist tongue; nose; bone; teat; penis to instruct; to point, indicate, imply; to order, command, insist; teacher, rabbi, instructor; lesson; to be schooled, taught to argue, debate; to prove, disprove elder; beard; maturity; ancient, wise; confident role, function; influence; authority; shaman, guru shepherd; staff; to prod, goad; to herd, wrangle to guide, steer, protect, oversee to set course, direction rod; to chastise, correct, punish, afflict, damage; to hurt; control, oppose

Mem

Gematria 40

Ordinal 13 > 4

freedom; to free, prepare; to rescue, release, liberate; to circumvent; libertine to undo; to unlock, unleash, move; relaxed, unrestricted, unfettered, unbound, undefined; nebulous, haphazard unspecific, uncategorical; continuous, on-going, unabated; impetuous, spontaneous to drift, wander; disorderly, superficial wilderness; extent, scope, length, width; derivation the prepositions from, since, of; the adverb more than; crouch disturbance; discomfort; to befuddle, confuse; to forget; disorientation, uncertainty; duress to trouble, accuse; to demean; to uproot, destabilize; to ambush, waylay, stalk noise, clamor; rumble, roar; uproar; to be wild, reckless; frivolity, indulgence uninhibited, undisciplined, unruly, rude; undue, unwarranted; unqualified cessation; to exit; to run, flee, depart; to be lost, disoriented; to loosen, divorce; to eliminate, dismiss; to quit, cease, stop to draw out, empty; debt; to owe, lose; to disburse, pay, remunerate fluids; water; tides, waves, currents, ripples; to pour, fill, irrigate; deluge, flood to bathe, wash, soak; to cool, soothe, relieve; to flow; to be swift, soft, supple; cleansing, refreshing, easing; ameliorative semen, issue; oil; wine, libation; tears; venom; poison; spit, mucous; pus, bile, vomit to mirror; to reflect, ape, mimic; memory; to return, answer, respond; ; accordingly; to allude, invoke, suggest; to petition; message, counsel, advice; information; allegory, parable; wisdom's attributes people; nation; humanity; others; peer groups, members, participants multitudes; nations; multiplication to be chosen, destined, anointed; favoritism, preference, privilege

נ Nun

Gematria 50

Ordinal 14 > 5

ך ן ם ף ץ

lustfulness; harlotry, whoredom; the thigh; the loins, bowels; to crawl, creep, scurry; scorpion; snake; to coil flexibility; potential, possibility, prospects, promise; plausibility; surprising, unexpected; optional, arbitrary; nuanced, multifaceted, multidirectional instability; to rock, sway; vacillation, caution; to waver; undependable, unreliable; flippant; scope, weight, extent; to tuck, tumble, jump; catapult, sling reversal; to repent, turn; to restrict, limit, confound; to negate, neutralize, undo; to backtrack, backslide; denial; to decline, subside; loss, impoverishment; discomfort, prostration, devastation failure, defeat; to fold; to inhibit; to undermine, topple; to stone exhaustion; to fall, collapse; to sit, recline; to yawn, sleep, snore to deplete; to degenerate; indulgence; to withdraw; to suck, filter, leach to suffer, endure, persevere supplementation; augmentation; to take in, recognize; to gain, exchange determination; to investigate, assess; to try, attempt to vow, swear; interior application, action; sudden, unexpected, unforeseen

Sons of Man symbol: an enlightened man, woman, person; to sprout, to be reborn purpose; to spread, proliferate, extend, project; proclivity; to result, happen, unfold; eventuality; to actualize; operative; suggestive; ritual; method, routine; device; configuration to glisten; spectacular; vigorous; to shine, flourish; fecundity, fertility desire, need; to discover, display, reveal, demonstrate, enact prominence, endurance; jubilee fish; to swim; to slither, sneak; scaled species; lizard, frog to nibble, gnaw, annoy, nag, discomfit

Samek

Gematria 60

Ordinal 15 > 6

Tree of Life; tower, refuge, shelter; fortification; united branches; the three crosses; Judaism, Christianity, and Islam (mother and two daughters); the burning bush (salvation process); plants, herbs, flowers, weeds the complete physical organism; spine, ribs, skeleton dependability; to be competent, responsible, consistent, constructive, determined; reliance, trust empowerment; to enforce, demand, insist, require; to warn, prepare, protect; sage, watcher, seer, prophet to uphold; pillar, post; to support, bear; to strengthen, structure, organize to authorize, encourage, sustain; to be steadfast; stability, security; constraint secrecy; shelter, hiding place; to be alert; to bristle, emote; to shock, frighten; to worry, vex, harass, trap; distressed, irritated to permeate, spread, broadcast, proliferate; to dissipate; distended; exhaustion hair; comb, brush; to groom, curry; fiber; skin, integuments; fabric; layered, woven framework; multi-dimensional; frayed, ragged, stretched partitioned; walls, corridors; fence, corral; constructions, arrangements segmented; to overreach; overextended, excessive to invade, infect concentric; seasons, cycles, days, months, years

progressions; multiplicity, repetition; to harp upon comprehension

Ayin

Gematria 70

Ordinal 16 > 7

understanding, realization; compassion; ardor, warmth; eagerness to consider,

\sight; to reflect upon, ponder, think; eye, iris, pupil, cornea, lens; to look, see, stare; to view, study, detect; overview; penetrating vision; prophecy; to be clear, precise; to clarify; keen, transparent, obvious, certain light source; sun, moon, stars; to glow, gleam; illuminated; brightness, iridescence; jewels, treasures, precious metals receptivity; to be attentive, concerned, worried, anxious, expectant; frontier, promised land; boundaries, limitations; body openings; body organs to circumscribe; to circumcise; to circle, surround; to overcome, supersede, surpass comprehensive, global; satisfactory, fulfilled, successful; composure, wholeness; adequacy, sufficiency; accommodation; perseverance bud; loop, circuit, lap transference; to inform; to advise, coach, tutor to overwhelm; to lay siege hostility, jealousy, shame; rage arrogance, boastfulness well; cistern; lakes, oceans, seas; springs, brooks, fountains, pools, puddles to enlarge; sated, saturated, full; inflation

pit, crater, hole, cavity; depth; abyss

void; empty, blank, vacant, absent; expressionless; superficial zero, none, no, nil, null, neutered

ף Pe

Gematria 80

Ordinal 17 > 8

breath; aspiration; to inhale, exhale; to blow, puff, sneeze; soul as an expression of spirit communication; voice, speech, language; tongues; elocution: to speak, address, announce, advertise; to offer, promise to nag, harp, berate, mock, belittle, scorn, denigrate; to accuse, allege; to curse, imprecate; to challenge, scream, yell, insist an expression; saying, utterance; mantra; pronouncement, order, commandment; verbalization, locution; argument, address, sermon, homily; to chant, sing; poetry, psalms face; physiognomy, visage, appearance; persona, personality, character; manner, style jaw, mouth, lip; maw, gullet, craw to eat, partake, devour; to consume; to dine, feed; a feast, meal to open; to acknowledge; to appear, manifest, materialize; incision; to reveal, unmask, ravish, violate to pivot; to permit, allow; to disperse, disseminate, distribute, spread to dodge, escape, evade, avoid to shut; to close, restrict, limit, marginalize, disallow to dictate, prohibit; to rupture, herniate; wound to delay, drag, postpone; to divert, deny, refuse edge, side; lateral, exterior; border, region corner, ceiling, roof

extremity, end; lock of hair, fringes, sideburns container; cup, scoop, bowl; cave, cavern, chasm saddle; ridge line; stomach; fruit; nutshell, rind, peel; the adverbs here; hence, therefore

Tsade

Gematria 90

Ordinal 18 > 9

transformation; repentance; sacrifice; adjudication, rectification; metamorphosis, transfiguration; accomplishment, enactment; success righteousness; innocent, just, upright; perfect; accurate, right, true; honorable, saintly respect, reverence, fear, piety the remnant to dance; to leap, jump, turn, rotate, spin, revolve, skip; fishhook to triumph, overcome; delight; victory side; the lifted leg; imbalance; lateral, adjacent; to expose, allude, invoke to walk, run, march, issue forth; to diverge, evade; suppression; to challenge, oppose, defy to hunt; to chase, pursue, follow; to engage; to flee; flight, escape to attempt, try, experiment hosts; sects, orders; governments, organizations officialdom; to salute; insects, swarms; armies; military battle; to attack, be aggressive to devastate, defeat, conquer to discourage; to ward off, deflect; to defend, exorcise, eradicate to acquit; to be afraid to subvert, sabotage; to topple, overturn to discomfit; to wander, stray

Qof

Gematria 100

Ordinal 19 > 10 > 1

holiness; sanctification, purification; spiritual separation, dedication to be careful, discrete; reticence, circumspection to be distinguished, chosen, sanctified priest's cap, crown; brain stem heaven; firmament; sky; corona, dome, vault; spiritual rains, storms, downpours; deluge to blossom, flower, ascend kingdom; domain, realm; protection, covering to guard, safeguard, protect; to oversee, regulate; to designate;

to confer, confirm; to appoint, ordain; to nominate; to be invested, dedicated; a specialist; skilled bow and arrow; to pierce, alight upon; to push, propel; vibration boat, oar; ark; to siphon, drain, empty; urination; drill; harp

coitus; carnal knowledge; intercourse, impregnation glans, clitoris; climax, ejaculation shadow; darkness; shade tree; smoke; sanctimony

to mask, hide, conceal, occlude, darken, dim, veil

priest's cap; back of head; monkey, ape (faceless man); skull

Resh

Gematria 200

Ordinal 20 > 2

sovereignty; king, ruler, leader; overseer; messiah, seer, visionary; person; instigator; opponent, adversary, enemy to shoulder; to commandeer; determination, domination governance; competence, responsibility; to be decisive, assertive to adjure, urge, persuade; to manage, control, rule, command, insist to disallow, forbid; to exorcise blade; axe, shovel; to chop, chisel; to cleave, sever, remove, stop tyranny; to threaten, intimidate, bully; to damage, desiccate fountainhead; topmost, main, primary; predominant, chief component; source, starting to happen, occur, transpire; tributary; to reward

mountain; peak, pinnacle, crest, height, summit; rooftop; to be large, weighty, self-important; dignitary to rise, fall, climb, descend

the head; mind; thought, knowledge, intelligence to watch, regard; to signal, inform lofty, proud, aloof honor; nobility, eminence; discretion, beauty devotion; to praise, esteem; to be graceful; elegance;

to sail; to be driven; to glide; to skate an issue; to defer

Shin

Gematria 300

Ordinal 21 > 12 > 3

wisdom; Spirit, spirits; glory; solar; fire, worm; angel, cherubim, seraphim dream, vision, portent strength; to wrestle, struggle, fight, contend; musculature; might, prowess; to be forceful, compelling, convincing tooth; tusk; ivory; to bite, tear, rend; to gnaw, to ingest, consume, assimilate, absorb; a meal paw; to savage, maul, shatter, destroy, decimate to saw, separate, excise, sever utilization; to applicate; to sew, mend; amelioration; to knead;

to afflict, suppress to widen; to excite, invigorate, energize; invasive exploration

buoyancy; to float; to loft, raise; to be lifted up, carried correlation of above and below tribulation; agitation; to shake, tickle; torment; to be upset, bothered, disturbed; to tremble to loathe, hate, despise; to undermine; to conspire, connive to vent; tantrum, breakdown; buttocks; evacuation; elimination to wobble; vacillation, to juggle, jiggle; vibration weakness, frailty, vulnerability; illness sleep, snoring; death; repetition, monotony;

to take wing; to be caught up in the air by the Spirit

Taw

Gematria 400

Ordinal 22 > 4

apocalypse; to end, finish; to cancel; to obliterate, alter, change to disappear, vanish, fade, dwindle; to oppose, resist, forbid, ostracize; excommunicate renewal; regeneration, resurrection, continuation; wholeness reiteration; subsequent, additional eternal; endurance; forever, perpetuality; persistence square; four corners, four directions

mark; signature, characteristic, feature; sign, emblem, symbol; profile cross, weather vane; to partition, fence; to intersect; nexus; synapse; link, to confront, accuse; pass sentence; to corner, locate; stalemate, loggerheads to expose; tendon; to unmask; to encounter, meet, confront to curse, hex; to enchant, cast spells prediction, speculation continuum; range; proliferation; open-ended, on-going to measure, assess, investigate, monitor to complete;

infinity, sum, totality

The extent, the end x of the curse 444.

To HaShem: a Dedication

He comes upon the clouds—within the thoughts.

I found you in all of my memories
There, beneath the sky, in rolling seas,
You filled my lifetime with the sound of your name;
And, now, I know it will always be the same.

Earth will last a moment before it dies.
Still, you'll hold me deep within your eyes;
And through the endless span of your gentle mind,
You'll carry me. You won't leave me behind.

Without ending, your love for me:
Blossoming forth through all eternity!
The shoreline changes. It is never the same;
Yet here I stand, in the sound of your name!

HaShem יהוה blesses you and keeps you.
HaShem יהוה makes his faces to shine
inside you and upon you;
HaShem יהוה lifts up his expressions within you, and gives you peace.